THIRD-TERM BOOM FOR WILSON WINS CHEERS IN INDIANA

'EXIGENCIES OF THE TIMES'

MARSHALL RAPS COLONEL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 19.—As permanent Chairman of the Democratic State Convention, Samuel M. Ralston, former Governor of Indiana, today launched a boom for a third term for President Wilson. His words were received with wild cheering and there was not the slightest doubt as to the sentiment of the crowd at the convention. After praising the record of the President and the Administration, Mr. Ralston said:

"I seek to bind no man except myself by what I say here. In these troublesome days I care not the snap of my finger for a certain precedent we have highly regarded in times of peace. I shall not stand for a precedent that would interfere with efficiency in carrying on the war or that would deny the country the services of the best ability in the reconstruction period to follow the war. I maintain, therefore, the exigencies of the times call for the renomination and election in 1920 of Woodrow Wilson.

"The duty of the hour is to stand by men seeking office who approve the course of the National Administration in the war. To demand this is not unreasonable. Germany must not get the impression that the people of this country are not back of our Government in this war, and that impression is likely to be made in other nations if the people do not stand by the President's party in the approaching election.

Quotes Colonel Roosevelt.

"In 1898 this country was at war with old, decrepit Spain. In the Fall of that year Colonel Roosevelt was a candidate for Governor of New York. In one of his speeches he said: 'Remember that whether you will or not, your votes this year will be viewed by the nations of Europe from one standpoint only. They will draw no fine distinctions. A refusal to sustain the President this year will, in their eyes, be read as a refusal to sustain the war, and to sustain the efforts of our Peace Commission to secure the fruits of the war. Such a refusal may not inconceivably bring about a rupture of the peace negotiations. It will give heart to our defeated antagonists; it will make possible the interference of those doubtful neutral nations, who, in this struggle, have wished us ill.'

"So, as the failure of voters to support the Republican Party in 1898 would have been in the eyes of foreign nations a failure to support the President and what he did in the Spanish-American war, how would other countries interpret the defeat of the Democratic party this Fall? We fathers and mothers of the boys over there cannot afford to see Woodrow Wilson's party defeated at the next election."

War was the leading topic for all the speakers, who included Vice President Marshall, and Scott Ferris, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

Ridicules "Lady Theodora."

Vice President Marshall put the delegates in a happy frame of mind by his reference to Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, as "this young Lochinvar," who "ambled out of the West upon the G. O. P.—grand old palfrey—and with force of arms seized the Lady Theodora and carried her off to that mediaeval castle called the Republican Headquarters, where he introduced her as a Republican vestal virgin."

The Vice President made a plea for support of the Administration at the close of his address, saying that while he wanted the Democrats to win the coming election, "at the risk of being read out of the party" he urged the members in the State to vote against the Democrat who was not in hearty accord with the President and his ideas, and against the Democrat "who is not in favor of taking the German language out of the schools of Indiana and welding into a united people by the use of a common language all those who dwell within our borders."

Tokio Says Japan Won't Act Unless We Give Full Support

TOKIO, June 15.—The Associated Press is informed that Japanese intervention in Russia is extremely improbable at the present time unless it is completely supported by the United States.

It is asserted that Great Britain, France, and Italy are actively in favor of intervention and seek America's adherence. Japan reserves the right to act alone in case she decides that Japanese interests are directly menaced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Since the United States declined to sanction the proposal that Japan intervene in Siberia to protect allied interests the Japanese Government has adopted the attitude of waiting for her allies to harmonize their views on the subject. Everything depends on the United States.

Nothing has yet come to light to show that this Government is contemplating a change of attitude, but there is reason to believe that some of those in authority are giving thought to the proposals advanced for allied intervention.

OUTRAGE BY TURKS MAY PRESAGE WAR

AMERICANS PROBABLY SAFE

Had Prepared to Flee—Renewal of Demands for Declaration of War Expected.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Attack by Turkish troops on the American Consulate at Tabriz, Persia, and the looting of an American missionary hospital in that city, reported to the State Department today, was believed in some quarters here to presage the long expected declaration of war between the United States and the Ottoman Empire.

Diplomatic relations between the two Governments have been suspended since April 20, 1917, when Turkey withdrew Abdul Hak Hussein Bey, who had been acting as Chargé of the Turkish Embassy here since the compulsory retirement of the regular Ambassador, which followed his open criticism of the United States Government. Necessarily American Ambassador Morgenthau was obliged to leave Constantinople, and since that time the relations between the two Governments have been just short of actual formal enmity.

Recently there have been vigorous demands in Congress for a declaration of a state of war between the United States and Turkey and Bulgaria, but President Wilson and the State Department have not regarded this step as necessary or desirable, since there has been no actual collision between American and Turkish or Bulgarian troops.

On the face of the reports from American Minister Caldwell at Teheran, officials were inclined to believe that the sacking of the American Hospital, a Presbyterian institution, over the protest of the Spanish Consul in charge, as representative of American interests, furnished the necessary provocation for open hostilities between America and Turkey.

The advices, however, were meagre, and the Minister explained that he was only transmitting reports of matters not of his own knowledge. In view of this, it was realized that later reports might show that the offenses were not as grave as now represented.

Americans Probably Gone.

American doctors and nurses who had been stationed in the hospital were believed to have left Tabriz before the Turkish troops arrived. Gordon Paddock, the American Consul in that city, reported to the department May 29 that he and all of the Americans and the British were prepared to leave the city before the advancing Turkish army, consequently it was not believed that Americans actually were molested.

The department is trying to get further information regarding the outrages, and probably no action will be taken until these efforts are exhausted. It is realized that it will be difficult to secure additional reports because of the remoteness of the scene and bad wire communications.

Some officials pointed out today that, since the attacks on the consulate and hospital occurred in Persia, the United States first must hold the Persian Government to account, as it is responsible for the safety of foreigners and their properties within its borders. However, because of the peculiar and un-

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Wednesday, June 19.—At the unusual if not unprecedented hour of 9 o'clock last night, the first German Army, under command of General Fritz von Below, made a frontal attack upon the salient of which the ruined city of Rheims forms the head. There was the now regular bombardment of shot and a volume of gas, smoke, and explosive shells, and then under cover of the growing darkness, aggravated by these artificial clouds, the infantry came on to the strength of three divisions on a twelve-mile crescent, from the foot of the mountain of Rheims at Gueux, on the west, round the northern and eastern suburbs to the Fort of La Pognelle.

Notwithstanding the difficulties of night combats, the Germans were repeatedly and everywhere repulsed with very heavy losses. Perhaps the hardest struggle was on the two wings, the enemy hoping so to pinch the roads of access to the salient that street fighting would be avoided. This remarkable French success would have been impossible but for the commanding positions they enjoy along the circle of hills to the west and south, and even if at still greater cost Rheims should be taken, these positions will remain a sufficient barrier to any advance of military value.

Germans Used Shock Troops.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, June 19, (Associated Press.)—Large units of German shock troops which had been concentrated on the western side of Rheims, between Vrigny and Ormes, went over to assault last night, but were met with such an awful fire from the French defense that they were unable to make the slightest progress.

They suffered such losses, after trying time after time to reach the French positions, that only a few of the attackers were able to return to their own lines.

The attack on Rheims was executed by four separate columns of troops. The first, converging on Zouaves' Wood, northeast of Sillery, obtained a momentary foothold in the French lines, but was immediately ejected, with heavy losses.

The second debouched near the artillery range eastward of Rheims, but it did not even reach the allied positions.

The third column tried to reach the Constantine Farm and proceed in the direction of Haubette, west of Rheims, but was unsuccessful, while the fourth operated between Vrigny and Ormes, bearing chiefly toward the last named village, but equally without result.

The counterbattery work of the French gunners upset all the German plans, their shells doing great execution among the enemy. Enemy concentrations in the vicinity of Janvry were waiting to enter the combat in the event of the first onslaught succeeding.

When the Germans launched their attack in full force on Rheims their intention was to deal a heavy counterblow to compensate for their failure to capture Compiègne. Forty thousand troops participated in the assault along the front extending from Vrigny Plateau to Sillery, with orders to carry the city at all costs. They met with dismal defeat.

At every point they were repulsed with heavy losses. In a most gallant manner the French troops prevented

21 Destroyers, Many U-Boats, Are Penned Up at Zeebrugge

LONDON, June 19. — Twenty-one German destroyers, a large number of submarines, and numerous auxiliary craft are penned in the Bruges Canal docks as the result of the recent British naval operations at Zeebrugge, Thomas J. MacNamara, Financial Secretary of the Admiralty, so stated in the House of Commons today. He said the German craft were the object of constant bombing.

AMSTERDAM, June 19.—The entrance to Zeebrugge is blocked, according to Lieutenants George Coward and John Read of the British Royal Air Force, who landed in Zeeland Monday and are to be interned. In an interview in the Telegraaf they say that the Germans are working day and night to clear the passage, but each night British aviators demolish the Germans' progress.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Wednesday, June 19.—It is raining today out here in short, sharp showers, and there are low clouds which seem to promise a steady rain. That has a military importance apart from the need of moisture for the crops that are becoming parched after many weeks of dry and brilliant weather.

Last year in Flanders the rain, that began in August and hardly ceased until the end of November, created such foul conditions for the British troops that rapid progress in attack was utterly impossible, in spite of courage and will-power reaching to the very heights of human nature. That was the British tragedy and German luck. Now, for the great offensive in the west the enemy has again been favored by the weather. All through February and March, when the German armies were massing and making secret preparations for the assault on our line, the days and nights were dry and mild, the ground firm, the roads good, and all conditions favorable for the movement of men and guns. It has lasted like that ever since, with hardly a break, and the splendor of the last two months has given the enemy all the advantage for his plans and organization of attack.

Now, more than ever, rain would be in the Allies' favor. Lots of rain churning up the old mud of Flanders again, filling up bogs and swamps, brimming over shell craters and clogging guns in their pits. During the next two months, when the Germans must make their last effort to break through the allied armies on the western front, while they still hold the initiative, which will slip from them before the year is out if they do not win now, foul weather will help in the defense and thwart some of their purpose. So hey for mud and rain and all the beastliness of the Flanders bogs, and all the slime and filth of the old Somme battlefields, which are now the assembly grounds and dumping places and gun positions of the enemy. May they be as bad as they were when the British were knee-deep in them. So does the stress of war make one wish for Winter in Summer and other things not written in the book of nature.

Meanwhile it has been fair and pleasant in France during this time between battles, and one forgets some of the grimmer side of the business when one sees the British in the camps behind the lines under the full foliage of the trees or watering their horses by streams where many flowers grow in the tall grass or taking a rest on a march in the forests, where the sunlight is glinting down the glades.

Great Stream of Americans.

British, French, and American soldiers are wonderfully intermingled now, so that one finds three allies in ITALIAN ZONE OF WAR, Wednesday, June 19.—Baffled in his larger hope of a vast encircling movement around Treviso and by way of the Brenta Valley with his first halt at Bassano, the enemy, while maintaining his pressure on the mountain front and Montello district, without, however, risking fresh infantry attacks, is redoubling his efforts along the Piave, more especially west of San Dona.

The latest dispatch, received at 10 o'clock this morning, announces that the Austrian hold of the last-named vicinity, also in the Zenson bend and at Saint Andrea, southeast of Montello, is being considerably weakened by the Italian artillery fire and constant counterattacks.

Saint Andrea itself, with the adjacent villages of Giavera, Bavaria, and Sovilla, has changed hands ten times over. The railroad running thence toward Montebelluna is hidden under a litter of dead bodies for a length of several kilometers. The haul of prisoners has risen from 6,000 to 9,000, General Diaz announced last night—an almost unique fact in an offensive of this nature and undoubtedly the fruit of Italy's immediate readiness for an energetic reaction.

Stupendous acts of heroism are recorded. Gunners of an Alpine regiment stationed at the foot of Montello Hill, after being twice driven from their batteries, united themselves to some storm troops, fought the foe in a hand-to-hand encounter with daggers, and, recovering the cannon, readjusted the breech-blocks which they had taken away with them, and then fired point-blank into the adversary's ranks.

At Fagare two Hungarian battalions were annihilated amid the ruins of houses where they had taken refuge. At Candelu an enemy machine-gun corps, which had transformed the village into a fort, were killed by Italian mountain artillery, and in the neighboring sector of Salettuol the 3d Austrian Division lost 60 per cent. of its effectiveness.

Many of the prisoners at the moment of capture present the appearance of Bedouins, being clad merely in tattered shirts, with their rifles slung over their shoulders and a dagger in their hand. Nearly all carried postcard maps marking out their journey, with a program inscribed: "June 15, halt at Treviso. June 16, occupation of Venice." They also carried little packets of money coupons printed in Italian for spending in these cities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The extent to which American troops are to be sent to the Italian front from France will, it is understood, be determined by General Foch, the Generalissimo, who has supreme command over all sections of the western front, including Italy. General Pershing will designate the troops to be sent. Austria has been endeavoring by propaganda to make it appear that the United States does not intend to send military reinforcements to this front, and the troops to go to Italy will destroy the effects of such intrigue.

American aviators have already started, according to advices received at the Italian Embassy today.

"The first escadrille of American aviators and pilots trained in Italian aviation fields," said the dispatch, "started for the Italian front, accompanied by Congressman La Guardia, and will go immediately into action. This first contingent is composed entirely of volunteers, representing the finest specimens of American youth. This morning they were received by Commissioner of Aeronautics Chieza and by Assistant Secretary of State Gallinga and by numerous civil and military authorities.

"After many evidences of solidarity given by the United States, this contribution of airmen to our fighting forces constitutes a fresh proof of the invaluable support of America, the significance of which is deeply appreciated by the Italian nation."

BIG REVOLT IN KIEV AGAINST GERMANS

RESISTANCE SPREADS FAST

LONDON, June 19.—A great revolt has begun at Kiev, according to an intercepted wireless message transmitted from Moscow to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

Artillery stores have been exploded and there is continuous street fighting. The revolt is spreading to the Poltava and Tchernigov districts.

Forty thousand peasants, armed and organized, are participating in the revolt.

There have been several revolting factions at Kiev ever since the delegates of the Ukraine Rada signed a separate peace with the representatives of the Central Powers at Brest-Litovsk on Feb. 9.

First, Bolshevist agents stirred up trouble by having the tenant peasantry adopt the program of an equal distribution of land. The Rada, which principally represented the land owners, merchants, and capitalists, called in the Germans to restore order. Among other officials who were sent were Field Marshal von Eichhorn, as the military commander, and Baron Mumm von Schwartzenstein, as Ambassador.

The Bolshevist revolt was put down. Then, when it was discovered that the Germans commandeered rather than purchased the supplies made possible of acquisition by the peace treaty, the Government itself turned upon the Germans and fomented demonstrations among the Ruthenian peasantry, who had flocked to the city to obtain seed and farm supplies and implements. The last had been promised by the Germans, but were not forthcoming.

It would seem that the present revolt is caused by these peasants in an attempt to secure the material they need for themselves. That they are more or less acting under the influence of the Government is shown by the fact that a few weeks ago the new Ukrainian Council, in a sharp note of protest to Berlin, declared that it would resign unless Eichhorn and Schwartzenstein were recalled.

On the other hand, the German press has been accusing the Ruthenians of having obtained peace under false pretenses—as the promised supplies, particularly grain, had not materialized. As the season is now far advanced and there has been little planting, the situation has become desperate. Eichhorn's attempt to organize agriculture on a military basis is said to have proved a complete failure.

On May 1 there was an entire change in the Council. It was at first reported from German sources that the new men were "great Russian Imperialists of the old régime." Later, in their attitude toward their unwelcome German guests and toward the Bolsheviki, when they had won over the peasants, they revealed themselves as "representatives of the bourgeois element, which demands its just share in the affairs of state"—according to the Kiev correspondent of the Svensk Handelstidning of Stockholm.

The districts, Poltava and Tchernigov, were formerly Governments of Little Russia on the Dnieper, on which Kiev is situated. They are the most fertile in the whole Ukraine and formerly produced large quantities of grain, potatoes, tobacco, and live stock.

Poltava has an area of 19,000 square miles and a population of 2,794,727. It

HUNGRY AUSTRIANS CLAMOR FOR PEACE

STRIKE RIOTS IN CAPITAL

Expected to Spread Widely—Grain Stock Gone and Only Hope in Ukraine.

AMSTERDAM, June 19.—Matters in Austria are rapidly approaching the breaking point.

The Vienna City Council, according to a dispatch received here, passed a resolution yesterday protesting against the reduction of the bread ration. The resolution demanded that the ration be increased at the earliest possible moment and that in the meantime other foodstuffs be used to replace the reduction in the quantity of bread.

The Vienna Labor Council, after conferring for many hours on the same subject, passed a resolution renewing its demands for the "speediest general peace, notwithstanding the great obstacles at present in the way of peace endeavors." This resolution said that it was apparent that no improvement in the food conditions in Austria was possible while the war continued.

A decree was issued at Vienna today regulating the management of the new harvest, as has already been done in Germany and Hungary, strictly in accordance with the State needs.

The decree is necessitated by the fact that Austria enters the new harvest year without any stocks whatever. It provides for the appointment of special district commissions to collect the harvest, and the authorities are empowered to speed up thrashing.

Appeal for German Help.

According to the Cologne Gazette's Vienna correspondent, Burgomaster Weisskirchner yesterday reported to the municipal leaders that a conference which Premier von Seidler had with Food Minister Paul was without result, whereupon the municipal authorities demanded that the Government should enter into fresh negotiations with Hungary and Germany for the purpose of obtaining assistance in the way of potatoes, if not flour. The Municipal Council, on the Burgomaster's motion, adopted a resolution appealing to Germany, Hungary, and Bavaria for imports of old potatoes.

Premier von Seidler told a Socialist deputation that everything possible had been done to obtain supplies. He hoped that the period of short rations would be brief and he thought that Germany would furnish certain consignments. According to a Berlin semi-official news agency, a supply of grain or bread from German stocks is impossible.

A Berlin dispatch to the Cologne Gazette says authoritatively that there is no question of nonfulfillment of German obligations to supply grain to Austria, because Germany has not been in a position to forward such supplies. Owing to unforeseen difficulties, the promises to Austria as regards Ukraine grain have not been fulfilled in recent weeks. In this matter, the paper explains, Germany was not to blame, having met Austria in a most generous manner.

The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung says that representatives of the Government-owned mines, printing works, mint, telegraph, and posts secured an audience with the Premier, Dr. von Seidler, and the Finance Minister, Dr. von Wimmer, on Friday. Deputy Glöckel, acting as spokesman for the men, said that the lowering of the workers' efficiency was attributable, not to ill will, but entirely to underfeeding, and that the State em-

ITALIANS HIT FOE HARD

Narrow the Strip Along River Where the Austrians Are Herded.

ROME, June 19.—Counterattacking unceasingly, the Italians defending the Piave front continue to inflict sanguinary losses on the Austrian forces that succeeded in crossing the river at the opening of the great offensive.

Not only have they prevented the enemy from extending his gains appreciably, but have narrowed in some places the strip on the lower right bank occupied by the invaders, where his crowded infantry offer an easy target for the allied airmen, who are literally raining bombs and machine-gun bullets upon them.

In the mountain sectors the fighting was again of a local character, in which the Allies took the initiative.

Since the beginning of the offensive 9,011 Austrians, many guns, and several machine guns have been taken, according to the War Office statement issued today, which reads:

On the night of June 17-18 and in the course of yesterday the enemy did not renew his attack from the Asiago Plateau to the Montello. His partial actions were completely repulsed in the Grappa and Montello region.

Allies Raid Asiago Line.

We carried out thrusts on the Asiago Plateau, the allied detachments capturing many score of prisoners and two guns.

With unceasing pressure we shortened the front opened by the enemy south of the Montebelluna railway. Our artillery, with deadly concentration of fire, did not give truce to the enemy masses waiting along the front of the battle or in movement in the back areas.

Yesterday morning was calm on the Piave River, but in the afternoon the battle again broke out furiously.

New attempts made by the enemy to cross to the right bank from San Andrea to Candelu were repulsed. On the embankments of the river between Candelu and Fossalta the strenuous defense of our troops tried the enemy sorely, and his impetus was broken by our infantry.

Equally intense was the struggle which raged in the sector of Fossalta, southeast of Meolo and north of Capo Sile.

Every yard of ground was the theatre of epic struggles, in which our men and allied airplanes took part, bombarding with 15,000 kilograms of bombs, and firing tens of thousands of machine-gun rounds into the vulnerable targets offered by the enemy troops forced into the narrow space on the right bank of the river.

The battle is continuing bitterly. The enemy, in order to preserve some of the initial advantages gained by him takes no heed of the immense losses which our rifle fire and the guns of our airmen have been inflicting in the last five days.

Prisoners taken since the beginning of the battle amount to 9,011. Many guns and several hundred Austrian machine guns remain in our hands.

The number of enemy airplanes brought down now amounts to fifty. Two of our own or allied machines are missing.

Montello Fighting Is Severe.

River near San Dona di Piave, both the Italians and Austrians concentrating their efforts at these points. Most of the battles are in the open, without protecting trenches.

There is great aerial activity, the opposing airplanes flying low over the fighting soldiers, doing much damage in the opposing ranks.

LONDON, June 19.—The Austrians have been able to make virtually no progress against the British forces holding an important section of the line on the Italian front. The official communication tonight, describing these operations, says:

There has been heavy fighting on the Piave front, but the enemy made little, if any, progress Tuesday. The river is in flood, and many of the enemy's bridges have been washed away.

The situation on the British front is unchanged. Two additional mountain guns have been captured.

Austrians Cross Fossalta Canal.

VIENNA, June 19, (via London.)—Austro-Hungarian troops have crossed the Fossalta Canal at some points, the Austrian War Office announced today. It is added that the Italians are staking everything in order to stop the advance of the Austro-Hungarians in their offensive on the northern Italian front.

Italian attacks delivered on each side of the Oderzo-Treviso railway, the statement adds, broke down under heavy losses. The Austrians broke through several Italian lines at the southern foot of the Montello Ridge.

The statement reads:

The southern wing of the army group of Field Marshal von Boroevic has made a steady advance and has obtained fresh advantages. The Fossalta Canal has been crossed at some points. The Italians are staking everything in order to stop the advance. In narrow stretches prisoners have been taken from the numerous units which have been thrown together. Violent enemy attacks, delivered with greatest stubbornness, especially on both sides of the Oderzo-Treviso railway, broke down with heavy losses.

The number of prisoners increases.

On the mountain front the captures between the Piave and the Brenta, southeast of Asiago, which we took on the 15th, again were the objectives of bitter assault. In spite of great sacrifices, the enemy was unable anywhere to obtain an advantage.

On Dossoalta the Italians again tried fruitlessly to advance.

BRITISH DETACHMENT RESCUED BY ALPINI

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 19, (via Ottawa.)—The splendid spirit of comradeship which exists between the British and the Italians on the Italian front is illustrated by a brilliant feat, performed during the present offensive, in the British sector. The incident also brings out one of the most successful features of the organization of the Italian Army—the wise distribution and rapid handling of reserves.

The British defenders of a certain position were ordered to retire, with a view to straightening out a salient. A small detachment was left on the crest of a hill 3,000 feet high to cover the withdrawal. The Austrians, who immediately perceived the operation, tried to overwhelm the detachment, but the latter, although almost surrounded and outnumbered ten-fold, succeeded in holding the enemy at bay.

The commander of an Alpine detachment on the left of the British detachment decided on his own initiative to attempt to rescue the Britishers. The question was whether the Alpini would be able to arrive in time to find the defenders alive. The commander of the Alpini, however, said:

"We would be too late if any but the British bulldogs were defending the position, and if any but the Alpini champis were rushing to their rescue."

The Alpini thereupon dashed forward. The British received them with cheers for Italy. The Austrians were so taken back by this unexpected onslaught that they wavered. At this juncture the commander of the British detachment leaped to the top of the trench and ordered the charge. The Austrians were forced to withdraw in the face of the attack, both on the front of the advance and on the flank.

In another instance a detachment of British cyclists was changing its position and moving along a sunken road parallel to the front. Suddenly they ran into a greatly superior Austrian contingent that was barring the way. Instead of fleeing, they dismounted and advanced with fixed bayonets. Simultaneously the Austrians were ordered to charge. The two waves of bayonets clashed and a terrific fight ensued. The splendid physique and undaunted courage of the British cyclists proved too much for the Austrians, however, and they fled, discarding their rifles. The British gave pursuit and captured many prisoners and small arms.

The Montello, the oval-shaped chain of hills on which hinge the Austrian offensive, has been occupied for several months by the British who came to Italy last Fall under General Plumer. A British division occupies also the southwestern ridges of the Asiago plateau, with the French on their right.

The British, after reconquering the advanced positions momentarily abandoned on Saturday morning with a view of strengthening the line, not only resisted all Austrian attempts, but gallantly counterattacked in a fashion that caused an Italian superior officer to remark:

to Fassalta and then makes a three-mile bulge westward round Sandona. The ground they occupy is shaped like a tobacco pipe, with the bowl turned into the Italian army's territory.

The breadth of the stem of this pipe was reduced yesterday afternoon by a counterattack delivered by troops which had been fighting since the offensive began and were relieved in the evening. These troops, though dead beat, wanted to improve the position before they left and undertook it on their own initiative.

The enemy's object throughout the day was to enlarge the bowl of the pipe and particularly to capture or drive back a strong group of Italian artillery in the angle between the bowl and the stem.

The Austrians are not by any means fighting cleanly in this offensive. The Italian General commanding on the Montello sector told me that the enemy had been trying to push forward detachments dressed in Italian uniforms to mix with the Italian troops. The same thing occurred on the Lower Piave, where a number of Austrian spies in civilian clothes, trying to pass themselves off as Italian peasants, have been caught and shot.

All the wounded I have talked to agree that explosive bullets have been freely used by the enemy. Many of the ghastly injuries to hands and legs which I saw brought in could be due to no other cause. One wounded Italian even had a story of Austrians screening their machine guns by sending unarmed men ahead pretending to be deserters.

The Northumberland Fusiliers and the Oxford and Bucks Light Infantry, two of the battalions which were mentioned in the Italian army communiqué today, were both in the line at the point where Austria's attack was heaviest. On both flanks of the Oxford and Bucks front the enemy made headway, but the centre stood firm. The two wings, though outnumbered, fell back steadily, and, facing east, west, and north, the battalion fought a fierce three-sided battle among the dense pine woods on the steep hillside.

Machine guns were not much good to either side amid so much timber, and the fighting was at close quarters with bomb and bayonet.

The Northumberland Fusiliers earned the distinction they gained by skilfully opposing their left flank to the enemy and keeping in touch with the hard-pressed Oxford and Bucks, so the enemy failed to make the break through that they hoped to achieve by surprise and weight of numbers.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 19.—The incessant furious roar of cannon filled the air, while a sharp cold wind lifted the clouds of dust along the white endless road stretching straight before us seemingly right into the heart of the battle now raging. Our motor passed village after village composed of two-storied houses with, of course, the inevitable campanile, straight and graceful, which is never absent from any Venetian hamlet, as though to protect it from harm, but which, alas! proved the complete destruction of such places because affording a target for Austrian guns.

We passed women working in the fields, quite unconcerned over the frightful bombardment; in fact, they were cheerfully singing, sure that their fathers, husbands, and brothers would not let the enemy break through. Our progress was slow, owing to the amount of military traffic along the road—lorries, ambulances, motorcycles, munition carts, &c.

By this time we were nearing the battle line, the sound of the guns becoming louder and fiercer, rent at intervals by deafening explosions when some shell fell in the second lines not far from where we were.

We reached a tumble-down group of houses surrounded by most beautiful poplars under whose shade a group of Arditi were resting. They had just come back from the firing line.

The Arditi, "The Bold," are a voluntary body of men composed of the most audacious daredevils from all parts of the kingdom, but mostly from Calabria, Sicily, and Sardinia. They never remain in the trenches but are called wherever an attack is imminent. They are first over the top and the first to grapple with the enemy. Woe betide the Austrians who come within reach of their bayonets or their knives! Their task accomplished, they return to the second lines until called to some other point. They are divided into two groups, one called the "Red Flames" and the other the "Black Flames." There is friendly rivalry between the two sections as to which shall accomplish the greater feats.

The men we met were "Black Flames." They were all lying about in little groups, some peacefully sleeping, others comparing notes of what had occurred in the recent fight, while others played cards or mora, the most popular Italian game, whose chief characteristic detail consists in much shouting.

I approached the leader, a young, stalwart, dark-eyed Captain, and asked him to give me an account of their recent encounter with the enemy. He said:

"We were called to re-establish our line, which momentarily had been lost in the mountain region. The Austrians were bombarding us heavily, using a large quantity of gas shells. Notwithstanding this, I ordered my men forward. Like lightning they were over the top, shouting 'Fert!' [F. E. R. T. Fortitudo ejus Rhodum tenuit—By his bravery he took Rhodes: the motto of Amadeus V. celebrating his victory over the Turks, 1290.] their motto, and also an old one belonging to the House of Savoy. We reached the trenches and pounced upon the Austrians. Then the fiercest struggle we have ever had began. Backward and forward, gripping them by the throat, we swayed, never letting go until either our enemies were killed or we ourselves were done for. The Austrians defended themselves valiantly, but my boys were too much for them. The Austrians retreated at last, leaving us in possession of their trench, with several hundred prisoners."

The Captain ended his description with a satisfied smile on his face, while he nervously fingered a beautiful engraved dagger which he wore at his side. I asked leave to examine the blade. It was a Turkish dagger, bearing an inscription. I inquired how many Austrians had been killed with it. He gave a most expressive shrug of his shoulders, tersely saying: "Too many to keep count of." After chatting some time longer with this cheerful group, we proceeded on our journey north.

ALPINI DRIVE BACK EDELWEISS DIVISIONS

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 19.—"Always forward, always higher," is the motto of the Alpine regiment composed of men from the Abruzzi region in the first line trenches on the high plateau of the Asiago. These had to bear the brunt of the battle, as the enemy opposed this sector with their best troops, composed of the celebrated 18th, 42d, and 26th Edelweiss Divisions, the latter so beloved by Emperor Charles.

The Austrian command has launched wave upon wave of infantry against these trenches, favored by a mist which obliged the Italians to lengthen their range in fear of hitting their own troops in the hand-to hand fighting. The enemy's aim, however, was not to capture the trenches, but by insinuating a small nucleus of men along different dales and gorges, which are so numerous in this region, to surround the strongholds near Asiago.

A Genoese Colonel, immediately realizing the enemy's intention, dashed forward with his men and machine guns, submitting the Austrians to a deadly fire. After a heroic struggle the first-line trench was surrounded and fired at from all directions.

An order arrived to abandon the first line, but the Colonel, commanding the detachment in the rear, determined to make a last desperate effort to break through the enemy circle and rush to the rescue of his surrounded comrades. Gathering his men together, he led them on with the cry, "Remember, boys, on this line we either win or die."

They dashed at the Austrians, using their bayonets and hurling hand grenades. After this renewed energy and enthusiasm the enemy was obliged to give way and the Italians succeeded in breaking through to rejoin their friends, who had been fighting for hours, determined to die rather than surrender.

CHARLES TO SPUR ARMY.

Said to be Jealous of Germans and Seeks Victory Without Them.

ROME, June 19.—Emperor Charles is personally encouraging his troops in their efforts to break down the fierce resistance of the Italians. The Austrian ruler, it is reported, desired to cross the Piave and to climb Montello, but his advisers induced him to postpone the plan, believing the position to be unsafe, owing to the danger from artillery bombardment and the activity of Anglo-Italian airmen.

LONDON, June 19.—Reuter's Rome correspondent says that, according to report, the Austrian Emperor, who is at the front, is disappointed at the results obtained in the present offensive, and that, jealous of the excessive credit the Germans took for their share in last year's offensive, he is determined to make another desperate attempt to overwhelm the Italians unaided before asking for German assistance.

ITALY HOLDS HER RESERVES.

Losses Show Austria Is Using Hers, French Correspondents Report.

PARIS, June 19.—The battle on the Italian front, now in its fourth day, presents a favorable aspect, according to dispatches to the Havas Agency. The Austrians have gained ground along a line four kilometers in extent on the Montello, Plateau and on a line three kilometers long on the west side of the Piave River.

The Austrians have lost 6,000 prisoners and the losses of the enemy show that he is using his reserves, while the Italians are protecting theirs.

MONTELLO THE DANGER SPOT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The view is held in military circles here that the tenderest spot on the present Italian front, the one which offers the most advantage to the Austro-Hungarians to carry, and which would threaten Italy in a vita lpoint, is the Montello region, where the enemy has made important gains, but is being held at the present time by Italian and British troops. The Austrians selected the position held by British troops to make their attack, and the prompt arrival of Italian reinforcements prevented the enemy from breaking through.

An Italian military expert said today: "The Montello region must be cleared entirely, because the danger point is there. The crossing of the Piave is double-edged—as dangerous for the Austrians as for the Italians. The Italians have not yet used their reserves, and unless the Austrians have sufficient material and reserves to upset whatever the Italians may undertake, there is a possibility of the Austrians along the Piave having to recross that stream under heavy Italian fire, suffering as heavy losses as have been inflicted upon them while crossing it.

"The whole attention of the Italian General Staff and people, however, is concentrated on the Montello situation. The capture and holding of that position by the Austrians would give their artillery command of the plains below and would seriously hinder the operations of the Italians.

"We are confident, however, that it will not be long before the advantages the Austrians have gained in the first onrush will be neutralized by some Italian counteraction."

RESENTS GERMAN BREAD PRICE

Vorwaerts Predicts "Greatest of Ill Feeling" from Increase.

AMSTERDAM, June 19.—The Berlin Vorwärts, the German Socialist organ, in announcing the increase in the price of bread to 5 pfennigs per pound, says that this price will bring the landowners 1,000,000,000 marks surplus profits and necessarily will be followed by increases in the cost of milk, butter, and beef.

The Socialist Party, says the newspaper, has formally protested to the Government on the ground that the increase will be sure to create the greatest of ill-feeling.

the same village and on the same road and seated at table in the same wayside inns.

Most inquisitive eyes are for the Americans, who are the latest types to enter this arena where the battles of the world's destiny are being fought. The intonation of their voices is a new note in the villages through which one passes, and there is a sense of a new chapter of history having been opened when one asks the way from one of their traffic men or gets a salute in American style or meets a column of lads on the march, with long packs down the middle of their backs and a ragtime tune on their lips.

They are coming now in a steady flow which laps over wide tracts of the country, where three years ago the new British armies were billeted and encamped on their way to the fighting lines. This visible proof of big numbers, these crowds of tall lads who come tramping through France, the vanguard of greater armies, makes one feel safer from the horrible menace that has always sprawled over France since August of 1914, and in them is the hope that whatever may happen in danger or in tragedy, the worst of all can never happen now.

So yesterday it was good to get into the middle of the moving tide of American troops, and see it break and trickle into the many little hamlets of France where there were regimental or battalion or company headquarters. It was good to hear the tramp of all these feet, to see these passing waves of lean, bronzed faces, to crawl carefully in one's car through an avenue of American boys, lying on each side of the forest track sleeping or smoking a little before the next stage of the march.

All Novelty to Our Boys.

Romance has gone from our army a long time ago. These scenes of war have become too familiar to the British for any sense of romance, and most of the British are realists, to whom the adventure of war has become routine and boredom between hours of abominable danger, but to American soldiers it is all a new and wonderful adventure, and those who are stale to this aspect of things find a new interest in these familiar surroundings because of the novelty of it all to the newcomers.

So I was somewhat thrilled yesterday when I found American soldiers fixing up the headquarters of a regiment in a little old Château of France. It was queer to see them there, and the very shape of their packs and their baggage, dumped down below the steps, their unconventional method of shaking down into new quarters, the staff officers, who collected in a group and discussed the problem of transport, which limits their baggage to a third of their desires—it was all refreshing, as though one had grown a little younger, for all these men are four years younger in war than the British, and it seems a wonderful youth to them. The look of the French village, the first sight of a strafed town, the little ways of the French peasants, and the broken English of the French children are novel and amusing and they find huge entertainment in every incident of the day, as the British armies did in the Summer of 1914.

I saw an American soldier yesterday squatting at the roadside with his back to a wall and a French child by his side. Her head was on his shoulder, and he had a book in his hand. He pointed to a word, which the child read and he repeated. He was taking his first French lesson.

Well, they are coming over fast, these lads, and all the British officers who have been with them tell me that they are keen and quick to learn any little tricks the British can teach them by old experience. The spirit of the latest divisions arriving is as good as that which has been proved already on the battlefields, and that is wonderful. They are a little homesick, I am told, because of the strangeness of everything in France, and I am glad of that, because the more they love their homes the quicker they will help finish this war, and the quicker the better for all this world of homesick men. The new British drafts are splendid, too, and it is to me a very moving thing to see these lads who come out with the youngest classes to fill up the gaps in the ranks of older men. Some of them look very young, but hard and fine as they go swinging by with rifles slung, the future heroes of battles that alas must be fought before the end comes.

The British are ready now for any attack the enemy may launch upon this front, and I give him fair warning for what it is worth, that when he attacks next time he will come up against lines of men who will make him pay as great a price for any gain as those who held him round Arras, who flung him out of Villers-Bretonneaux, and smashed assault after assault between Givenchy and Bethune.

FRENCH SMASH 3 DIVISIONS

the enemy from scoring even an initial success. The artillery preparation lasted for several hours and was one of the most terrific yet carried out. High explosives from hundreds of cannon intermingled with numerous poison gas shells.

To the east of Rheims the Germans at first made some advance, but were soon thrown back to their original position, and a considerable number of them were taken prisoners.

At noon today the gunfire was still very heavy, but the attack may for the moment be regarded as a complete defeat for the attacking forces.

Official Story of the Repulse.

PARIS, June 19.—The failure of the violent attack made last night by the Germans upon the French positions protecting Rheims is thus described in the day report from the War Office:

Last night at 6 o'clock the Germans delivered a violent preparatory artillery fire along the whole front of Rheims from the region of Vrigny, west of the city, as far east as La Pompelle. At 9 o'clock the enemy infantry began an attack on the French positions between these two points.

The French troops resisted the German attack with complete success, the counterbarrage of the French artillery proving very strong.

Between Vrigny and Ormes German assault troops were stopped by the French fire and forced to return many times to their lines of departure and were not finally able to reach the French positions.

Around Rheims violent combats developed, in the course of which the enemy suffered heavy losses and was everywhere repulsed.

East of Rheims the fighting likewise ended to the advantage of the French. The Germans, having been successful in penetrating the woods northeast of Billery, were driven out by a French counterattack.

Prisoners taken in the region of Rheims declared that the town was attacked by three divisions, which were ordered to take the place at all costs during the night.

The War Office's night bulletin says:

There was no event of importance during the course of the day.

On June 18 our air squadrons brought down or put out of action six German airplanes and set fire to one captive balloon. Our bombing machines dropped ten tons of projectiles last night on railway stations, cantonments, and bivouacs in the region of Villers-Franqueux, [northwest of Rheims,] Faverolles, and Fismes.

The front of the new German attack is the semi-circle drawn by the enemy about the City of Rheims in the recent offensive on the Aisne front. The Rheims region comprised the left flank of the German attack. Ground was given by the French on both sides of the cathedral city, but the town itself and the nearby protecting forts were held against the German onslaught and have since remained in French possession.

Rheims, however, was hemmed in on three sides by the enemy, and it has been considered only a question of time when the Germans would make a concerted movement to oust its defenders. The front of the present attack, from Vrigny, west of the city, to La Pompelle, around the semi-circle to the east, is approximately fourteen miles.

MINIMIZES RHEIMS BATTLE.

Berlin Report Styles It "Surprise Fire Attacks."

BERLIN, (via London,) June 19.—The attack on the French positions near Rheims is described in the official communication from General Headquarters today as a surprise bombardment by artillery and mine-throwers. Infantry detachments later brought in about fifty prisoners.

The text of the day statement follows:

There were lively infantry reconnoitring activities. Patrol attacks at Nieppe Forest and northeast of Bethune were repulsed. The artillery battle revived in only a few sectors.

Southwest of Dommiers an attack delivered early in the morning by French regiments in Villers-Cotterets Wood failed. In the course of the day assaults several times repeated pressed back slightly into the interior of the wood our line which projects to the east of Mount Gorent (Montgobert?). In the Clignon sector, northwest of Chateau-Thierry, several enemy companies who advanced to the attack were repulsed by our advanced posts.

Our artillery and mine-throwers directed strong surprise fire attacks against the enemy positions near Rheims. Infantry detachments which followed up the fire preparation brought in about fifty prisoners.

Twenty-three enemy airplanes and three captive balloons were shot down yesterday.

BRITISH VICTORS IN RAIDS.

LONDON, June 19.—Raids by both combatants on the northern sectors of the British front are reported in today's official dispatches. The British, besides recapturing a post near Vieux Berquin, have taken a few prisoners northeast of Bethune and have raided German trenches south of Hebuterne and repulsed a German raid east of the last-named village. German artillery activity increased somewhat today in the Albert sector and southwest of Ypres.

British airmen yesterday destroyed fifteen German machines and disabled five. Eight British airplanes are missing.

Field Marshal Haig reports tonight as follows from the front:

In a successful raid we captured a few prisoners and a machine gun Tuesday night northeast of Bethune.

On Wednesday morning a hostile raiding party was repulsed with loss east of Hebuterne.

The hostile artillery was somewhat more active Wednesday in the Albert sector, in the neighborhood of Locre and Dickebusch Lake.

The day War Office statement reads:

A raid attempted by the enemy in the Locre sector was repulsed by French troops.

The hostile artillery was active yesterday evening in the Ancre Valley, about Mericourt, and during the night has been active in the neighborhood of Merris, (Flanders front.)

We carried out a successful raid last night south of Hebuterne.

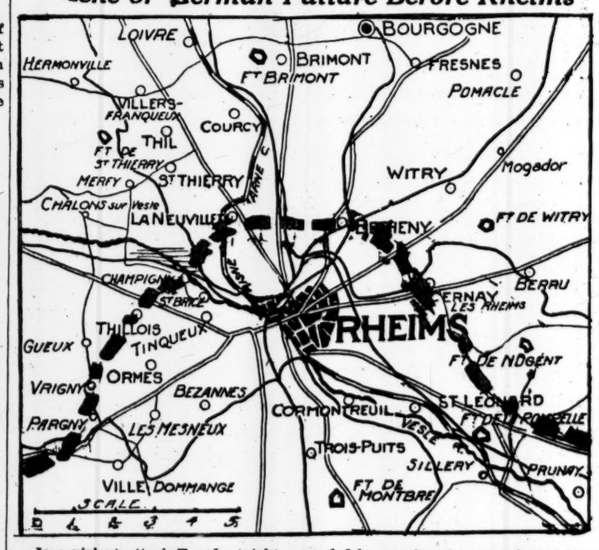

In the Vieux Berquin sector a party of our troops attacked and recaptured one of the posts taken by the enemy in this locality on the night of June 14. We secured a few prisoners and two machine guns.

The official statement on aerial operations tonight says:

It was cloudy Tuesday, but we were able to get observation. In the air fighting we destroyed fifteen German machines and disabled five. Eight of ours are missing.

Nineteen tons of bombs were dropped in the course of the day. A heavy rain at night prevented flying.

Scene of German Failure Before Rheims

In a violent attack Tuesday night, preceded by an almost unprecedented bombardment with gas and high explosive shells, 40,000 German troops were utterly defeated in their attempt to capture the city of Rheims. They did not succeed in making a gain at any point of the semi-circle, (indicated by a broken line,) which they had drawn around the city to the northwest, and cast in their recent advance.

AUSTRIA'S EFFORT CALLED HER UTMOST

General Maurice Figures 33 Divisions Were Engaged Out of a Total of About 60.

By Major General Sir FREDERICK MAURICE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, June 19.—It is now possible to appreciate with some accuracy the extent of the Austrian effort and what it has achieved. The attack on June 15 was made by three armies, one under von Wurm, on the lower Piave, another under Archduke Joseph, on the Montello sector, and the third under von Scheuchtenstuel, in the mountains.

Attempts were made to drive home attacks across the Piave on a front of seven miles, extending from Capo Sile, a little village immediately to the north of the Venetian lagoons, to Fossalta, the axis of attack being along the railway to Mestre. This effort has so far yielded the capture of Capo Sile, which lay immediately behind the Italian front line, and is surrounded by marshes, so that further progress here should be matter of great difficulty for the enemy, and an advance along the Mestre railway to a maximum depth of three miles on a front of four miles as far as the Fossalta Canal.

The remaining attack on the Lower Piave appears to have been made on a ten-mile front, mainly to the north of the Treviso Railway, and has so far failed almost completely, since the Austrians have only succeeded here in establishing two small bridgeheads on the right bank of the river near Candelu and Maserada.

Archduke Joseph's attack against the Montello seems to have been made simultaneously against the northern and eastern faces of the ridge on a front of about ten miles. The attack on the northern face has failed, but on the eastern face the Austrians have crossed the river on a front of six miles, and pushed their advance about two and a half miles forward toward the main crest, from which they are still three miles away.

The total front on which the attack was actually pushed home was therefore not much less than fifty miles in extent, and in these efforts the enemy has engaged about thirty-three divisions out of a total of some sixty on the whole Italian front.

In the intervals between the main attacks the Italian lines were everywhere heavily bombarded, and numerous demonstrations were made to distract the attention of the Italian command, some of these extending as far to the west as the neighborhood of Lago di Garda and Monte Adamello, thirty miles further north. There is therefore no doubt but that Austrians have made the largest effort of which they are capable, and that they aimed at nothing less than driving the Italian armies out of the plains of Venetia and the capture of Venice and Padua.

Little Danger to Venice.

In comparison with this ambitious program, the results achieved are insignificant. The only one of the attacks on the lower Piave which have made any material progress, the most southerly, leads the Austrians into a region intersected by marshes and by numerous wide canals, which drain the Venetian plains into lagoons. There is, therefore, little immediate danger of a direct advance upon Venice.

The enemy's gains on Montello, on the other hand, hold out to him some prospect of development, for this ridge dominates the Italian lines along the lower Piave, and if it fell into the enemy's hands he might be able to gain possession of the whole line of the river to the south and open up a fresh front of attack upon Treviso and Venice. This, therefore, is at present a most interesting and important part of the battlefield.

General Diaz, being relieved from anxiety as to his vital flank in the mountains and now fully warned of the enemy's plans, should have had time and opportunity to dispose of his reserves so as to defeat any further attempts of the enemy to extend his hold upon Montello. The success of the Italian higher command in divining accurately the enemy's intention has already contributed greatly to the severe checks which he has suffered, and it is reasonable to expect that it will continue to do so under the easier conditions which now prevail.

The Austrians may be expected to employ their last available man in an endeavor to obtain some material return for their heavy losses, and it is probable that to Archduke Joseph will fall the unpleasant task of saving his country's face.

The Austrian claims in prisoners and guns are high, but in the past these have proved to be exaggerated, and are probably so in this case. The guns taken no doubt include light trench guns and mortars, favorite weapons with the Italian Army, and considerable numbers of them would naturally be placed on the forward slopes of Montello, which have fallen into the enemy's hands.

Altogether, Mr. Bonar Law's statement in the House of Commons that no offensive on this scale throughout the war has at its initiation secured so little success as this is amply justified.

Opens a Chance in Russia.

The information which we have obtained from this offensive as to the strength of the Austrian forces in Italy, together with our knowledge of the extent of their commitments in Albania and on the Rumanian front, and of their dwindling resources in man power, justify the conclusion that Germany will get no help from her allies in Russia, if circumstantial reports which have come to the effect that Hindenburg has been forced to make further large calls on the German troops in Russia in order to maintain the strength of his armies in the West are true.

Then a great point is added to Mr. Asquith's appeal to us not to shut our eyes to what is going on in Russia, and to the future relations of that country to the allied cause. He stigmatized, with justice, the policy of allowing Russia to stew in her own juice as one of fatal shortsightedness, and there can be no doubt that if, as now seems reasonably certain, the Austrian offensive ends in failure, and the German forces in Russia, which consist at most of thirty-seven divisions, largely composed of third rate troops drawn from older classes, are still further reduced, the opportunity will be very favorable for a last attempt to save something from the wreck of the allied caue in Eastern Europe.

AMERICANS READY FOR GERMAN ASSAULT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE, June 19.—For the past three days there has been comparative quiet in the American sector, northwest of Château-Thierry. This does not mean that there has not been a great deal of harassing artillery activity on both sides, but there has been no infantry action and no change in the lines, either American or German. The Americans have advanced their lines as far as their plans called for, and as far as can be done at present.

There is much speculation as to what the next ten days will bring on our front. While it is known that the German command is very much displeased with the American successes, it is not at all established yet that it plans to punish the fighters from the United States. The enemy's digging in, and his other activities might indicate that he was satisfied to sit for a while on the line northwest of Château-Thierry, which is in the form of a salient not yet put in line by the German efforts further to the north.

The damage done our units in ten days of fighting is being rapidly repaired, and if the Germans make another drive where American troops can meet them they will find them ready.

DEFENDS RUMANIAN TREATY.

King Summons Jassy Parliament to Make "Painful Sacrifices."

AMSTERDAM, June 19. — Rumania concluded peace because to resist further would have exhausted the country to the point of destruction, said King Ferdinand in his speech from the throne at the reopening of the Rumanian Parliament at Jassy on Monday. The peace treaty was then submitted to the Legislature for approval.

The King said that Rumania had accepted the peace forced upon her as a necessary condition of her existence. The treaty manifestly imposed painful sacrifices, he said, but the Rumanian people would examine it with the manliness, which an exact comprehension of the interests of the State demanded.

He alluded with satisfaction to the fact that the war had brought back the Moldavian land, thrown the Bessarabian people into the arms of Rumania and restored friendship with the Central Powers. Good relations with other countries, he said, were still maintained and plans were on foot to resume normal diplomatic intercourse.

Queen Marie, who has opposed the peace treaty, did not appear at the opening of Parliament and the diplomatic corps was not invited to attend.

To Let Fighting Aliens Return.

WASHINGTON, June 19. — Immigration law bars to the return home of aliens who have declared their intention of becoming American citizens and who now are serving with American or allied forces abroad would be removed by a joint resolution passed today by the Senate. It has passed the House, and now goes to the President for his signature.

HUNGRY AUSTRIANS CLAMOR FOR PEACE

ployes needed an increase in wages of 50 per cent. in order to live at all.

Dr. von Wimmer replied that the utmost limit of expense had already been reached and that the State could not possibly bear a heavier burden. All that he could promise was "further discussion" next Fall.

Potatoes, Flour, and Fats Cut.

The Arbeiter Zeitung in a heavily censored article discusses the dire distress outside of Vienna and in places where war industries have been established. In many communes, it says, the people have had no potatoes for four months, and no fats or flour have been distributed. The children are going to school hungry. In one place near Vienna bread supplies sufficient for two days are supposed to last for a whole week. The newspaper complains of the paucity of supply from the Ukraine, and the rest of the article was censored.

Editorially, the Arbiter Zeitung points out that the Austrian note circulation is 22,500,000,000 crowns, as compared with 2,500,000,000 before the war. It makes a strong plea for peace and condemns the action of the German semi-official organ, the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, in cutting off peace discussions with a blank negative. The newspaper laments that there is no Parliament in session while the country is in the midst of a most terrible economic crisis.

The Berlin Kreuz Zeitung publishes a Vienna dispatch from a "well informed source," saying that Austria-Hungary cannot independently propose a concrete peace program or even the outline of one, for fear that the enemy might use it for propaganda purposes, although the dispatch adds that a properly authorized offer from the opponents of the Central Powers to discuss peace possibilities would not be rejected.

Bread Strikes Threaten to Spread.

LONDON, June 19.—According to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Zurich, there has been a considerable number of strikes in Vienna and Neustadt owing to a reduction in the bread ration. At one time the police were compelled to disperse the rioters.

The dispatch adds that an almost general strike is expected and that the situation is considered grave.

Austria's grain supplies have completely run out and such food of this nature as she is getting is coming from what Germany has allotted to her from the Ukrainian supplies, according to indications in a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

This message quotes an interview with Herr Paul, the Austrian Food Minister, obtained by the Vienna correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt, in which the Minister confirmed the news of the recent reduction in the Austrian bread ration. This, he said, was due to insufficient supplies from Bessarabia and Hungary. The entire 1917 harvest from these sources had been distributed and consumed, the Minister stated, and the Rumanian harvest had also been used up, bringing the entire process of replenishment to a full stop, the Government therefore being obliged to reduce the ration.

The supplies exported from the Ukraine were very unsatistactory in quantity, the Minister said, while the agreement that had been made with Germany several months ago had been altered, with Germany taking over the entire distribution of the Ukrainian supplies. Of these certain quantities were guaranteed to Austria.

URGES EVACUATING MANY FROM PARIS

SEES SHELLING POSSIBLE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—Louis Puech, one of the group of French Deputies who are considering the defense of Paris, makes the frank recommendation in today's Matin that a partial precautionary evacuation of the city be begun now.

"We have so often lacked foresight," he says, "in the course of the war and should not again expose ourselves to the accusation of not taking precaution against the most remote perils."

The Deputies have no fear of the Germans ever actually reaching Paris, but they have the possibility of bombardment in mind in their daily deliberations.

"The cannonading," says M. Puech, "may bring us continuous surprises. It is not impossible that the range of guns will be materially increased. Paris and its suburbs under daily fire would become uninhabitable.

There is no doubt of panic should an agglomeration of 5,000,000 be so situated, to say nothing of the destruction of property. It is necessary to seek the best means to avoid at any cost such a double catastrophe. Let us take people away. There are in Paris old people, children, refugees, sick, innumerable citizens who have no occupation or duties to retain them here. The advantage of their evacuation now is self-evident.

"If Paris becomes a point of intensive bombardment the exodus will be general and the means of transport limited. By the most rapid methods we cannot evacuate more than 150,000 a day. Why risk panic and disorder by delay? It would be better now to afford free transportation to all who have no means of going, and thus move 50,000 a day in good order.

"But these are only precautions in case of new circumstances arising. The public fully understands. Normal life in Paris has not been disturbed."

Meantime, Paris is catching up on lost sleep, because, despite the fact that the moon is nearing full, misty nights and frequent showers have kept airplane raiders away for several nights and several days.

Public Does Not Fear Bombardment.

PARIS, June 19.—News of the Austrian repulse on the Italian front, the comparative quiet on the French and British lines, silence on the part of the long-range guns for six days, and the inability of the Gothas to cross the terrific defensive barrage in their last three attempts to reach Paris, only one German having succeeded in flying over the city, have caused the tense nerves of Paris to relax. The city has assumed an appearance nearer that of before the war than at any time since the opening of hostilities.

With the Germans fifty miles from Paris, the chief topic of conversation is the victorious stand the Italian armies are making and their successful counterattacks, which cause keen delight here.

The announcements in Swiss newspapers, attributed to the inspiration of the German General Staff, predicting that Paris will be subjected to an intense bombardment within a few days, are meeting with cynical comment untinged by any touch of perturbation.

"The Germans have as much chance to enter Paris as I have to occupy du Barry's apartments or the Palace at Versailles," was the remark of a girl worker, given as an indication of the temper of the rank and file

"But if the Germans should get within bombarding distance of Paris and shell the city, would you go?" the young woman was asked.

"Yes; go to work as usual," she replied.

The Germans have attempted fourteen air raids upon Paris since Jan 31, but only twenty-two of the more than 300 machines which took part in them have succeeded in flying over the city, according to a record of the enemy efforts published in the Excelsior this morning.

The newspaper comments upon the effectiveness of the aerial defenses of Paris thus indicated. Nine of the twenty-two machines which penetrated the barrier, it adds, were brought down by the French defenders of the capital.

FOUGHT FOR TWO HOURS WITH U-BOAT RAIDER

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 19.—Reports of a running fight of two hours between an American steamship and a German submarine off the Virginia coast last Monday night were brought here today by an incoming vessel, which received them by wireless. The American vessel was undamaged, and it reported that its observers were unable to determine whether any shot had struck the U-boat.

The submarine was said to have opened fire at a distance of half a mile and the naval guard on the American vessel returned it. The American vessel, the reports said, refused radio offers of assistance. She finally escaped, although the U-boat was said to have launched two torpedoes during the battle.

LANDED AT ENEMY TRENCH.

MONTREAL, June 19.—Details of the capture by the Germans of Lieutenant Wilfred V. Casgrain of the American flying forces, a resident of Detroit and a nephew of the late T. Chase Casgrain, former Canadian Postmaster General, were made public here today by the Bureau of Communication of the Canadian Red Cross.

His machine badly damaged in combat on May 30, Lieutenant Casgrain had to make a landing in No Man's Land, twenty feet in front of the enemy lines. Immediately German infantrymen covered him with their rifles, and he was forced to walk into their trenches.

Two Germans, taken prisoner after his capture, reported that he was unhurt.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

After a lapse of several days the fighting in France again flared up yesterday. In the battle of the Aisne and the Marne, the Germans drove the French lines in on both sides of Rheims, until that city is inclosed in almost a perfect semicircle, one end of whose diameter is just north of Ormes and the other just north of Fort de la Pompelle. Last night's assault was evidently intended to be a surprise attack. The obvious intention was to prolong the curve of the semicircle and thus get the French down in the level country south of the city, after which the capture of Rheims itself might be accomplished. The French, however, were apparently in force here just as they proved themselves to be on the western flank of the Marne salient, and the Germans were beaten back without gain.

Th principal points of attack seem to have been on the front between Vrigny and Ormes on the west and against Fort de la Pompelle on the east. This discloses the circling nature of the attack. It was relatively a minor affair, three divisions participating. But, taken in connection with the complete failure of the last German attack, it contains a measure of satisfaction by reason of the proved security of both of the French flanks. The loss of Rheims itself would not be alarming from a military point of view, as the city has been under fire for so long that it has ceased to have any military value.

On the Italian front matters are also making satisfactory progress, and the indications are multiplying that the Austrians are doomed to suffer a severe defeat. The fighting is not yet over, it is true. At the time the attack was launched, the Austrians had undoubtedly prepared for an offensive to last for some time. They had mustered their maximum strength in men and guns and launched the attack with completeness and thoroughness. The best they have and the most of it have been used prodigally and are still being thrown into the fight. This has not caused any rupture in the Italian lines, and there is not the slightest indication that it will. As a matter of fact, such a thing has now become practically impossible. It must come in the opening attack or not at all. Therefore the fighting has settled down to a series of pitched battles of great intensity, battles in which numbers are the most prominent element.

In such a game as this the Italians have a great advantage. If we consider only the front between Lake Garda and the sea—and we may safely do this, as the terrain on the other section of the front makes an offensive operation on a large scale impossible—the Italians have exactly the same advantage as the Germans have in France, the advantage of being able to operate along the spokes of a wheel while the Austrians must operate along the circumference. The Italian front is compact, fed by excellent supply lines, with numerous radiating branches, and able to shift troops with great rapidity. The Austrians' supply system is weak. There is an almost total lack of lateral lines running parallel to their battleline by which materials may be distributed, and but few direct lines running into advanced bases. In a prolonged battle, therefore, the advantage lies with the Italians.

Just to what extent the Italian positions have been damaged by Austrian inroads is not altogether apparent even at this time. In the mountains it is almost certain that the Austrians have been completely defeated in their effort to break their way through to the plain of Northern Italy. Not until the Piave is reached have the Austrians made any certain advance. The first point of importance along the Piave is the Plateau of Montello. This lies in a bend of the river, which touches its base all along both the northern and eastern sides. If the Austrians can master this plateau completely, the Italian lines along the eastern bank of the Piave will be placed in serious danger. Montello juts up out of low country, and is the only high feature in the plain. It is really the key point to the Piave line. But there is no indication that the Austrians have gained much more than a good foothold on it.

The Austrians yesterday mention fighting near Sovilla, which is a little village in the southeastern tip of the plateau, not more than a kilometer from the river bank. The advance, therefore, has been small, although the Austrians have made good their crossing of the river, and have apparently established a firm footing at this point. They have, however, been entirely unable to debouch from this crossing, and this is, after all, the test of the value of such an operation. To cross a river means nothing if you are unable to accomplish anything after you are across, and this means crossing on a sufficiently wide front to be able to spread out fanwise and initiate operations from the new bank. To cross and fail to do this places you in greater danger than if you had remained on the other side. And this is the Austrian situation today.

AMERICAN PATROLS CROSS THE MARNE

Two Parties Go Over in Small Boats and Clash with the Enemy.

KILL SOME, TAKE OTHERS

Machine Guns Later Disperse a German Force Assembled on the River Bank.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, June 19, (By The Associated Press.)—Two American patrols crossed the Marne east of Château Thierry early this morning. They established contact with the hostile forces, killed a considerable number of the enemy, and brought back prisoners. These were from Landwehr units, which is taken as an indication that no hostile attacks are intended at this point in the immediate future.

Heavy clouds obscured the moon and a light drizzle had just begun to fall when the two parties of Americans embarked in small boats and rowed across the river from two points of the wooded bank. They crossed without detection. One party entered the woodside held by the Germans and penetrated cautiously under the dripping trees for a few hundred feet.

A break in the clouds suddenly let the moonlight through, and the Americans saw Germans nearby. The Americans immediately opened fire from a little rise in the ground, and the Germans threw themselves flat. Rifles cracked, and then the automatics got into action. Those of the enemy who remained alive were taken prisoners. Twelve enemy dead were counted before the patrol made its way back to the boats and rowed to its own side of the river.

The other patrol met another enemy party, apparently sentries, going on guard. Several of the Germans were killed or wounded and one was taken prisoner.

In connection with these exploits it can be said that not a single German patrol has ever crossed to the American side of the Marne.

Late this afternoon American machine gunners discovered a hostile party in considerable numbers apparently making ready to attempt to cross the river. But after their guns were turned loose for a few minutes the enemy abandoned whatever plans he had.

The American artillery east and west of Château Thierry for several hours late last night and this morning deluged the enemy with shells. The projectiles burst along the roads and billets. The enemy retaliated today with numerous long-range batteries, but all were ineffective.

The Americans in the Woevre sent their first gas against the German lines from projectors this morning. A German raid at Remières Wood was repulsed. Some of the enemy were killed and one prisoner was taken.

Five bombing planes dropped thirty-eight bombs on the station and tracks at Conflans, (east of Verdun.) Several enemy machines were encountered on the way, but all of the American planes returned.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, June 19.—Lieutenant Frank Stewart Patterson of Dayton, Ohio, and Lieutenant Leroy Swan of Norwich, Conn., were instantly killed at the Wilbur Wright Aviation Field this afternoon when their airplane collapsed in midair.

The pilot lost control at an altitude of about 10,000 feet and the machine fell through the clouds, the wings collapsing. At a height of about 400 feet one of the men either fell or jumped from the fuselage, while the other man was caught in the wreckage of the machine.

PENSACOLA, Fla., June 19.—B. E. Sylvester of Plainview, Minn., and A. B. Blair of Richmond, Va., Naval Reserve aviators, were killed near the navy air station today when their airplanes collided. Both men were sent here recently from the Boston School of Technology to complete their training.

WOULD USE DRAFT MEN IN WAR SAVINGS DRIVE

New Plan Already Being Used Calls for Services of Those in Deferred Classification.

Plans for the organizations of draft men in deferred classification for an active part in the Government's war work were taken under consideration yesterday by the War Savings Committee of New York. If the plans mature, as the War Savings Directors believe they will, these men will soon be called on to enlist their services in pushing the new war savings drive which is now in progress. According to present intentions, the men who will take part in the campaign will be selected by the various local draft boards from Class 3. While service will not be made compulsory, the War Savings Committee does not believe that any man would decline the call of his draft board for work in the thrift campaign without a sufficiently strong reason.

Once selected, these men will make a house to house canvas of certain parts of the city. The new organization will be known as the National Auxiliary and will take part in all Government money raising campaigns now exclusively under civilian supervision. As the plans are still in a preliminary state, only twelve boards are now being organized for the work. These are 93, 96, 98, 102, 103, 104, 112, 113, 114, 117, 129, and 148. Board 96, on the lower east side, has already perfected its selling force and members have just concluded a successful week's work selling stamps and obtaining pledges during their leisure hours.

Should the eleven other local boards meet with similar success, branches of the National Auxiliary will be formed by the remaining seventy-five boards in this city. Charles H. Rowell of Draft Board 96, who is sponsor for the plan, and E. P. Mellen of the New York War Savings Committee, who is directing the organization work here, are anxious to see draft men working as integral parts of the Government's war activities in all sections of the country.

Mr. Rowell first mentioned the subject of summoning men from Class 3 to serve in Government war drives to the New York War Savings Committee some time ago. He pointed out that the men in this class were particularly suitable for the work, as the majority of them, though physically fit, are temporarily exempted from fighting by reason of dependents.

Cards were sent out to 300 men in Class 3 of Board 96 a fortnight ago. They were asked to meet at the Bowery Y. M. C. A., where the plan was outlined in detail by Mr. Rowell. Each man was asked to sign a pledge card making himself personally responsible for the purchase of a definite amount of Thrift and War Savings Stamps for the period of six months, and do all he could to encourage thrift and to obtain pledges for stamps from men and women in his district. Six captains were chosen, and the men, after stipulating the number of hours they could devote weekly to the work, set out in teams to canvass the district.

Mayor Hylan will officially open the new drive at the City Hall tomorrow. The Mayor will receive representatives of the W. S. S. campaign at City Hall at noon. Speeches will be made by Martin Vogel, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants Association and Chairman of the Pioneer Division.

BIG SUGAR SUPPLY IN UTAH.

Beets Enough to Fill Wants of State and 2,000,000 Troops.

OGDEN, Utah, June 19.—Utah will produce this year sufficient sugar beets to fulfill the wants of its half million population and then have enough to furnish an American army of 2,000,000 men with sugar for one year.

This was the statement today of J. W. Jones, sugar beet specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture for the inter-mountain district, at the convention of county farm agents in this city.

Utah's production for 1918 would reach 1,000,000 tons of sugar beets, Mr. Jones said.

COLUMBIA ATHLETE WOUNDED IN FRANCE

NEW YORK OFFICER KILLED

More than a score of men from the metropolitan district figured in the Marine Corps and army casualty lists issued yesterday.

Lieutenant Gordon Kaemmerling of the Marines, reported killed, was a Harvard man who was assigned from Plattsburg to Company M, Twenty-third Infantry, arriving in France last September. He formerly lived at 542 East Seventy-ninth Street, and in a letter which he wrote while his command was moving up to take part in the battle which resulted fatally for him, he told his mother how the men of his company were hiking fast along the roads of France to the fight and singing as they marched.

The Lieutenant's grandfather, Gustav Kaemmerling, was Colonel of the Ninth Ohio Volunteers in the civil war; his father was on the Olympia in the Spanish-American war and is now a navy Inspector at Camden, N. J., while a younger brother, Gustave Kaemmerling, has just been made a Lieutenant of Aviation. The dead officer's mother is active in Red Cross work.

Corporal Charles A. Parker, killed in action on June 2, lived with his widowed mother at 736 West 181st Street. Corporal Parker, who became 21 last month, was a student at Alfred University, Alfred, N. Y., when he enlisted immediately after the declaration of war. He was serving, when last heard from, in Company D, 9th Infantry. He was a nephew of Andrew D. Parker, who served with Colonel Roosevelt as Police Commissioner of New York.

Lieutenant Robert R. O'Loughlin, reported severely wounded, was Captain of last year's 'Varsity crew at Columbia. He left Columbia last year to attend Plattsburg, and as a Provisional Second Lieutenant arrived abroad with the 9th Infantry in September. He was in the first American contingent to participate in the Lorraine fighting, and there won a First Lieutenancy.

Captain of Columbia Crew.

O'Loughlin lived with his brother, Gerald O'Loughlin, at 702 St. Nicholas Avenue, and was 21 years old. His parents were Canadians. He attended the Barnard School for Boys and in the Fall of 1914 entered Columbia. He was a junior when elected captain of the crew. His class was graduated from Columbia two weeks ago, and at the class day exercises Lieutenant O'Loughlin was voted the most popular member and was declared to have done the most for Columbia. At the same time he was picked as the best athlete of the class. His brother is Assistant Counsel of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Second District.

First Lieutenant John D. Filley, Jr., reported severely wounded, is the son of John D. Filley, President of the American Manufacturing Company, Noble and West Streets, Brooklyn. His home is in St. Louis and it was there that the father received word yesterday of his son's injury. Lieutenant Filley is 24 years old and was graduated from Harvard in 1916. He was a member of the first Plattsburg camp and was assigned to the 23d Infantry, reaching France in September.

Private Samuel Amato, 19 years old, of 82 Knickerbocker Avenue, up to his enlistment last July in the 9th Infantry, was employed by the brokerage firm of J. E. Mostin, 25 Broad Street. An announcement sent to his father, Peter Amato, stated that he had died in action on June 11. Born in Italy, Amato had been in this country since the age of 6.

Private Ferdinand U. Santarpia, killed in action, was the son of Mrs. Theresa Santarpia of 34 Bolivar Street. He has two brothers serving in the Italian Army. He was a member of Company F, 9th Infantry, and enlisted ten months ago. Santarpia was only 19 years old.

Private Thomas F. Stuart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Stuart of 38 Beaufort Avenue, Jamaica, reported as severely wounded, is the youngest of four brothers now in France. Stuart enlisted more than a year ago in the Marine Corps, and a month later was ordered to France. He was wounded on June 6, a telegram to his mother stated. He was formerly an employe of the American Express Company.

Served on Mexican Border.

George H. Gore of 164 Coleridge Street, Manhattan Beach, has been severely wounded in action, according to a telegram to his father. Gore, 24 years old, is a members of B Company, Second Engineers, and served on the Mexican border. He was graduated at the Heffley Institute in 1914.

Private Henry August Miller, 21 years old, reported severely wounded, lived at 2,426 Palmetto Street, Brooklyn. His mother is seriously ill at her home and the news of her son's wounds has been kept from her. He enlisted last July in the 9th Infantry, leaving a job with an electrical firm.

After attending a motion picture theatre on Tuesday night at which she recognized in a picture of soldiers in France her son, Joseph T. Farmer, "looking the picture of health," Mrs. Catherine Farmer of 20 Riverview Place, Yonkers, received a telegram yesterday telling that he had been severely wounded in action. Farmer, who is 26 years old, enlisted a year ago, was trained at Fort Slocum, and then was sent to Syracuse, where he was assigned to the "Syracuse Brigade" that has figured largely in the recent fighting.

Private Knud E. Moller of the 9th Infantry, killed in action, was 24 years old and a native of Denmark. Before entering the service last April he boarded with Mrs. John McGinn, at 345 West Forty-seventh Street. Mrs. McGinn, who now lives at 546 East 138th Street, said that all of Moller's relatives were in Denmark.

Private Frederick Gerrisch, seriously wounded, lived with his parents and a brother and sister at 323 East Seventy-eighth Street. His mother said yesterday that he celebrated his seventeenth birthday on July 8 last by enlisting at Fort Slocum with Company E of the Ninth Infantry. He had written many cheerful letters from the front, the latest of them dated May 26, telling how the trench experience was having a good effect on the soldiers.

Louis De Palmo, reported killed, lived with his sister, Mrs. Jennie Roberto, in Newark, N. J., until last June, when he enlisted in the regulars. He was born in Italy, and his parents still live there. His name was listed as Palmer in the casualties.

Newark Man Wounded.

John L. Tinney, severely wounded, lived with his parents at 114 Sherman Avenue, Newark. He was graduated at the Miller School, and was in the grocery business until his enlistment two years ago. He sailed with General Pershing's original expedition for France. He was wounded on May 28, his mother said.

George W. Connolly, a marine listed as severely wounded, lived with his father, Thomas Connolly, in Nutley, N. J. He is 24 years old, and is a member of Company B, 45th Regiment of Ground Marines. A brother, Charles, is with the engineers overseas. In a letter dated June 7 Private Connolly said that he was in the trenches, but had not got into the fighting.

Private William Ruckert, severely wounded, lived with his parents at 946 Bloomfield Avenue, Glen Ridge, N. J., until his enlistment, a year ago. He was then 18 years old, and his German-born parents waived the age requirements to permit him to enlist.

A corrected telegram from the War Department, which Mrs. Robert D. Foote of Morristown, N. J., received yesterday informed her that her son, Robert D. Foote of the marines had not been killed in action but had been severely wounded on June 6. Foote is a graduate of the Fay and St. Joseph Schools in Southboro, Mass., and enlisted in the marines in November, 1915. He will be 21 next month. Every member of the Foote family is engaged in war work.

MEXICAN ALIENS TO ENTER.

Secretary of Labor Issues Order to Admit Workmen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—To aid in meeting the present shortage in unskilled labor, Secretary of Labor Wilson has issued a departmental order temporarily removing restrictions on the importation of Mexican labor to be used in certain specified occupations.

The order goes into effect tomorrow, and provides that during the present emergency Mexicans entering the United States to engage in agricultural pursuits, in railroad section maintenance, and in lignite coal mining will be exempt from the head tax, literacy test, and contract labor provision imposed by previous rulings.

This step supplements the order by which the Department of Labor, through United States Employment Service and the Bureau of Immigration, has arranged to bring Porto Rican laborers to this country for work on Government contracts. It is estimated that 75,000 islanders can be brought in when transportation is available.

As additional insurance that an alien admitted under the new regulations will leave the country at the end of the war emergency, it is provided that all Mexican laborers at the time of their admission shall open a postal savings account at their port of entry. Employers shall withhold from the workman's wages 25 cents for each day's service, which will be deposited to his credit in the local postal savings bank, available to him, with interest, when he leaves the country. After the aggregate withheld for each workman totals $100, only $1 a month will be withheld and deposited.

GERMAN REPRISAL THREAT.

Imprisonment of 10,000 French Civilians Is Contemplated.

AMSTERDAM, June 19.—When reports that 10,000 Germans have been expelled from China and interned in Australia are proved, says the Deutsche Tageszeitung of Berlin, the German Government will collect 10,000 inhabitants of French occupied districts and send them to prison until the Germans are returned to China and compensated for their losses.

AMERICAN SEIZED IN PARIS.

J. J. Stern, Wealthy Merchant, Accused of Commerce with Enemy.

PARIS, June 19.—Jacob Julius Stern, a silk merchant, claiming American citizenship, was arrested yesterday on a charge of commerce with the enemy. He was born in Germany in 1852, and thirty years ago went to the United States, where he founded the business firm of Stern & Stern, with his brother Emil, who is now in the United States. His two sons are serving in the American Army.

Stern's American naturalisation was questioned by the French authorities in 1915, but he took the matter into the courts and obtained recognition of his American citizenship, and the order of sequestration against his property was lifted.

Stern is a wealthy resident of the fashionable Passy district, where he owns a fine home, which was transformed into a military hospital at the beginning of the war.

The prisoner was placed in the Sante Prison without bail.

Jacob Julius Stern and his brother, Emil Stern, compose the firm of Stern & Stern, silk merchants, at 79 Fifth Avenue. Emil Stern gave out the following statement yesterday:

"Jacob Julius Stern is a member of our firm. We are in the dark concerning his arrest in Paris. We have had no word from Paris. Our firm has had no dealings with Germany or Austria, not even before the war. There is absolutely no truth in any statement that our firm has had any commercial dealings with the enemy."

Emil Stern added that both he and his brother were American citizens.

Pastor to Jail for Selling Liquor.

The Rev. Thomas B. McConnell, pastor of the African Methodist Episcopal Church of Roslyn, L. I., pleaded guilty to selling liquor to soldiers and was sentenced to one day in jail by Judge Chatfield in the United States District Court in Brooklyn yesterday. Two military policemen testified they met McConnell in front of his parsonage, asked him to get them liquor, and gave him $2. McConnell said he was afraid to refuse because of reports of hold-ups by soldiers.

DE BUNSEN IN CHILE.

British Commissioner and His Party Welcomed at Santiago.

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 19.—Sir Maurice de Bunsen, who is visiting South American nations at the head of a British mission, arrived here last night and received an enthusiastic welcome. The British Commissioner and his colleagues were welcomed by the Mayor of the city, speaking on behalf of the President. The British visitors were taken to their hotel in the State carriage, and the appearance of Sir Maurice was the signal for a manifestation of enthusiasm on the part of the people gathered at the station.

The central sections of the city were illuminated, and during the trip from the station to the hotel the crowds gave cheers for Great Britain and the Entente Allies.

Refunds for Stolen Rides.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A Government Railroad Conscience Fund was opened today with an initial contribution of $100 from a Western man more than 60 years of age, who wrote that in past years he had beaten his way as a harvest hand. He now repents, and is willing to send more money if necessary to cover his stolen rides.

THUG WITH A RIFLE RUSSIA'S NEW CZAR

BOURGEOISIE BURNED ALIVE

Men Whose Only Crime Was Decency Herded Together and Drowned to Make a Holiday.

"A new autocrat rules in Russia. This autocrat is the thug and his sceptre is the gun. He emerges from the marshy and criminal ranks of Russian life with no apparent object in view but to seize all he can get of whatever he can lay his hands on, and destroy it after he gets it. At one time he would have been styled a thief and a murderer and punished as such, but now he has achieved a new estate. No matter how steeped in crime, no matter what his record, he is now neither a thief nor a murderer—he calls himself a Bolshevik."

This picture of free Russia was presented to a TIMES reporter yesterday, not by one whom even the Bolsheviki could describe as a "capitalist bemoaning the loss of property which belonged to the people," or a "shrewd diplomat with a cunning imperialistic scheme," but by a young Russian whose only interest in Russia is to see it delivered from its present misery and horror. He is Simeon Gest, brother of Morris Gest, the theatrical producer, a graduate of the University of Liége, and most of his life a resident of Odessa.

Mr. Gest, with Mrs. Gest, has just arrived in New York. They left Russia after the Bolsheviki had taken control of Odessa and had made living conditions there impossible. They came by way of Siberia, their journey from the day they left Odessa, March 5, consuming more than 100 days. En route they were so often molested and impeded by Bolshevist disorders that they well-nigh gave up hope of ever reaching America. Only by finally disguising himself as a day laborer, with unkempt hair and clothing which made him look like an exponent of Bolshevism, was Mr. Gest able to get through Siberia with Mrs. Gest.

"I gave myself such a frowsy and disreputable appearance," said Mr. Gest yesterday, describing his flight, "that the Bolsheviki even appointed me commissaire of the train on which we were passing through Siberia, and as such it fell upon me to give the engineer directions as to where to go and where not to go, where to stop and where not to stop. To wear a collar and a cravat before a crowd of Bolsheviki is to wave a red rag in front of a bull. A man need really do very little more than insist upon having a bath once in a while to be suspected of deep counter-revolutionary intentions."

A Romance of Music.

Although Mr. Gest has never been in America before, the music lovers of New York owe him a debt of gratitude, for it was he who sent out of Russia under trying circumstances the orchestral scores which made possible the production in this country of Rimsky Korsakoff's "Coq d'Or," one of the big hits of the last operatic season. The objection of the Rimsky Korsakoff family to the production of "Coq d'Or" in pantomime form made very few of the orchestral scores available, and when the Metropolitan undertook to produce the opera no scores were to be had until Morris Gest communicated with his brother Simeon, who was then in Petrograd, and requested him to lure copies of the instrumental score out of Moscow.

After getting copies of the score in Moscow, Simeon Gest found himself without funds for the regular means of railroad transportation. He therefore upon improvised a cart out of a few boards, harnessed a horse, and dragged a load of "Coq d'Or" scores for 102 instruments a distance of sixty versts to the station from which he mailed the entire batch to his brother in New York. That's how "Coq d'Or" came to America.

Yesterday, however, Simeon Gest refused to make much of this exploit. His theme was Russia entirely, and especially Russia as he left it in the early periods of Bolshevist ascendency.

"The Bolsheviki made their presence first known in Odessa, he said, "by the inauguration of mob rule. Out of the slums, the very dregs of criminal life, these men who called themselves Bolsheviki came in great hordes to rob, pillage, and destroy. Conditions were especially frightful in the week of Jan. 27. The Ukrainians, having negotiated a separate peace with Germany, claimed Odessa as their own, which brought them into direct conflict with the Bolsheviki. Inasmuch as every criminal whom the general amnesty of the Revolutionary Government had released from prison, every thug, every drunken lout, foamed at the mouth with Bolshevism, the inhabitants of the city were driven to such desperation and fear that they were willing to receive with open arms any power, Ukrainian, German, or other, that would restore order rather than submit to a continuance of the Bolshevist nightmare.

"Consequently the young Russian officers and the military cadets joined the Ukrainians. They fortified the railroad station with guns and were able to resist attack from the Bolsheviki until the latter seized a big battleship in the harbor. From the battleship they trained their guns on the city and treated the inhabitants to a nightly bombardment for several nights in succession. Men, women, and children went crazy with fear. Under the protection of the battleship the Bolshevist Red Guards rifled the city high and low. They were made up of hooligans, released criminals from Siberia, drunken soldiers and sailors, and a mob of the unemployed, idle because they would not work.

Collar and Tie Divide Classes.

"Generally armed with rifles, revolvers, and machine guns, they inaugurated a program of robbery which resulted in widespread destruction of life and property. In the first place the Bolsheviki make their distinctions between one class as against another class of Russians very readily. Wear a collar and tie, and a Bolshevik with a revolver would accost you and call attention to the fact that your collar and tie damned you irrevocably as belonging to the bourgeoise and, therefore, as counter-revolutionary.

"Then they took the various streets of Odessa. Wherever they saw a row of quite respectable looking houses, they seized upon that zone as a field for immediate operations. Placing their machine guns in the street, they would bombard house after house, smashing windows, doors, and demolishing everything in the interior. That's what happened to the house in which I lived. None of the tenants were capitalists or of the wealthy classes. We were doctors, lawyers, engineers, &c., but the house was owned by a wealthy man. Consequently the Bolsheviki picked it out as an object of assault on several occasions.

"Machine gun bullets shattered my windows and scattered their impressions all over my ceilings and walls. My wife and I were in a constant state of terror, and one night, when the Bolsheviki started their attack, I decided to bar the door. I didn't want to open it, but I quickly changed my mind when I saw what was coming. When I opened a man with liquor on his breath faced me with a gun which he pointed at my breast, exclaiming:

"'You keep that door open or I'll kill you. You are all counter-revolutionary.'

"They rummaged through my apartment, seized everything I had not concealed, and in their search ran across a toy rifle over which they raised an awful clamor, because no one but a Bolshevik was supposed to have a weapon. They were about to take vengeance on me for having the rifle, although I talked myself hoarse trying to persuade them that it was only a child's toy and could never do any damage. One of them said he would see whether it could do any damage or not. He thereupon pressed it to my temple and pulled the trigger two or three times. Nothing happened and he gave me back the rifle, with a written acknowledgement that it was not a dangerous weapon and that I had been permitted to keep it. This acknowledgment saved me from attack on a future occasion, when the Bolsheviki again invaded the house and asked me about the rifle.

Pretext for a Clean Up.

"One day they seized an army officer who lived next door to me and had recently returned from the front. They dragged him away on the pretense that he was to be tried before a tribunal for some counter-revolutionary plot, but on the way they made short shrift of him by shooting him in the mouth. On this occasion the Bolsheviki went the limit. One of their provacateurs stood out on the street and fired a shot, which was supposed to have come from within the house. That offered a pretext for a clean up, and the Red Guards entered, asserting that the house was theirs, and that every one in it would have to depart, leaving all valuables behind.

"We became so desperate that we actually found ourselves fleeing to the leader of an anarchist group for protection against the Bolsheviki. This leader was a great big red female, who promised that the anarchists would protect us when the time came. But when the time came any resistance to the Bolsheviki was useless, because they had all the weapons, and any one who was not of them, was helpless. The streets during this period were crowded with drunken soldiers and sailors. They lay in the streets so thick you could walk on them.

"After 6 o'clock it was taking one's life in his hands to walk out. You would hardly have turned the first corner before a Bolshevik would approach out of some shadow and shout 'Hands up!' Hands up it would be if you valued your life. Then the Bolshevik would go through your pockets at his leisure and take whatever of value he found. That part of the performance completed, he would shout 'Feet up!' Again, if wary of your life—for he always held a gun to your face—you either held one foot up at a time or sat on the ground with both feet in the air while the new-born champion of revolutionary Russia would calmly proceed to remove your shoes. It was not an uncommon spectacle to see young women on their knees pleading with the robbers to leave them at least one piece of clothing in which to make their way home.

Call for 10,000,000 Rubles.

"Under the decree of the Soviet of Workmen Without Work, the Bolsheviki one day issued a decree that the rich of the city should turn over to the Bolsheviki 10,000,000 rubles forthwith. The Mayor advocated that the 10,000,000 rubles be utilized for inaugurating public works which would give employment to the great army of unemployed, but the Soviet of Workmen Without Work considered his suggestion counter-revolutionary. On Jan. 20 Colonel Murajev, the Bolshevist leader, came to Odessa on the pretext of cleaning up the Rumanian plutocrats. He ordered that all the bourgeoisie assemble in front of the City Hall at 3 P. M. They assembled, but the Mayor was not with them, whereupon Colonel Murajev demanded why the Mayor was not there to receive him.

"The Bolsheviki issued a decree that the bourgeosie must pay 40,000,000 rubles for no reason but that they believed that sum existed in the city at the time. They seized ninety-six of the richest men in the city and imprisoned them until they paid over most everything they had.

"One day they seized all the army and naval officers they could find and took them down to the waterfront, where they drowned them one after another. They took General Tomashevitz, President of the League of House Owners in Odessa, hurled him into a furnace of a battleship and burned him alive. Among the men they drowned was a Dr. Suckalov. The physician's wife hired a diver to rescue her husband's body. The diver descended, and the drowned men, he said, below drove him mad.

"The people had no protection against these outrages. On being attacked you might call to your assistance some gendarmes, only to find that the gendarmes had also become Red Guards and were out to rob you."

Hopes for Intervention.

"Russia needs help," declared Mr. Gest. "The Russian people are crying for help. The Bolsheviki, at the most, represent only 10 per cent. of the total population. But that 10 per cent. is armed. The other 90 per cent. is unarmed. The result is chaos and robbery. I am an ardent believer in allied intervention, for only in that way will Russia be saved from the beasts who are now devouring her. The Russian people, once given a point about which to rally and means of protection would rise and crush Bolshevism without difficulty, because it thrives on robbery and has no moral principles whatever behind it."

Siberia, Mr. Gest said, was the most available starting point for a movement against Bolshevism, because in Siberia were to be found at present a strong organization of that Government which Siberia established independent of Russia before Kerensky fell. That organization has been strengthened by an influx from Russia of able men whom the Bolsheviki have driven from Russia. Among the leaders of this organization are Admiral Kolchak, General Putiloff, and Minister of Trades and Industries Konavaloff, who has just come to America.

"There is even the foundation of an army which the allies could use for the purposes of intervention," said Mr. Gest. "That force consists in the 100,000 Czechoslav troops, experienced fighters, and devoted to the allied cause. The Bolsheviki have disarmed many of them because they feared the Czechoslavs were intent upon joining General Semenoff. Thousands of them have already reached Vladivostok, which is their general point of destination, where they would be easily accessible to the allied expeditionary force, if that force were put into action quickly enough."

Before leaving Vladivostok, Mr. Gest said, he heard from good authority that former Premier Alexander Kerensky was in China, and was at that time intending to make his way to America.

"Many of Russia's really great men are now in Siberia. They are waiting for the end of the nightmare. Russia looks now to the United States for the help that could restore her again to her place in the great family of allied nations."

SENATORS DEMAND THAT WE AID RUSSIA

Fall Wants Troops Sent—Kenyon Urges That Jugoslavs Be Encouraged.

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Urgent demands that the United States carry the war against Germany into the East by sending American troops into Siberia were voiced today in the Senate. At the same time a warning was sounded that Germany may make the seemingly impossible a fact by driving through Siberia and invading the United States and Canada through Alaska. An appeal for moral support of the Jugoslavs and Czechoslovaks was made, incidentally to the general discussion.

Senator Fall of New Mexico, foreshadowed a warm discussion of aid to Russia and collateral questions when the $12,000,000,000 army bill comes before the Senate within the next week. Senator Fall said he would insist that the Senate, in providing for a great increase in the military force, say something as to how the additional men shall be used. He urged that the United States initiate a new policy of strategy, and instead of sending men to the "slaughter house of the western front" pick out the weak spots in Germany's armor and attack there. Italy, the Saloniki front, and Siberia were the weak spots, Senator Fall said.

"I want to ask what we are going to do with an army of four or five million men," went on Senator Fall. "I am in favor of such an army, but I insist it is the constitutional right of Congress to say where troops shall be used. I think Congress has the right in providing for the raising of armies to say they shall be used in Siberia, Mesopotamia, Palestine, or on any front it sees fit.

"The point of attack should be the weakest fronts. Instead of throwing men into the slaughter house on the western front, we should pick out the weak points. They are in Italy, on the Saloniki front, in the Balkans, and in Siberia. I think we have the right, in prosecuting the war, to say how many men shall be used in Siberia."

He also declared in favor of letting Japan go into Siberia, and recognizing Japan's preponderating political influence there.

"The situation of Russia," said Senator Lewis of Illinois, "compels the United States to take some action to aid her in obtaining arms and supplies to repel the German invasion and defeat the intended absorption of Russia. "The United States must invite the Czechoslovaks, Poles, and other people of Russia who seek nationality to fight for freedom. The United States must aid these people to join in an army and protect Siberia and Central Russia from being absorbed by Germany to be turned against France and Britain and then hurled in all its strength against the United States by way of Behring Strait and from Alaska and the Pacific Ocean.

"If we can place a force of native or resident Russians who want freedom into an organized army this will occupy Germany on the Russian front and drive German control from Russia."

Senator Kenyon of Iowa made a plea for American encouragement to the Czechoslovaks in their fight for freedom.

"The world," he said, "is going to understand some day the part being played by the Czechoslovaks in this war. They have been silent, enduring sufferers. In the very heart of Austria-Hungary, believing in the righteous cause of the Allies, they join with them in every way they can to stimulate their success. The papers each day bring news of revolt and rebellion among the Czechs against Austrian rule. Last week at Prague they tore down the flag of Austria and raised in its place the flag of Bohemia."

MASARYK ADVISES WILSON.

Favors Material Aid for Russia Rather Than Military Action.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Material aid for Russia rather than sending an armed force as the best means of offsetting German intrigue was recommended to President Wilson today by Professor Masaryk, head of the Czechoslovak National Council in America and former member of the Austrian Parliament.

The President was told that it would not be practical at the present time to send an army into Russia unless it could be one of overwhelming numbers. Professor Masaryk said that American statesmen, engineers and business men should be sent first to educate the people and develop the resources of the country.

Russia would not only submit, but would welcome intervention by the United States if the proper diplomatic preparation were made, Professor Masaryk said. He expressed the opinion that Japanese intervention might be practical if preceded by diplomatic advances.

RED ARMY DISAPPOINTS.

Trotzky Now Wants It Used to Gather Harvest.

MOSCOW, June 8, (Associated Press.)—Addressing the all-Russian Congress of War Commissioners, called to discuss plans for a compulsory army of bread crusaders, Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevist War Minister, said that the Red Army was a great disappointment, as less than one-third of the number desired had been recruited and the quality of the recruits was poor. He urged that demoralization and disorganization be banished, and that the best of the Red Army organizations be thrown into the fertile districts to gather grain and eliminate the question of famine.

"I know that gigantic tasks confront us," he said in conclusion, "and many among the Soviet leaders are getting discouraged and downhearted and gloomy before future prospects. But those will do better to step aside and not impede us by their whining and grumbling.

"We war commissioners have come here to get more faith, energy and knowledge from each other, and I still believe we can save the country, knowing full well that the liberation of a people requires many long years and that mistakes are only natural and necessary to teach us and the people how to avoid them."

WANT BLACK SEA FLEET.

Proposals Made to Turn It Over to Germany or Turkey.

MOSCOW, June 10, (Associated Press.)—The Ukrainian delegates at the Russo-Ukrainian peace conference in Kiev demanded that the Russian Black Sea fleet participate with Germany against the Allies. This demand was supported by M. Maximoloff, the Ukrainian Minister of War.

The Soviet Government's delegates rejected the demand, and semi-official advices received in Moscow say that M. Joffe, the Soviet Ambassador in Berlin, and the Bolshevist Commander of the Black Sea fleet, Sablin, have been advised that Russia will not consent.

GENEVA, June 19.—The Official Journal and Tanine, of Constantinople, just received here, set up the claim that the entire naval and mercantile fleet of Russia in the Black Sea should be turned over to Turkey. These papers give a long list of Turkish naval units lost during the war, and contend that as Austria, Germany and Bulgaria have obtained immense booty and rich territories from Russia and Rumania, the Russian Black Sea fleet should legitimately go to Turkey.

RUSSIANS ASK INTERVENTION.

Far Eastern Committee Pleads for Expedition to Siberia.

PEKING, June 19, (Associated Press.)—The Far Eastern Russian Committee for the Salvation of the Motherland has resolved to appeal, through Japan, for immediate intervention in Siberia by Entente allied forces.

The Russians say there would be no difficulty in establishing an allied army in Siberia. They frankly deprecate a purely Japanese expedition on the ground of what they term Japan's imperialistic and racial antagonism and memories of the Russo-Japanese war.

OUR "ANGER WITH MEXICO."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 19.—What is termed "Uncle Sam's anger with Mexico" is the subject of an article in the Berlin Vossische Zeitung, which alleges that it has learned by way of Berne that the American press is uttering threats against Mexico for the pro-German attitude of its press.

The Zeitung asserts that American newspapers, especially The New York Evening Post and those controlled by William Randolph Hearst, are carrying on a campaign against President Carranza, and that even South American States, such as Chile and Peru, are attacked for their so-called German attitude.

The Berlin paper says that President Wilson maintains the same attitude toward Costa Rica, refusing to acknowledge its President, and asserts that the only Latin-American State with which American public opinion is satisfied is Colombia, which has acquired merit by discovering German agents and plots.

Shipping Profits Restricted.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of Gaston, Williams & Wigmore, Inc., held yesterday, retiring Directors were re-elected. The meeting was held in the company's new building at 39 Broadway. George A. Gaston, President of the corporation, made a brief statement, as follows: "Notwithstanding that during the last three or four months Government restrictions, embargoes, and the restricted amount of shipping space have greatly curtailed the company's business, the earnings for May just compiled are in excess of dividend requirements. The business being offered continues large but, as heretofore, we are able to accept only a portion of it on account of the above-named limitations."

Healthy Teutons Freed as Invalids.

ORSHA, Mohilev, Russia, June 9, (Associated Press.)—The exchange of invalid prisoners between Russia and the Central Powers, which has been going on for several weeks, is proving advantageous to Germany and Austria-Hungary, as under that guise they have been sending home ablebodied men who, to the eye of the physician in charge of the sanitary train on which the correspondent traveled to Orsha, "produced the impression of being well men."

Of 653 prisoners, the train carried only forty-three who were bed-ridden and about sixty ill, while the remainder, mostly Austrians, were quite strong, healthy, and cheerful, in striking contrast to the returning Russians, who, with few exceptions, were seriously ill or crippled.

The Bloshevist Chairman of the Prisoner Exchange Committee explained to the correspondent that ablebodied prisoners were being sent home by local Soviets in order to get rid of hungry mouths. The Germans always repatriate a smaller number of men than they themselves receive, being reluctant to let useful laborers return home. The sanitary train on which the correspondent traveled had received 301 Russians for 481 enemy prisoners. Usually the difference is about 100 less.

Another thing the correspondent noted was the considerable number of enemy officers returning home, some looking exceedingly well, while not a single Russian officer was on the trains the correspondent inspected at Orsha. This circumstance no one could explain.

Returning Russians told of their ill-treatment by the Germans in simple but eloquent words; how their boots and clothes had been taken by the Germans when they entered hospitals and never returned to them, wooden shoes and torn trousers and jackets being given to them instead, in which they were driven to work in snowstorms and the cold; how they had been starved, watery soup being given to them after a hard day's work, and how they were forced to gather potato peelings in pits where slops were thrown and eat them after they had been washed in order to appease their appetites.

These statements were coroborated by a steward who had witnessed hungry and sick Russians pick bones found in the mud near the station at Moldechno, southeast of Vilna. The men told their stories in a simple, impersonal way, and even smiled during the narration. But they vowed they would not forget the atrocities, sufferings, and humiliations to which they had been subjected.

GERMANS DEBATING A TRADE OFFENSIVE

STRONG HOPE IN COLONIES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 19.—"Wirtschaftskrieg" (economic war) is the popular cry for the moment, and the organs of the Right and the Left are devoting columns to this burning question. Raw material, food, and other necessary imports, and the best means of procuring them, shipping and how it may be controlled during the bridging over of the period after the war, &c., are the subjects discussed daily. Then, the Pan German and annexationist papers are beginning to feel that it is time the public realized that military victory is not everything and that the Entente have strong weapons in their hands.

The Norddeutsche Allegemeine Zeitung article cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES recently openly admitted this. The papers, however, do not cease to talk of Germany's brilliant military victory, while the peace offensive and the economic war talk continue.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung pretends that Hindenburg has wrecked France's last illusions, snatching from her even the promised "help of the Americans." It says:

"That which has arrived up to the present and has been tried on the west front has been badly beaten and driven back."

The paper naturally does not mention the German losses, but points out that what the Entente has lost in men and material during the last offensive may be otherwise interpreted in America but not in Europe. If France still has hopes for a favorable peace in consideration of the promised American help and "fear of the Americans in the Fall," who are not yet arriving, the paper says, then, this hope must also be buried.

Blow to After-War Program.

The big gathering of Hamburg and Hansa merchants, which met to consider economic questions, such as shipping, exports, and imports, in a practical way as well as the future of foreign diplomacy, was attended by Prince von Bülow, as well as many prominent Reichstag members, including Vice President Dove, the Conservative Members Dietrich and von Westarp, and of other representatives of parties such as Stresemann, Rechenberg and Naumann.

Ballin and Huilderman of the Hamburg-American Line made conspicuous speeches. The latter closed his speech with the words of the South-German merchants, "Down with the Berlin organization," and the whole tenor of the speeches appears to indicate that the Hansa towns, which control one-third of the foreign trade in peace time, consider the economic after-the-war strategy, as well as the bridging of the period, as being badly organized, and that there must be freedom from wartime measures and control of shipping at the cessation of hostilities, while more stress must be laid on export and less on embargo of imports, and gold should be exported to improve exchange.

This meeting was the occasion of a fête for the Hansaites, and the Hamburg-American Line ran a special train for the delegates from Berlin in its usual enterprising way.

Dernburg for Economic Aims.

Bernhard Dernburg, who in a recent article in the Berliner Tageblatt, answered questions regarding Wilson's "force speech," returns to the question of the econnomic war and Germany's chances. Dernburg repeats what he said then, namely, that in view of the scarcity of raw materials and tonnage in all countries and the needs of industry, a peace based on the acquisition of raw materials is impossible and not to be contemplated, and that Germany must have a guarantee of the things necessary for the reconstruction of the empire. The writer considers these questions of an imperative and immediate importance, saying:

"Economic war is as important as military war and, therefore, a war aim of the first importance."

Considering the situation of the Central Powers, the writer points out that Germany leads in the Continental sphere, strengthened by a league with Austria, to which Turkey, Bulgaria, and the border States will ally themselves. He says that the second big circle includes the whole of Anglo-Saxondom on both sides of the Atlantic, the English dominions and the Atlantic colonies; and, thirdly, comes the big empires of the yellow races with a tendency to expand toward Siberia under Japan's leadership. Under the emblem of "Asia for the Asiatics," Japan intends to have supremacy of the Pacific. "That is the reason why I designate India as a strived-for territory between the second and third groups of powers." he says. This is, of course, Germany's old dodge for trying to stir up trouble between America and Japan and England, and a game to which the papers revert with untiring zeal and perseverence. Also the question as to whether Japan will intervene in Siberia has been of vital import to the Germans, and is followed with keen interest.

Hope in Asiatic Powers.

The writer pretends that China and Japan are not as bitterly opposed to the Central Powers as to the Anglo-Saxons. He says:

"Without attacking in Europe, Japan is constantly strengthening her armaments and increasing her influence, and America, without an enemy in the Pacific, is strengthening her coast and islands so that Japan asks 'Why?'"

Dernburg here quotes an alleged speech of Secretary Daniels in regard to the Yellow Peril, and further asserts that the feeling between England and Japan is at a tension over the Indian Ocean. The writer also alleges that, whereas there are conflicting interests between the Mongols and the Anglo-Saxons, there is no such feeling between the Central Powers and Eastern Asia, which are now joined by a vast land-bridge. The writer pretends that all these conditions improve Germany's economic position, and that the Entente will be obliged to come to terms.

Seeks Riches of Africa.

Professor Dove of Freiburg University discusses Germany's African aims in the Vossische Zeitung:

"Nothing has convinced the Germans more of the necessity of a colonial empire than the present lack of raw materials in all spheres," he says.

The professor points out that the German colonies have not sufficed up to the present, but if they had only been as big as the Belgian Congo, they would have sufficed to supply Germany with foreign articles. The South Sea Islands must certainly be returned, says the professor, and it is not a matter of indifference where Germany's colonies are situated, as the home people consider; he adds further that the favorite theory of rounding off territory owing to facilities for their protection also is an error.

The paper says that the chief object of the colonies is to deliver raw materials to the mother country, lays stress on the richness of ultra-tropical Southwest Africa in minerals and diamonds, and points out that the point which has often been overlooked is that considering the number of the inhabitants of South Africa, the trade is most lucrative and that the British Union and Southwest Africa promise to be good buyers. The article says:

"It would be a great mistake to renounce this territory because it is not near the other colonies and borders on the British territory." This article is fairly frank in the admission that Germany does not expect to get all her colonies back.

POLES ON THE WEST FRONT.

PARIS, June 18.—Fighting under the national flag of Poland, the first Polish regiment of the first Polish division entered the front-line trenches opposite the Germans today.

Within the sound of the roar of cannon and in the presence of civil and military authorities, the regiment received its battle flag and entered the war on the side of the Allies.

"It is a reply to Germany's contention that the Polish question is settled," said General Archinard, chief of the Polish Military Mission to France.

Poles who have escaped from Germany and Poland or who have succeeded in leaving America and other countries form the bulk of the Polish legion which may shed its blood tomorrow against German autocracy in the defense of liberty and the autonomy of Poland.

Among those present at the simple military ceremony were R. V. Dmoski, representative of Poland accredited to the Allied Governments; Major Coolidge, representing the United States; General Merrone, Italy; General Gouraud, France; Captain Gellgood, Great Britain, and General Archinard, who will command the Polish forces.

Amid an impressive silence the chaplain of the regiment, facing the troops and raising both hands above his head, gave them this oath:

"I swear before God, before the Holy Trinity, that in allegiance to my country I am ready to give up my life to the last drop of blood in the service of the holy cause of Poland, to obey my chiefs and to remain true to Poland, one and indivisible."

General Gouraud then confided the Polish flag to the safekeeping of the legion as a Polish military band played the Polish national anthem.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, June 18, (Associated Press.)—In connection with the presentation today of the Polish flag to the first Polish regiment of the initial Polish division, it may be noted that Polish troops under officers of their own nationality have been for some little time in the line in one of the interesting sectors of the front. They have done exceedingly well in the work they have so far had to do, carrying out raids and bringing down a German airplane in the first few days of their occupation of the position. Other units are undergoing training back of the line.

R. V. Dmoski, former leader of the Polish Nationalist Party in the Russian Duma, and now a representative of Poland accredited to the Allied Governments, who was present at the flag presentation ceremony, told the correspondent that the Poles who had been sent from the United States to France for work behind the lines were clamoring to become combatants. He said that American military training could not well be given them because most of them did not understand English, but if they were turned over to the Polish National Army, where only Polish was spoken, their training would take but a few weeks. The men, he added, had the making of excellent soldiers.

CHEER PAGE AND AMERICA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, June 19.—Albert Spalding, the New York violinist, now in the American Air Service, delivered a most stirring speech at Orvieto, doing homage to the Italian troops engaged in the fierce battle at the front.

Ambassador Page chanced to be motoring in the neighborhood and, hearing of the ceremony, expressed a wish to be present. When Mr. Page appeared in the theatre box he received a most enthusiastic ovation, the whole audience rising to their feet and acclaiming America.

Spalding said: "I am sure I correctly interpret the sentiments of the Italian public when I declare that in these days of crisis and anxiety it is right that one should hear the voices of all the free, allied nations of the world."

He continued by expressing his admiration and that of his compatriot for the splendid fight the Italians are now carrying on at the front. These words were received with frantic cheers.

Spalding also gave a short, clear account of the wonderful activity in the United States, explaining America's entrance into the war; and he ended by saying the United States now has 2,000,000 men under arms.

"That which a year ago was a dream, has now become a reality. If last year it was a dream for us, this year it has become a sinister nightmare for the Germans."

COPENHAGEN, June 19.—According to the Berlinske Tidende, a pilot of Christiania, Norway, who was many years in the Kaiser's service when the latter was traveling in Norwegian waters, has now returned his order of decoration to the German Legation at Christiania with a letter saying that these orders are now disgusting to him on account of the murder of his brave comrades by German submarines.

FOE OF WAR CALLED TO POWER IN SOFIA

EX-PREMIER HORSEWHIPPED

Radoslavoff Denounced as Kaiser's Tool—Crisis Causes Fall in German Stocks.

AMSTERDAM, June 19.—M. Malinoff, former Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, has been asked by King Ferdinand of Bulgaria to form a Cabinet to succeed the one headed by M. Radoslavoff, which resigned this week.

Commenting on the selection of M. Malinoff, the German papers point out that he was originally a strong supporter of Russia, but regard it as hardly probable that he cherishes such inclinations after the events of the last year or two. The Kreuz Zeitung adds:

"Nevertheless, we will not conceal the fact that it is regrettable for Germany that there should be a change in the Bulgarian Ministry."

The paper finds comfort in the "loyalty of King Ferdinand, who is accustomed to hold the threads of the foreign policy in his own hands."

The Cologne Volkszeitung says that a crisis has existed in Bulgaria ever since the conclusion of the Bucharest peace, but that the censorship has prevented any allusion to it. The Bulgarian parties, it says, did not forgive Premier Radoslavoff for failing to return from Bucharest with the entire Dobrudja. This, together with the food situation, led to the defection of a large section of Radoslavoff's supporters.

According to Germania of Berlin the food situation in Bulgaria brought about Premier Radoslavoff's resignation.

The food problem in that country, the newspaper adds, is becoming increasingly difficult. Its supplies are entirely exhausted and the nation is asking advances of grain to cover the time until next harvest. The Central Powers, Germania says, cannot give Bulgaria this aid to the extent desired.

LONDON, June 19.—The resignation of the Bulgarian Cabinet caused a sharp decline on the Berlin and Frankfort stock exchanges, says an Amsterdam dispatch to The Morning Post.

While the German newspapers say that the resignation of the Radoslavoff Ministry will not affect the Bulgarian foreign policy, uneasiness is felt in Germany, as it is clear that strong differences exist in Bulgaria.

M. Malinoff, who has been summoned to form a new Bulgarian Cabinet, has been prominent in political circles in Sofia for some years. He is the leader of the Bulgarian Democratic Party and became Premier on July 17, 1913, succeeding M. Daneff.

He failed to form a new Cabinet, however, and became a leader of the Opposition Party. On Sept. 24, 1915, he was one of a committee which protested against "the adventurous policy of throwing Bulgaria into the arms of Germany and attacking Serbia." The committee warned King Ferdinand against becoming an ally of Germany, stating that this was contrary to popular sentiment and the interests of Bulgaria. It protested solemnly against the policy of making common cause with Germany against Russia, which they said was Bulgaria's friend and liberator.

In October, 1915, shortly before Bulgaria entered the war, M. Malinoff was designated as spokesman of the Opposition parties to treat with the Ministers of the Entente Powers in the hope that war might be averted.

UPSET A SHOCK TO BERLIN.

Popular Feeling Against Radoslavoff Strong in Bulgaria.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—A dispatch to The Daily Express from Amsterdam says that according to reports which reached The Hague today the resignation of Premier Radoslavoff of Bulgaria comes as an unpleasant surprise to Berlin, although the German newspapers have been ordered to say the contrary. The resignation is not the outcome of any difficulty between the King and the Prime Minister, but of the growing discontent of the Bulgarian people, who are, after the Austrians, the most war-sick people in the world.

Ever since Radoslavoff's return from Bucharest, popular feeling has increased against him. One popular grievance against his administration was that he had plunged Bulgaria into endless misery without even taking advantage of a present opportunity to make sure of the whole of the Dobrudja. The opposition campaign against Radoslavoff had as its watchword that the Prime Minister was a mere instrument in the hands of the Kaiser.

Radoslavoff was recently horsewhipped in the Sofia streets and did not dare leave his home without escort.

What will happen in Sofia is naturally a question of great importance for Germany, where nobody seems to be sure that things will remain as they were. The Frankfurter Zeitung's Berlin correspondent openly threatens King Ferdinand.

"We hope," he says, "that Bulgaria will remember that the policy inaugurated by the King and Radoslavoff healed the wounds of the 1913 war and brought Bulgaria success after success. Any change in this tested alliance would only endanger Bulgaria's conquests."

BRITISH LABOR FULLY LOYAL

Agitation Against War Service Ceased with the German Drive.

PARIS, June 19.—The Petit Parisien publishes an interview today with George H. Roberts, the British Minister of Labor, in which he asserts that since the German offensive all agitation concerning the withdrawal of men from their jobs for service in the army had ceased among workers in factories and mines, with the exception of the revolutionary minority of inveterate strikers and pacifists.

The mass of the British working classes, Mr. Roberts said, was frankly patriotic, and refused to meet the enemy under any circumstances until he had laid down arms or repudiated his rulers.

OUTRAGE BY TURKS MAY PRESAGE WAR

certain relations between Turkey and Persia and assertion by the former of the right of sovereignty over Persia and the well-recognized inability of the latter to resist the Turkish troops, there is little doubt here that the Washington Government will hold that the responsibility for the outrages has passed to Turkey, and that, if the first reports are substantiated, the existence of a state of war between Turkey and the United States must be declared.

Consul Paddock and the other Americans at Tabriz were believed to be making their way overland either to Teheran, some 400 miles from Tabriz, or to Hamedan, where they would strike the great caravan route leading to Bagdad, from which city a British force has been sent out toward Tabriz. Mr. Paddock is said to be much experienced in Oriental countries and is regarded as well able to take care of himself and his companions.

Known as Colton Hospital.

Officials of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in New York identified the American hospital sacked by Turkish troops at Tabriz, Persia, as the Colton Memorial Hospital, which was endowed by a Philadelphia family by that name and established several years ago through the Presbyterian Board. The hospital's staff normally consists of three medical members and eleven girls' boarding school teachers and evangelical workers.

Dr. Charles W. Lamme, formerly of Easton, Penn., the medical director of the institution, is now on his way to this country on leave. He left Dr. Edmund M. Dood, whose home is in Montclair, N. J., in charge, it was stated.

The Whipple Memorial Hospital, the woman's branch of the station, has as its medical supervisor Dr. (Miss) Mary R. Fleming, formerly of Hilladale, Md.

In addition, the board announced the following as having been members of the hospital's staff:

Miss G. Y. Holliday, Indianapolis, evangelist; Miss E. Jean Wells, Paris, Texas, nurse; Miss G. L. McKinney, Newton, Ind., teacher; the Rev. James C. Crothers, Baltimore, Md., evangelist; the Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Jessup, Auburn, N. Y., teachers; the Rev. and Mrs. Burt S. Clifford, Chicago, evangelists; Thomas Lisle Peters, Slippery Rock, Penn., teacher, and Dr. W. S. Vanneman, Salem, N. J., physician.

The Board had not received information about its workers in Tabriz since June 14, when a dispatch was received through the State Department that the Kurds, a roving and savage mountain tribe, were in the vicinity and that the women and children were preparing to leave for Hamadan and Kasvin, cities about 250 miles southeast of Tabriz.

"We are not worried about the lives of our missionaries in Tabriz," said Dr. Stanley White, Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, yesterday. "They will no doubt have to suffer inconveniences, but we do not think they are in danger of losing their lives. It is said that no foreigner is so safe in Persia, Assyria, or any part of the Turkish Empire as an American missionary. They have done so much good that the people always look out for them."

BERNHARD NOW URGES A POLITICAL PEACE

Pan German Writer Says War Cannot Be Ended by Military Action.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—The correspondent of The Daily Express at Amsterdam notes a glaring admission of Germany's political failure in the East, contained in Georg Bernhard's leading article in Monday's Vossische Zeitung. This fierce Pan German Liberal writer, who has been chanting the might and divinity of Germany's good sword since the war began, now recognizes his error. He says:

"We see every day more clearly that this war cannot be ended by any military, but only by political, action."

After recounting all the opportunities missed by Bethmann Hollweg to bring about a decent peace, Bernhard writes:

"The question is whether we want to end the war by an international peace conference or in separate peaces, as we have done so far. Separate peaces mean protracted war, for which we need not only strong nerves but food and raw materials, which we can only obtain from our enemies' countries.

"The Russian bridge that we have built in the east is not safe enough for us to engage in a new campaign with the mere chance of securing what we need. Already this reason makes it imperative that the peace treaty of Brest-Litovsk be revised. We might also offer a separate peace to France; but, then, on such terms that no French Cabinet would care to reject it, as it would mean its own immediate undoing.

"One of the things we must never do is to use England as a mediator between ourselves and France. Our peace offer to France must be made direct, nor must we ever offer England a separate peace, for England is neither ready to sacrifice France nor even to make peace. We must remember that England will strain every nerve to end this war with a general peace conference, for such a conference is England's best chance.

"What must we Germans do then? Simply try to act in such a way that we shall enter the conference room with as many friends as possible."

OFFICIAL DECOYED TO DEATH

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, June 19.—Hu Chien-chang, formerly Chief of the Peking gendarmerie and latterly Governor of Shensi, was shot at Tientsin by command of Hsu Shu-cheng on account of his alleged monarchist tendencies and seditious propaganda among the troops.

It appears that he was invited by Hsu Shu-cheng to attend a conference at headquarters. He complied, and was summarily executed. A mandate issued later sanctions this execution. It is believed that this will lead to serious trouble, as the Yangtse Tuchuns will certainly object.

An important conference was called today to discuss the financial situation in Manchuria, where the Japanese have established exclusive privileges.

It is believed that the nomination of Hsu Shu-cheng for the Presidency is acceptable to the North and South. Importance attaches also to the Vice Presidency and Premiership, either of which exercises power.

The Immediate Relief To Italy Fund

No Delays. No Red Tape. Contributions Cabled Weekly.
The Money You Give This Week Will Be Doing Its Work Next Week

LITTLE WAIFS OF THE WAR—ITALIAN REFUGEE CHILDREN

It is "now or never" for Italy. The Enemy's Great Offensive against our brave Ally has begun, in a final effort to crush her before America's Armies arrive.

Critical as is the situation at the Italian Front, it is even more so behind the Line.

The Military Hospitals are in great need of immediate help, for their most vital work is to heal the wounded and send them back again to help hold that hard-pressed Line. Hospital supplies of many kinds, such as anaesthetics, can be purchased in Italy with the money to do so—money is the basic necessity.

Fifteen Hundred Thousand Refugees, most of them destitute, have flooded down from the invaded provinces into cities and towns and villages whose inhabitants are already greatly weakened by the long strain of war and need help to bear this added burden.

Italy's Civil Population generally is also suffering much privation and is threatened by even greater distress.

Exchanged Prisoners in great numbers have come back to Italy tuberculous and physically wrecked and incapable of supporting their families or themselves.

Thousands of those Maimed and Blinded in Battle, though healed, are still incapacitated and untrained to earn a living.

The Italian Government is forced to use the major part of its resources for the prosecution of the war—to keep back the Invader.

Italy's Most Pressing Need Today is for Money for Immediate Relief, to reach these critical conditions behind her fighting lines and thus support her heroic defence.

A Chain Is as Strong as Is Its Weakest Link, no stronger. The Italian Front is the Weakest Front in the Western Allied chain—because it is the most difficult front to hold. If Italy breaks, France will be in the grip of the German pincers, pressing from north and south, and our Common Cause may be lost.

Money Contributions to this organization insure certain and immediate relief; for, after deducting a very small portion of the same for our modest overhead expenses, all such contributions are transmitted weekly by our Banker to Italy's accredited representative to this country, His Excellency the Italian Ambassador, and cabled by him immediately to authorized centres of War Relief Work in Italy, from where His Excellency secures proper acknowledgments of all remittances.

The Italian Relief Organizations, as the result of much experience through Earthquakes, Eruptions, Epidemics, and in the Tripolitan War, as well as in the past three years of the present conflict, are exceptionally efficient and can be trusted to expend the funds received by them effectively and economically.

If You Love Italy, if she has ever meant anything to you intellectually or spiritually, help her now in this hour of her supreme need.

As You Love Our Common Cause, Help Italy, whose defeat may mean our defeat.

Kindly send us a check now, making it payable to "The Immediate Relief to Italy Fund," and forwarding the same to our Banker, Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall St., New York City.

GERMANIC ALLIES FEEL HUNGER PINCH

MOST ACUTE IN AUSTRIA

But Famine Is Making Bulgars Restive and the Turks Also Are In Straits.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, June 19.—The subject of economic conditions is one that is attracting a great deal of attention in the enemy press from Berlin to Sofia, and the composite picture presented is one of unmitigated gloom.

In Germany the increase in the prices of cereals comes into force at an early date. By it, as the Vorwärts points out, the people's bread will cost them roughly one and a half cents a pound more, and the greedy agrarians of the empire will benefit to the extent of $25,000,000, and that at a time when, it says scornfully, "the insufficient food and high prices of all the necessaries of life are breeding unrest and discontent in profusion throughout the country."

Berlin at the moment is suffering from a total lack of fruit and vegetables and that scarcity prevails in many other cities and towns.

The German people, too, are being warned that it will be well to obtain their Winter supply of coal now, for a great scarcity of fuel is expected later on.

It should always be remembered that conditions in Germany vary greatly with each locality. While Berlin lacks fruit and vegetables on their tables, people living ten miles outside the city may have a superfluity, for which it is generally organization which is at fault.

If we turn to Austria the state of affairs is quite different. The whole country is suffering, and organization can do nothing simply because supplies are nonexistent. For instance, the authorities of the North Bohemian town of Schluckenau, in a region populated mainly by Germans, took the extraordinary steps of sending a message to the German Kaiser saying that the town had been for a whole week without bread and flour, and in the name of the German population begged his Majesty to secure the dispatch of foodstuffs in order to make good the deficiency, "because only in that way can a catastrophe be avoided."

The Austrian authorities held up the message and are calling the Schluckenau authorities to book for this "inadmissible proceeding." It shows, however, how hopeless is the food condition in the Dual Monarchy.

The council in question knew from bitter experience that it was useless to appeal to their own national authorities.

The Austrian and Hungarian papers, indeed, are filled with reports from all parts of the country telling of similar conditions to those prevailing in Schluckenau. The Vienna correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt reports that Vienna's bread is to be reduced by half. That is a fine piece of official mockery. For a long time the working population of the capital have been unable to obtain the half ration they are entitled to and have often had to go without.

In the provinces of Austria some time ago the bread ration was reduced to that extent officially, but, really, people would be glad if it were possible to obtain even that amount—630 grams a week per head.

The Vienna authorities, says the correspondent, endeavored to postpone such action as long as possible because the great majority of workers in the capital are employed on war work.

The Food Minister told the correspondent that the provincial supplies, and also those from Rumania, were exhausted. Hungarian conditions, he said, were bad, and there were disturbances in traffic.

The only consolation the Minister could give was that the new harvest was approaching, and that the fat and meat rations would be increased—a promise, by the wya, often made before, but never carried out.

Several papers, too, state that the increased opposition, which led to the resignation of Radoslavoff, the Bulgarian Premier, has been caused to a great extent by the bad food conditions, while reports come from Turkey of general discontent and suffering on account of the all-around food scarcity.

DISTRESS IN DENMARK.

Workers Are Idle, Prices Exorbitant, Supplies Running Low.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, June 19.—Danish-Americans returning to visit their native country find to their disappointment that the war has caused an unprecedented decline in the dollar's purchasing power. As a matter of fact, the cost of living is now far higher in Denmark than in the United States.

Meals procurable in Chicago at 75 cents cost from $2 to $3 in Copenhagen. An ordinary $25 suit costs at least $60. The cheapest shoes are $10. A dollar shirt fetches $3. American 50-cent socks are priced at $2. Inability to secure American goods has necessitated poor substitutes, costing three to four times more than the real article.

Inferior German typewriters are supplanting the standard American makes, which are unobtainable by dealers, and they fetch as high as $500 in the private trade.

The whole country is empty of automobiles, owing to the lack of gasoline and petroleum. As a result, business is seriously handicapped. The fuel want has caused a reduction of the train service to one-third of normal. Passenger fares and freight rates have been doubled.

Numerous factories are shutting down, including the tobacco industry, which is unable to obtain fuel and raw material. Hops are becoming the favorite tobacco substitute, while acorns and barley are taking the place of coffee.

More than 25,000 workers are idle and the number is growing daily as more industries close their doors. Trading in kind is supplanting money purchases in the provincial towns. The housewife is happy to secure a spool of thread for a couple of pounds of flour. Thread is sold out at the stores and so scarce that clothes cannot be mended or buttons sewed on. The farmers are killing milch cows for beef cattle, owing to the lack of feed. Every acre must produce grain, a part of which must go to Germany in order to secure therefrom a limited coal supply.

The situation is the gravest in the country's history.

Unless America permits manufactured products, cloth, petroleum, feed, and other necessaries to reach Denmark, the suffering this coming Winter will be most intense. The official and salaried classes are particularly hard hit, and many are compelled to raise loans requiring a lifetime to repay. Rents are soaring to altitudes beyond the average family's means. Building activities are at a standstill for lack of materials. The municipalities are caring for thousands of families in the public buildings.

SEEKS CURE OF SOLDIER ILLS

Dodge Wants Red Cross Money Set Aside for Medical Research.

The War Council of the American Red Cross announced yesterday that it had received a request from Cleveland H. Dodge, who subscribed $1,000,000 and various smaller amounts during the Second Red Cross War Fund drive, that a part should be set aside for the investigation of remedies from diseases to which soldiers were exposed. Mr. Dodge promised a gift for this purpose last April. In his letter on the subject to the War Council, Mr. Dodge said:

"I have been deeply interested in the research work which the Red Cross has been doing and proposes to carry on in the future for the purpose of seeking causes and methods of prevention and cure of diseases in the army and navy. The wonderful results which you have already obtained in ascertaining the methods of transmission of trench fever have been most gratifying to us all, and I should take great pride in feeling that part of the money which I am contributing can be used for these purposes.

"In keeping, therefore, with my promise, made early last April, I hereby request you to set aside and create a restricted fund of as much of my contribution to the Second Red Cross War Fund, not exceeding $250,000, as may be necessary for the proper and most thoroughgoing conduct of medical research designed to ascertain methods for the prevention and cure of diseases to which our soldiers and sailors may be exposed."

The War Council was anxious to have gifts to the Red Cross designated for the special purpose of research work, so that no work of the kind which might require animal experimentation would be done, except with money whose use for the purpose had been specifically authorized.

STRAUS THANKS THE MAYOR

Chairman of Service Board Bespeaks Continued Felicity.

Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, sent a reply yesterday to the letter of congratulation which he received from Mayor Hylan. Much of the credit for straightening out the subway labor tangle was given to Mr. Straus by the Mayor, who in the same epistle accused the press of attempting to mislead the public concerning the attitude of the Board of Estimate concerning the situation. Here is Mr. Straus's letter of acknowledgement:

Hon. John F. Hylan, Mayor of the City of New York, City Hall, New York City.

My Dear Mr. Mayor: I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of yesterday, and to thank you for the same, wherein you so generously congratulate me for my co-operation in the recent conference of the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in bringing about a common ground for the purpose of ending the strike upon our subway construction and for promoting unity of action on the part of the two bodies over which you and I respectively preside.

In accepting your congratulations, with thanks, I do so with the statement that you and your colleagues on the Board of Estimate are no less entitled to share with me and my fellow-Commissioners equal credit for agreeing upon a plan of adjustment which I trust will lead to a speedy completion of the main branches of the rapid transit system.

The problems that we have before us for the speedy completion of the subways, largely growing out of war conditions, are serious and complex and therefore require continued harmony of purpose on the part of the two bodies in carrying forward and perfecting the negotiations, and I, therefore, bespeak your continuing helpful efforts in that behalf, so that the plans the board and the commission jointly outlined may be carried forward in detail in a spirit of justice and for the best interests of the city.

I am sure it was a gratification to you no less than it was to me and to our respective colleagues who participated in the conference on last Saturday to know that the several thousand workers resumed their occupations, thus bringing the means of support and happiness to their families.

Sincerely yours,
OSCAR S. STRAUS, Chairman.

Mr. Straus retires from the commission on July 1, and the hope he expressed that the present co-operation between the commission and the Board of Estimate should continue was thought to be in the interest of his present associates, some of whom heretofore have had disagreements with the Mayor.

WORKING TO SAVE BABIES.

Physicians Co-operating in Nation-Wide Campaign.

Physicians are co-operating with the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense to save the lives of 4,700 babies as part of the national child conservation movement.

In connection with the campaign, 400 children from the Hebrew Technical School, Second Avenue and Fifteenth Street, were measured and weighed at Grand Central Palace yesterday, and while the figures were not available, it was said that the children were nearer correct weight than any other group inspected there.

Dr. Herman Schwarz spoke yesterday at Mount Sinai Hospital in the interest of the movement, and Dr. S. Josephine Baker of the Department of Health and Miss Lillian D. Wald of the Henry Street Settlement will speak on Monday night at the City Club.

Volunteers are needed to assist physicians in examining children for at least two afternoons a week. Application may be made to Mrs. Egerton Winthrop in the Times Building or by letter or in person, on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons.

Several growlers were also reported on June 8 in 43 latitude north and 49.21 longitude west.

MRS. BUSCH SET FREE.

KEY WEST, Fla., June 19.—Mrs. Lilly Busch, widow of the St. Louis brewer, en route home after several years' residence in Germany, was released from custody by Federal immigration authorities today under instructions from Washington. Mrs. Busch and her party left here tonight for St. Louis.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Officials of the Department of Justice said today that they were satisfied with the results of the examination of Mrs. Busch by their agents at Key West, and that no attempt would be made to interfere with her freedom of movement. Mrs. Busch was questioned particularly about what, if any, means she had of communicating with persons in Germany.

General Greene Ordered East.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Major Gen. Henry A. Greene, who has been in command of the 91st Division, National Army, at Camp Lewis, Wash., has been ordered to report to Washington. No explanation of the order was forthcoming from the War Department tonight. Brig. Gen. Frederick S. Foltz has been placed in command at Camp Lewis temporarily.

NOTED VISITORS HONORED BY YALE

Reading, Riddell, and Masefield Among Those Receiving Honorary Degrees.

BRITAIN-BAITERS ATTACKED

Those Questioning England's Motives Are "Liars and Traitors," Ex-President Taft Declares.

Special to The New York Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 19.—Yale's Commencement came to a close this afternoon with the Alumni luncheon, at which, the speakers were the Earl of Reading, Justice William Renwick Riddell of Ontario, John Masefield and William H. Taft. A tribute was paid to the American Navy by the Earl of Reading. Mr. Taft advocated an Eastern fighting front for the Allies in Russia and declared it would lead up to a march into Berlin. He spoke of propaganda being spread to stir up feeling between this country and England whereby the motives of England might be questioned.

"If any man, be he pro-German, Irishman or anything else, questions the honesty and motives of England in her associations with the United States in this war," he said, "he is a liar and a traitor." Mr. Masefield spoke of the feeling of assurance given to the British soldiers by the appearance of Americans at the front and of their faith in ultimate victory.

Justice Riddell said there would be no end of the war until the German war lord listened to humanity's call or every American and Briton who could carry a rifle was dead. He spoke of America's great part in the war and paid a high tribute to the spirit behind every man, woman and child in this country.

Honorary Degrees Conferred.

The commencement, Yale's two hundred and eighteenth, was marked by the granting of less than half the usual number of baccalaureate degrees, while the names of 254 members of the senior class appeared on the commencement program as "on leave of absence for war service." The university granted 314 degrees in course, as compared with 703 last year and 773 the year before. Honorary degrees were granted as follows:

Doctor of Laws—Herbert Clark Hoover, Federal Food Administrator; the Earl of Reading, Lord Chief Justice of the United Kingdom and British Ambassador and High Commissioner to the United States; Justice William Renwick Riddell of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and Henry Pomeroy Davison, Chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross.

Doctor of Letters—John Masefield.

Doctor of Science — Henry Drysdale Dakin, the distinguished surgeon who discovered the Dakin system of treating wounds; Edward Sylvester Morse, director of the Peabody Museum in Salem, Mass., and authority on Japanese art and on zoology.

Master of Arts — Alfred Lawrence Aiken, first Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New England and now President of the Shawmut National Bank of Boston; Paul Wayland Bartlett, sculptor; Henry Stanford Brooks, Chairman of the Yale Alumni Fund Association; Benedict Crowell, Assistant Secretary of War; Frank Lyon Polk, Counsellor of the State Department; Robert Scoville, Food Administrator of Connecticut.

The commencement procession to Woolsey Hall was headed by the flags of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, and Connecticut. The candidates for the honorary degrees were presented by Dr. Theodore Salisbury Woolsey, Professor Emeritus of International Law.

Of John Masefield he said: "Sailor boy, painter of the thrill and terror of the sea; singer of rural England and of the West Country which gave him birth; writer of sonnets and ballads, of tragedies, of novels; analyst of the agony of sin, the heights and depths of human passion; historian of British deeds in 'the acts of war that sickle men like wheat,' patriot and poet."

Of Justice Russell: "Expounder of British colonial government; honored citizen of Canada, our neighbor State, whose valor we strive to emulate, her maple leaf dyed redder than the tints of Autumn."

Of Mr. Davison: "Under his leadership the American Red Cross has covered a stricken world with the network of its agencies, has brought to the most terrible of wars faith, hope and charity."

Of Lord Reading: "To be the envoy of war and good-will; to be the representative of concerted mind and action; to be the apostle of a philosophy not of power, but of right—this is the high mission of our honored visitor."

GRADUATE 100 IN VOCATIONS

Altman School Presents Diplomas and Honor Pins to Pupils.

The closing exercises of the B. Altman & Company's Continuation School, established by M. Friedsam, President of the firm, were held on Tuesday afternoon in the assembly room of the store on Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. James A. Kellor presided and a thousand persons were present, one hundred graduating pupils participating in the proceedings. The school, which has been in existence four years, has been successful in elementary and vocational education. Dr. W. L. Ettinger, Superintendent of Schools, delivered an address in which he credited the Altman school with conveying a lesson to New York's educators.

"I look," said Dr. Ettinger, "for legislation which will compel employers to send employes from 14 to 17 years old to continuation schools at least four hours a week." Henry MacDonald, Director General of the Mayor's Committee of National Defense, also spoke, and Mr. Friedsam presented diplomas and honor pins to the pupils. The program included the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," a one-act play, "Rise Up, Jennie Smith," a skit called "Over There," and drill by the boys in khaki and girls in smocks made by themselves.

MANY NURSES ENROLLED.

Red Cross Gratified by Response to Appeal for War Workers.

The Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross, 44 East Twenty-third Street, announced yesterday that 759 nurses had enrolled in this city since the Red Cross made its appeal for the 25,000 needed in army and navy hospitals.

Fifty more nurses enlisted yesterday and thirty-three sent in applications. The booths in various parts of the city at which nurses may enroll have received many applications for blanks in the last few days, and the rate at which nurses have been enrolling has gratified the Red Cross.

Nurses who are enrolled are not necessarily called at once, but will be sent to hospitals as needed. In six weeks the Red Cross has equipped 1,399 nurses for oversea service.

More than 700 young women have already pledged themselves to enter hospitals for training to take the places of nurses called to the front, while 200 married or retired nurses have volunteered to return to service at the call of the Red Cross.

FAIRBANKS LEFT $2,150,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 19.—A trust fund of $50,000 to be held for 500 years, the income from which is to be divided each fifty years and expended for social welfare work, is set aside from the estate of Charles W. Fairbanks, former Vice President of the United States, as a memorial to his wife, by his will, filed for probate here today. The value of the entire estate is estimated at $2,150,000.

A number of charitable bequests are made in the will, among those in addition to the $50,000 trust fund being one to the Ohio Wesleyan University of $25,000 and another of $50,000 to the Methodist Hospital and Deaconess Home in Indianapolis.

An income of $15,000 a year is provided for Mr. Fairbanks' daughter, Mrs. John W. Timmons. Provisions for his three sons include giving each of them an annual income of $10,000 a year from the revenues of the personal property of the estate if they desire to accept.

The will makes numerous bequests to old servants in the Fairbanks home. Depauw University at Greencastle, Ind., receives $25,000.

After payment of the various specific bequests the will provides the remainder of the estate is to go to the three sons, Richard, Warren, and Fred Fairbanks.

NAVY YARD MEN SEND THREAT TO CONGRESS

HOUSE ELIMINATES IT

But Spirit of Unions Is Condemned by Padgett and Others When Telegrams Are Read.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Impelled by the threat of a general walkout in the navy yards if the so-called Taylor "stop-watch" system was incorporated into the Naval Appropriation bill, the House today rejected by the vote of 205 to 87 the Senate amendment to permit the payment of bonuses to the yard workmen. The bill as returned to conference now prohibits the use of the stop watch and the payment of bonuses also.

The strike threat was conveyed to the House in two telegrams received by Chairman Padgett of the Naval Affairs Committee. Both were from officials of labor unions, whose members are engaged in shipbuilding at the yards at Norfolk and Portsmouth. They read:

Norfolk, Va., May 25.

G. H. T. U. 14824 of Portsmouth, Va., urge you to defeat in House, Senate amendment to Navy Appropriation bill. If accepted by House, thereby making effective bonus and Taylor system in navy yards, will undoubtedly cause walkout of all Government yards, as was done on similar occasions three years ago.

D. H. THOMAS, Secretary.

Portsmouth, Va., May 25.

Just received advice that Senate amended House Naval Appropriation bill making possible bonus and Taylor system in navy yards. This measure, if it becomes effective, will undoubtedly cause walkout all manufacturing departments Government, as was done in similar instance over three years ago. Urge upon you to effect its defeat in House. W. B. WYATT.

In submitting the message, Mr. Padgett said he did not approve of such methods nor of the threat to strike in case the legislation did not suit the wishes of the union organizations. He explained, however, that Secretary Daniels had evolved an efficiency system for the navy yards, which was working well, and that any legislation by Congress in the matter might interfere with these plans.

Mr. Padgett asked the House to refuse to concur in the Senate amendment and to ask the Senate to recede from it. Congressman Good of Iowa moved to concur in the Senate amendment, thereby making it possible for the bonus system to be continued. He argued that there is great necessity in all Government work, particularly in the ship yards, for "speeding up," and said the payment of a bonus to a workman who performs an exceptional amount of labor would stimulate this speeding-up process.

The labor men in the House, led by Congressmen Keating of Colorado and Nolan of California, rallied their forces to defeat this motion. Mr. Keating said the bonus plan was merely a part of the system devised by Admiral Taylor to check up on the workmen. The entire system, he said, was obnoxious to labor men, who were willing to do their patriotic duty in turning out the work of the navy yards.

"The House bill contained a provision knocking out the stop-watch system and prohibiting the bonus system," Mr. Keating said. "The Senate agrees to prohibit the use of the stop watch, but decided to permit the payment of bonuses. We ask that the entire system be eliminated, as it is unnecessary and will interfere with the plan now in force under recommendation of the Secretary of the Navy."

Congressman Nolan referred to the records achieved by workmen in Pacific Coast yards, where they were proud of accomplishing more work than they were actually required to do. The spirit of the workmen is good, he asserted, and attempts to legislate in this direction would be prejudicial to this spirit.

The senders of the Padgett telegrams were rebuked by Congressman Cox of Indiana, who asserted that the President should conscript them and "put them in uniform, where they won't have a chance to strike."

The Naval Appropriation bill now goes to conference with agreement upon all matters except the bonus amendment, and the section providing for the increase of the rank and pay of the Commandant of the Marine Corps to the equivalent of a Lieutenant General, which was defeated by the House yesterday.

Alderman Enlists as Aviator.

The members of the Board of Aldermen gave Alderman William T. Collins, who leaves on Saturday for an aviation camp, a farewell dinner at Reisenweber's, Columbus Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, last night. Justice Cornelius F. Collins of Special Sessions, the Alderman's brother, was the only outsider present. Alderman John F. McCourt was the toastmaster and the Aldermen gave to Mr. Collins a wrist watch, President Alfred E. Smith making the presentation speech. Alderman Collins was so desirous to get into the war that he waived his exemption as a municipal officer and enlisted in the aviation corps. This is his second term as Alderman from the 11th District, Manhattan, and he is Chairman of the Committee on General Welfare.

TO CALL J. A. O'LEARY IN BROTHER'S TRIAL

Defendant's Attorney, Under Protest, Tells of Events Following Jeremiah's Disappearance.

Jeremiah A. O'Leary, who is waiting trial on a charge of conspiracy to commit treason against the United States, will take the witness stand this morning as a witness for his brother, John J. O'Leary, who is on trial before Judge Augustus N. Hand, charged with having entered into a conspiracy with Arthur L. Lyons and Jeremiah, the purpose of which was to get the last named out of the jurisdiction of the Federal courts of New York. It is the general understanding that Jeremiah O'Leary will swear that when he fled from New York his brother John had no reason to think that he was leaving the city with the intention of becoming a fugitive from justice.

Jeremiah O'Leary, who arrived in New York on Tuesday morning in the custody of agents of the Department of Justice, who had arrested him on a chicken farm in Washington, is held a prisoner without bail in the Tombs. When he was taken to the Tombs on Tuesday afternoon he was assigned to the same cell as his brother John, but he remained in that cell only a short time, for, as soon as the Federal authorities were notified, they ordered the brothers separated. Jeremiah was then assigned to a cell on the fifth tier. John's cell is on the first tier.

Efforts to get Jeremiah to make a statement yesterday were unsuccessful. A report was current that he had confessed, but there is every reason for saying that such is not the case. His relatives are said to be anxious that he tell all that he knows, but up to last night Jeremiah is reported to have turned a deaf ear to their appeals. Although it is understood that Jeremiah O'Leary is possessed of considerable means, it was reported yesterday that a movement has been started by certain of his Sinn Fein friends to raise a fund to be used in his defense when he is placed on trial for conspiring with German spies and others to commit treason.

It was said yesterday that when O'Leary was asked what his defense would be when he, with Carl Rodiger, the German naval officer; Mme. Victorica, and the other persons named in the indictments were placed on trial, he replied: "I have pleaded not guilty." To date he is said to have been unable to obtain counsel to defend him, and it now appears certain that Judge Learned Hand, before whom he entered his plea, will have to assign a lawyer to look after his interests.

When Jeremiah awoke yesterday morning after his first night in the Tombs as a prisoner of the United States he sent for the Warden and said that he desired to confer with his brother. John was about to start for the Federal Building, and so Jeremiah was taken down to the first tier, where he conversed for a few minutes with his brother. John was reported to have greeted his brother cordially.

In the trial of John O'Leary yesterday, and just before the Government closed its case, Earl B. Barnes, the Assistant United States District Attorney in charge of the prosecution, called Colonel Thomas B. Felder, attorney for the defendant, to the stand as a Government witness. Colonel Felder objected strenuously to taking the stand, contending that a lawyer could not be attorney and witness in the same case and that placing him on the stand was not ethical.

Mr. Barnes replied that he had no intention of examining Colonel Felder as to any conversations or anything else that had passed between the lawyer and his client. He said that Colonel Felder was retained to defend John O'Leary on May 20 and that he would not question him on anything that may have happened subsequent to that date. The court sustained Mr. Barnes, and Colonel Felder, who made a protest for the record, went on the stand.

The prosecutor questioned Colonel Felder at length. The questions all related to the period when Colonel Felder was counsel for Jeremiah A. O'Leary and up to the time that O'Leary fled from New York. The purpose of the examination was to show that John O'Leary had given Colonel Felder to understand that Jeremiah had gone to the Adirondacks to prepare for his trial on the old charge of conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the selective draft law, which trial was on the calendar for May 20 last, the day on which it became known that O'Leary had absconded.

In the examination of Colonel Felder it developed that on or about May 8 Colonel Felder had informed Mr. Barnes that Jeremiah was recuperating from an operation for appendicitis in the Adirondacks, and that when Mr. Barnes asked him the source of the information the lawyer had replied that it came from John O'Leary and other members of the family. Colonel Felder was not informed that Jeremiah was missing until a few days before the trial was scheduled to begin, and he then communicated the information to the Federal authorities and when the case was called on May 20 publicly announced that his client was missing. Colonel Felder has since withdrawn from the case.

The examination of Colonel Felder closed the Government's case. At the afternoon session Colonel Felder made his opening address to the jury, and said that he would call witnesses who would prove beyond all doubt that John O'Leary did not know when his brother left New York that it was with the intention of escaping from justice. He called a number of character witnesses who testified to the good standing and reputation of John O'Leary, among them Robert Grier Monroe, Charles A. Boston, the Rev. Father T. A. Hickey, Samuel Kahan, Professor Leslie A. Tomkins of the New York University Law School, and Miss N. Murphy, a public school teacher.

The court then adjourned until 10:30 o'clock this morning.

DENOUNCED BY THE A. O. H.

William Mulligan, Secretary of Division 9 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, 3,224 Broadway, yesterday announced that the following resolutions had been adopted:

Whereas, The acts of certain gentlemen of our race in this country and particularly in the City of New York have brought about a condition by which the loyalty of the Irish race is on trial before the tribunal of American public opinion; and

Whereas, The sincerity and motives that prompt these gentlemen we have good reasons to doubt; be it

Resolved, That we, the officers and members of Division No. 9, Ancient Order of Hibernians of New York County, do vehemently denounce the acts of these men as being un-American and a gross insult to the men of our race who in the past have given the sacrifice of their lives and are doing so today, that this nation might and may live, and we demand of our Government that they stamp out this propaganda of treason and sedition which is being openly conducted under the guise of Irish patriotism. Be it further

Resolved, That we assure the Government that any action it may take in this matter will have the hearty support and co-operation of at least 95 per cent. of our race. Be it further

Resolved, That we call upon the New York County board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians to put itself on record as to where it stands in this matter and by so doing erase from the race in this city the odium which has been cast upon it.

By the terms of a final resolution a copy of the resolutions was sent to President Wilson.

STANGELAND HELD AS AN ENEMY AID

Escapes Prison Through Bail Supplied by Professor Beard, Formerly of Columbia.

The cases of Charles Emil Stangeland, former Second Secretary of the American Embassy in London, husband of Karin Michaelis Stangeland, the Danish novelist, and of Captain Gustav Ragnar Lindgren of the Swedish Army, who are held by the Federal authorities charged with violating the trading with the enemy law, came up for a hearing before United States Commissioner Hitchcock yesterday. The charge is that Stangeland and Lindgren conspired to convey secret memorandums out of the United States addressed to Mr. Stangeland's wife, who is said to be with her parents in Copenhagen, and to Ellen Key, one of the most widely known Swedish women writers.

According to testimony given at a previous hearing, and introduced yesterday by Assistant United States District Attorney Burdeau, Captain Lindgren said he had written, under dictation, the note intended for Mrs. Stangeland, and that in this note he was directed by Mr. Stangeland to convey to Ellen Key the information that her Hindu friend, Tarek Das, had been convicted in San Francisco, of plotting to start a rebellion in India, and had been sentenced to serve twenty-two months in a Federal prison. Captain Lindgren said Stangeland had informed him that Tarek Das was as important a person in his field as Miss Key was in hers.

The testimony also brought out the fact that Mrs. Stangeland is the author of a book called "German Barbarians," which appears to indicate German sympathy on her part, for in it she wrote that the Germans are not as bad as "painted by their enemies." Captain Lindgren had also testified, according to the evidence offered by the Government, that Mr. Stangeland had told him that his wife and her parents might be considered pro-German by some people, and that while he (Mr. Stangeland) had been opposed to this country going to war, now that the step had been taken he must, as an American, stand by his country.

Mrs. Magdalena Nordstrum of Bethlehem, Penn., where Stangeland and Lindgren were employed by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, testified that on May 25 last two men called at her home and that at the suggestion of one of them she asked Lindgren to take a short personal note to Mrs. Stangeland. The text of the note was not revealed at the hearing.

Charles V. Palmer of the Customs Service said that when he searched Lindgren's effects he found the memorandum said to have been dictated by Stangeland and also an old German passport bearing a Berlin date.

When Mr. Burdeau rested his case a lawyer representing the Swedish Consul General asked for the release of Captain Lindgren, and when refused entered a protest in the name of the Swedish Government.

Professor Charles A. Beard, who recently resigned from the Faculty of Columbia University, came to Professor Stangeland's rescue yesterday by depositing $5,000 cash bail and Stangeland was released. Captain Lindgren is still in the Tombs.

Gustav L. Lindquist, also known as Colby, and Leo Burt, the draftsmen arrested on Monday night charged with violating the espionage law by having stolen plans of the Browning gun, the Liberty motor, various ordnance parts, airplane plans, and scores of Government blueprints in their possession, were committed to the Tombs yesterday by Commissioner Hitchcock in default of $5,000 bail each. Ernst Strohmeier, an Austrian subject arrested at the same time, is held as a dangerous enemy alien.

Six Germans started for the prison camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., yesterday. They are Friedrich Dietrich, Ernst Genbach, Johann Hutt, Walther Forstner, Otto Winkler, and Elly Jaeger.

Because he criticised Red Cross nurses who recently returned from France, George Shellberg of 17 Columbia Place, Brooklyn, was sentenced yesterday by Magistrate Folwell in Adams Street Police Court to serve fifteen days in the workhouse on Blackwell's Island. Shellberg admitted making the statements charged to him, but said he did not believe them himself, and thought there was no harm in them.

CHARGE DOCTOR MADE A SEDITIOUS SPEECH

Dr. George C. Weiss, a member of the surgical staff of the Mount Vernon Hospital and well-known for many years as a practicing physician in Westchester County, was arrested yesterday afternoon at his home, 154 Stevens Avenue, Mount Vernon, on a charge of making seditious utterances. The arrest was based on information to the authorities of Westchester County concerning a dramatic incident in which Dr. Weiss is alleged to have figured on Sunday night at the Empire City Inn, near Yonkers.

Some of the diners near the table occupied by Dr. Weiss were startled when they heard some one champion the cause of Germany in the war, but for a few minutes the author of the challenge was not identified, it was said. Then some of the men and women pointed to a man at one side of the room, whereupon there was a rush by some of the men toward the one who had been designated, followed by threats of physical violence to the offender. Dal Hawkins, the proprietor of the place, interposed and induced the man who had started the disturbance to depart. In an affidavit made by Mr. Hawkins and his wife, it was charged that Dr. Weiss had been heard to make the following utterances:

"The Germans will win this war. The American boys have no right to go over there and fight the Germans. I am a Hun, and I don't care who knows it. The Dutch is in me and it is coming out. If they take my son, I'll make them pay for it."

Dr. Weiss, who is 57 years old, was born in Germany, but is a naturalized citizen and has voted for some years in Mount Vernon, which has been the place of his home for thirty years.

TELLS OF UNFIT HAM REJECTED BY NAVY

WILSON & CO. MADE APPEAL

At the hearing regarding the sale of alleged tainted meat to the Government by certain large meat packers, before Examiner Patterson of the Federal Trade Commission in the Woolworth Building yesterday, testimony was given by Captain Charles S. Williams of the Paymasters' Division of the Brooklyn Navy Yard that Wilson & Co. had delivered for navy use more than a half million pounds of ham of which more than 400,000 pounds had been rejected as unfit.

Captain Williams said that of 539,062 pounds of ham offered to the Government to fill a contract of 300,000 pounds only 110,558 pounds were accepted, the remainder being rejected because it was "moldy, marrow sour, and meat sour." He testified also that a part of the ham which he had accepted had later proved unedible, and 3,372 pounds which had been placed on board the United States ship Kittery had been condemned by Inspectors and destroyed after the vessel had returned from a short voyage.

Following the rejection of the hams offered by them to the navy, the Directors of the company appealed for a piece-by-piece inspection of the lot, after Thomas E. Wilson, President of the firm, had it all shipped back to Chicago.

"I thereupon sent Paymaster Du Bois to Chicago to make the inspection," the witness testified. "There were also present representatives of the Department of Agriculture. As the result of the reinspection Du Bois recommended that a certain proportion of the hams be accepted. Between 13 and 14 per cent. were in such condition that they could not be accepted, bone and marrow sours having developed, and also meat sours.

"I disapproved of the report when it reached me, and recommended the rejection of the entire lot. I was eventually overruled by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who decided that the hams, after the piece-by-piece inspection, should be taken and used at the training stations instead of on board ships. The largest station we had was the Great Lakes Training Station, and that was the logical place to send them."

Sent Ham to Training Station.

"I at once took up the matter with the Supply Superintendent there and he informed me that he could use about 10,000 pounds per week, whereupon I directed Wilson & Co. to discontinue packing hams in barrels in salt and to send them in boxes to the Great Lakes station. Similar action was taken with regard to Newport. The first deliveries at each station were consumed, but violent protest was made by the supply officer, based on a report by the medical officers, and after the second delivery at Great Lakes no further deliveries were accepted."

On cross-examination, H. Snowden Marshall, appearing for Wilson & Co., raised the question as to whether the moldiness of the ham was not due in a large measure to the paraffine wrapper in which the hams had to be inclosed, in accordance with the navy specification. In support of this contention he offered in evidence a telegram addressed to Wilson & Co. by the Inspector General of the Navy in August, 1917, which read, in part: "Meat inspectors here are of the opinion that mold on hams after delivery is due to paraffine paper. Suggest that in place of paper cotton sack be used or burlap wrapping, as trouble occurs after meat leaves packers."

Captain Williams admitted that the unsound condition of the hams had become apparent only after they left the packers, but he insisted that paraffine paper was a suitable wrapping for hams and could not be the cause of deterioration.

The defense called several witnesses to deny the general charge that the company had knowingly sold or exposed for sale meat that was not fit for human consumption. Among these witnesses were Walter J. Reese of the Philadelphia branch and E. Hirschfelder of the San Antonio branch.

Wilson Defends the Company.

Thomas E. Wilson, President of Wilson & Co., was the last witness. Asked by his attorney whether any member of his company or any agent acting on its behalf had ever knowingly delivered bad meat to the Government for army and navy use, Mr. Wilson said:

"Never, and such a person would be immediately dismissed if he ever was caught doing such a thing. My firm has held for its motto its perfect willingness to guarantee all deliveries as sound. Since this country entered the war we have sold to the Government for the army and navy over 500,000,000 pounds of meat. If any of it was ever found bad we have been glad to take it back and replace it."

Mr. Chantiant, attorney for the Trade Commission, on crass-examination asked Mr. Wilson how he accounted for the large percentage of ham rejections, and the witness replied that the figures on the rejections were very much in excess of the facts. He said it was often a physical impossibility to meet the navy specifications in view of the conditions under which various meat items had to be packed and shipped. All the meats shipped by his firm, he said, were first inspected by agents for the National Bureau of Animal Industry. He said that no charges had ever been brought against the company other than those presented by the Federal Trade Commission.

"We have been eager to have this hearing on our own account," he said, "because we wanted to convince the public mind that the charges were not true. I believe that the members of the Federal Trade Commission are big enough men and fair enough men to see that an injustice has been done us and to correct it."

CHICAGO, June 19.—John Hawkinson, one of the Vice Presidents of Wilson & Co., when asked today about the testimony given at the New York hearing by Captain Williams, denied any knowledge of any meats having been rejected by the Navy Department.

"I know nothing of what Williams is talking about," he said, "and have no personal knowledge of any of our meats having been refused by the Navy Department."

ASTOR GUEST HELD ON FEDERAL WARRANT

Felix A. Summerfeld Locked Up Under Department of Justice Charges.

Felix A. Summerfeld, who said he was a mining engineer, and gave his residence as the Hotel Astor, was locked up in the Greenwich Street Station last night by agents of the Department of Justice, charged with violating the Federal laws.

Summerfeld is about 40 years old, well dressed, of medium height, and of a retiring disposition. He is understood to be a German and has lived at the hotel for about four years. He is a mining engineer and at one time lived in Mexico, where he is said to have amassed a large fortune and was rumored to be a friend of former President Madero of Mexico.

Summerfeld always lived well at the hotel, had plenty of money, did not entertain, and apparently was very reticent. It is understood that he has made several visits to the Department of Justice.

Summerfield was formerly the purchasing agent for Villa in this country, during the time when Villa was more or less in favor with the United States Government as an antagonist to Huerta. Later when Villa split with Carranza and this country declared in favor of Carranza, Summerfield asserted that he had broken off his connection with Villa.

During the last three or four years Summerfield has lived at the Hotel Astor, where he has been frequently in company with Mexicans. He has always been well supplied with money and was understood to be associated with Mexican interests. He expressed himself as strongly in favor of the Allies, even before this country entered the war. He is personally very genial and made many friends in this city. He had been sometimes in the society of Government agents and an impression had gone abroad that he had been employed in the intelligence service of the Government.

STILL QUESTION CAILLAUX.

PARIS, June 19.—Joseph Caillaux, ex-Premier of France, was interrogated yesterday for the forty-fourth time since he was arrested Jan. 14 on the charge of being connected with German propaganda in France.

It is expected the preliminary investigation will soon be concluded, and that his case will go to trial in a short time.

M. Caillaux has addressed an open letter to his attorney protesting against the statement in some of the newspapers that he is responsible for the delays in his case. He asks that he be taken before the court as soon as possible, as he is anxious to vindicate himself.

LITERARY HISTORIAN DEAD.

Georges Pellissier Attacked Shakespeare as "a Very Bad Dramatist."

PARIS, June 19.—Georges Jacques Maur Pellissier, a literary historian, principally on French and general literature of the nineteenth century, died today. He was born in 1852.

Chief among the dozen workers of literary criticism which Georges Pellissier, the French college professor whose literary attainments gained him election as a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, issued was "The Literary Movement in the Nineteenth Century." In this book, pronounced as classic by Emile Faguet and "crowned" by the French Academy, Pellissier fiercely attacked Shakespeare as "a very bad dramatist." He contended that Shakespeare was "historically incorrect" and that he was artificial and that gaps in his plays were not genius, but "simply and solely lack of artistry."

Pellissier also asserted that the vogue of Shakespeare was a superstition foisted on the world by the English and the Germans.

CLEMENCEAU CREATES NEW POST FOR TARDIEU

To Make Him Secretary for Franco-American War Co-operation.

PARIS, June 19.—Because of the increasing number of American soldiers in France and the increasing degree of American participation in the war, the Government has decided to create a new Secretaryship for Franco-American War Co-operation. The new department, which will form part of the Premier's office, will be headed by Captain André Tardieu, who, however, will remain as French High Commissioner to the United States. He will divide his time between Paris and Washington.

Premier Clemenceau sent this afternoon to President Poincaré a letter with the draft of a decree which, when signed, will be effective tomorrow.

"Just now," he wrote, "the American forces are increasing considerably, and a continuous increase is expected in the next few months. These considerations have led me to the idea that the centralization of efforts is necessary and that it is expedient to strengthen still further the direction of our co-operation with the United States, in placing in the same hands the bulk of the questions concerned. If you approve of my point of view I have the honor to ask you to sign the following decree:

"'First—There shall be created at the Prime Minister's office a Secretaryship for Franco-American War Co-operation.

"'Second—The Secretary for Franco-American War Co-operation is commissioned to bring to its maximum efficiency war co-operation between the United States and France. He will have the authority to obtain to that effect from every Government department or service all measures to co-ordinate the work of military preparedness accomplished in the United States with the execution of the work carried out in France; to supply all the needs of the American forces in France as well as French needs in the United States; to establish and follow, in accord with the American Government, and especially toward neutral countries, the policy of the interallied agreements, and to supply all allied, neutral, or enemy countries with information concerning Franco-American co-operation. He shall execute all decisions on the above matters, referring when needed to the Prime Minister.

"'Third—To fulfill the objects of this mission, the Secretary for Franco-American War Co-operation has at his disposal (1) the services of the High Commission of the French Republic at Washington and New York; (2) the central office of Franco-American Affairs, organized by the decision of Dec. 19, 1917; (3) the American Department of Missions Office; (4) French missions with the Americans in the interior zone.

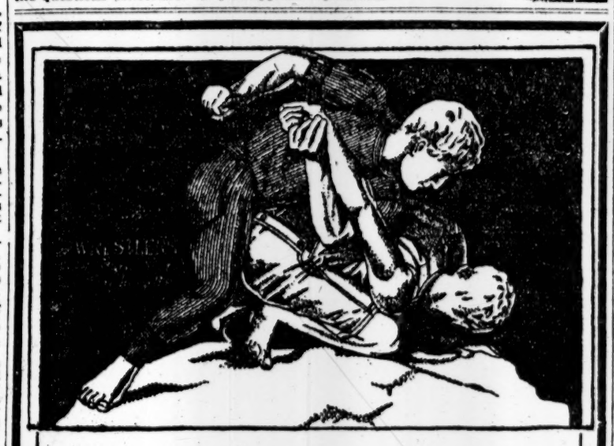

"'The General in charge of American affairs, with the General and chief of the allied armies, shall act as head of the military department of the Secretary for Franco-American War Co-operation.'"

MRS. STEWART ACCUSED.

"Black Book" Witness Up for Bigamy in London Police Court.

LONDON, June 19.—Mrs. Villiers-Stewart, one of the chief witnesses at the trial of Noel Pemberton-Billing, Member of Parliament and publisher of the newspaper Vigilante, for having libeled Miss Maud Allan, was charged in the Marylebone Police Court today with bigamy. She was remanded for one week. It is alleged that she was married to Stewart, her present husband, who is an army officer, while her first husband, Percival Bray, formerly a motor bus driver, was still alive.

Mrs. Stewart caused a sensation at the Pemberton-Billing trial by testifying that Neil Primrose, who was killed while with the British forces in Palestine, had showed her the German "black book," which was said to contain the names of 47,000 persons in England, including those of ex-Premier and Mrs. Asquith and Viscount Haldane.

ARRESTS REVEAL WAR BILL FRAUD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Four men were arrested here today charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government to the amount of $187,000 by securing the second payment of a bill for repairs and materials supplied by the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company of New York in work on the transport Canandaigua. The case is one that has come under the observation of the Department of Justice in the campaign against profiteering.

Two of the men accused are Government employes, C. Clyde Waltman, clerk in the Auditing Division of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts of the Navy Department, and D. Malvin Mowery, a stenographer in the office of the Chief Signal Officer of the Army. The other men are Charles E. Waltman, a brother of Clyde and a lumber merchant of Victoria, Va., and Benjamin W. Peake, a private in the army stationed at Camp Meigs.

The scheme, which, it was stated at the Department of Justice, probably was planned by C. Clyde Waltman and Peake, was based on the belief that a bill could be paid a second time without attracting attention for many months, owing to the enormous volume and the confusion incident to war expenditures. The scheme was to "lose" the original bill and call on the contractor for a second bill, which the conspirators could change slightly and then get it paid.

To carry out this plan it was necessary to secure the aid of a confederate in the employ of the Morse Dry Dock Company. Through Peake the alleged conspirators in Washington were informed of a soldier in New York, who, it was stated, could get a friend of his in the dry dock company's office to send on a duplicate bill. This soldier, when approached, went to his Colonel and laid bare the plan, so far as he had knowledge of it. The Colonel sent the man to Washington and he placed in possession of A. Bruce Bielaski, head of the Department of Justice Division of Investigation and the Navy Bureau of Intelligence all the facts he had.

Evidence in the Waste Basket.

C. Clyde Waltman was arrested while at luncheon. He asked to be permitted to send a telephone message. He went to the telephone and called up some one, supposed to be Mowery, to whom he was heard to say: "I am arrested; the bills — —." Officers went to Mowery's room near the State, War and Navy Building. They found Mowery there and in the waste basket the fragments of the second bill, which had been altered to deceive the auditing officials and obtain payment. The pieces of the bill were pasted together without difficulty.

Waltman roomed within a short distance of Mowery on G Street. Both men entered the Government service within the last year. Mowery is 21 years of age. He formerly lived at Lancaster, Penn. Charles E. Waltman, it is alleged, had knowledge of what was going on through correspondence. How seriously he is involved has not been determined.

In running down the accused, the dry dock company co-operated with the Government authorities. The alleged conspirators never secured a confederate in the office of the company, although, it is said, they were led to think they had.

The duplicate bill was dated April 27. The amount was reduced slightly so as to make it less likely to arouse suspicion. To test the working value of their scheme, the conspirators put through two "trial shots," as one of them described the performance. These tests, they said, worked. Government detectives learned from firms whose bills were used in this way that they had been paid.

The Government, so far as these cases are concerned, appears not to have lost a cent. The discovery of the attempt to collect bills a second time has served to put every auditing office of the Government on guard against such practices.

The Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation have been making an investigation to determine whether contracts let by these organizations have been used in an effort to rob the Government. All contracts are being checked up. The Fleet Corporation has retained Miles Dawson, who has been associated with Charles E. Hughes, now making an investigation of the aircraft situation for the Government. Mr. Dawson went to Philadelphia today to confer with Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

The Shipping Board is determined to go further than merely open its books to the Department of Justice by extending its own investigation to every phase of the shipbuilding program. Officials have been hearing reports ever since the Department of Justice started its investigation that efforts have been made to rob the Government through ship contracts, and they are determined to run down all of these rumors.

Profiteering Returns Big.

WASHINGTON, June 19, (Associated Press.)—Definite proof of specific payments to contingent fee agents was gathered by Assistant Attorney General Huston Thompson from records seized by secret agents in the raids Monday on these agencies' headquarters in Washington.

One Washington firm of contingent fee agents negotiated $10,000,000 worth of contracts for its clients, it was disclosed today by examination of the firm's papers seized by secret agents. Another firm, also maintaining business headquarters in Washington, had received $100,000 in commissions. Most of these fees were paid in installments after receipt by the contractors of checks from the Government in payment for goods delivered or in process of manufacture. A commission agent firm in another city was about to close fifteen contracts for clients when its office was raided.

Among the papers examined today were scores of telegrams in code. These, when deciphered, disclosed references to Government employes and others whom the Department of Justice officials characterized as "politicians." It is understood names were mentioned in some of these messages. Indications were that the Government employes and the "politicians" had been in close association with contingent fee agents, discussing how best to obtain contracts for favored manufacturers.

An official of the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company, to whom the text of the Washington dispatch concerning the alleged fraud was read over the telephone last night, said the Government had not mentioned the subject to the officials of the company, and nothing was known here about the alleged conspiracy. This official said that if any bill from the Morse Dry Dock Company had been found in the hands of conspirators it must be a "duplicate" sent with the original.

"It would be impossible for any one unauthorized by the Government to obtain from our office a second bill, or a copy of an original, whether the original had been paid or not," asserted the official. "All bills are made out under the supervision of Government officers at the office of the company, and must be signed by the former and a responsible officer of the company. In addition, each bill or voucher is accompanied by approximately a page of signatures and affidavits for the protection of the Government in making payment."

STALEY SENT TO THE TOMBS.

Lieutenant James C. Staley of the Quartermaster Department of the army, who was arrested Tuesday on the charge of accepting money in connection with a raincoat contract, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Hitchcock. He waived examination and in default of $10,000 bail was sent to the Tombs.

Staley's wife, dressed in the khaki of a woman's motor corps, according to Assistant United States District Attorney Lawrence G. Axman, declared that if her husband had to go to jail she wanted to go with him. She asked that Staley be kept in the Federal Building until she arranged for bail. She spent all afternoon attempting to find some one to bail her husband, but gave up the search at 5 o'clock.

In the meantime, Staley was detained in a pen along with a motley group of about sixty-five prisoners. Clad in his uniform and with a Spanish war service ribbon on his breast he was the object of much curiosity as he sat with his head in his hands.

The case will go to the Grand Jury in a day or two.

Thousands of Dollars Worth Said to Have Been Stolen in Transit.

A complaint to the police by the Quartermaster Department of the army that much fresh beef for shipment to France for the use of the army had disappeared, resulted in the arrest on Tuesday night of six men who were held in bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Hitchcock to await examination on June 26. The prisoners are George Killian and Frank Killmet, employed by the Government as checkers; Theodore Mancini and George Williams, truckmen, and Harry Rothman and Joseph Zegas, butchers.

The beef arrived from the West at the Lehigh Valley yard at the foot of West Twenty-sixth Street, and it is alleged that, through a conspiracy among the prisoners and four other men, yet to be arrested, 1,288 pounds of beef, worth 23 cents a pound, was carried off.

Just how much meat has been taken from various railroad yards is not known, but it was said yesterday that officials are on the track of many thousands of dollar's worth, and that there would be other arrests.

REVOKES COAL LICENSE.

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The United States Fuel Administration has rescinded the license of J. P. O'Connor, doing business as the Penn Fuel Company at 1 Broadway, New York City, as the result of a charge that he sold low-grade coal for ship bunkering purposes to the owners of the steamship Stella. The Department of Justice also has been asked to determine whether further action should be taken.

While the ship, which is owned by neutral interests, was scheduled for a trip from the United States to Brazil at the time the inferior coal was sold, the presence of German submarines in American waters since that time has made it imperative, the Fuel Administration feels, that every safeguard should be provided in home waters as well as in the more dangerous submarine zone. The low-grade coal produces smoke, and vessels using it are unable to make their best speed.

In announcing its action the Fuel Administration made this statement:

"On April 1, 1918, the Fuel Administration promulgated an order in which the kinds of coal permissible to be sold for ship bunkers were clearly and distinctly defined. O'Connor admitted, at a hearing before the License Board of the Fuel Administration, that he knew of the order.

"He admitted also that he had knowingly violated it, but sought to justify his conduct on the ground that he considered the restrictions imposed in the order, as to the grade of coal, constituted an unjust discrimination against the kind of coal sold by him. This coal is classified as 'Pool 24' by the Tidewater Coal Exchange and is a very low grade coal.

"The coal sold by O'Connor in violation of the order of the Fuel Administration was delivered by him to the steamship Stella, a vessel owned by neutrals and plying between the United States and neutral countries. O'Connor's license was revoked and his case referred to the Department of Justice only after he had been given a full hearing before the License Board.

"The penalties provided by law for violations of the orders of the Fuel Administration are twofold, and, if indicted and convicted, O'Connor may be subjected by the court to a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years, or both."

J. P. O'Connor of the Penn Fuel Company, whose Federal license has been revoked by the Fuel Administration, denied yesterday having made the statement attributed to him by the Fuel Administration, to the effect that he knew of the order regarding smokeless coal, and had violated it because of unjust discrimination against his coal.

The coal complained of had been furnished by him to a "tramp steamer" on May 11, he said. He pointed out that after having gone to Washington to appear before the License Board he received a copy of a Fuel Administration order, dated May 15, effective May 16, which, he calimed, made permissible the furnishing of coal that would produce "much more smoke" than that which had been furnished by his company.

LISTED FOR EXPORT BY THE TRADE BOARD

PLAN TO KEEP EXCHANGE UP

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Important rulings concerning the exportation of many of the less essential commodities to European neutral nations, which it is believed will accomplish much in the effort to destroy the commercial relations between Germany and these countries and at the same time have excellent effect upon America's trade balance and on the present unfavorable rate of exchange, were made today by the War Trade Board.

In the official announcement today containing the list of articles for which export licenses would hereafter be considered "European Holland" and "Denmark proper" are mentioned. The general program, however, is of a much wider scope. Unofficial advices have been received here that an understanding has been had with Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, and Spain whereby they also are to receive the less essential commodities contained in the list as part of general agreements which have recently been adopted.

In dealing with South American nations also, favorable consideration will be given, it is understood, to applications for license to export these less essential commodities when tonnage is available and it is shown that the articles are not demanded by the war program of America and its allies. Ships which bring nitrates and other war necessities from South American nations can carry such cargoes on the home trips.

New Trade Relations.

By the adoption of the policy of more freedom in granting licenses for the export of less essential commodities to the European neutrals and South America, it is felt that a long step will be taken in establishing America as a leading participant in the world's commerce. New trade relations, in the case of South America, will, it is believed, be built up, which Germany will find it difficult to encroach upon after the war.

Exports must go in tonnage controlled in the neutral nations, and which will not in any way conflict with the war program of the Allies, and all trade relations will be absolutely controlled by the laws which have been adopted to prohibit trade which might aid German financial or business interests in European neutral or South American countries.

CABINET ADJUNCT IN BRITAIN

LONDON, June 19.—Chancellor Bonar Law, in the House of Commons, and Earl Curzon, in the House of Lords, today gave explanations of a report that another Cabinet for home affairs was to be created.

Mr. Bonar Law said that the report was an entire mistake. It was simply intended to appoint a committee to deal with definite sets of questions, and the ultimate authority would be the War Cabinet.

Earl Curzon was more explicit. He said that a committee on home affairs would be appointed. It would consist of members connected with the principal home departments and would meet, under the Presidency of the Home Secretary, at least once a week. All domestic questions requiring the co-operation of more than one department would be referred to the committee, which would be empowered to reach decisions on behalf of the Cabinet. But the larger questions of policy, he added, would be referred, at the Chairman's direction, to the War Cabinet.

In the course of the debate in the House of Commons today several members criticised the alleged extravagance of the Government finance and the needless multiplying of official bodies. The Chancellor, in reply, contended that in such a tremendous affair as the war some extravagance was inevitable, but, he said, the Government was doing everything possible to check the expenditure, and had already, by taking control of commodities, saved the country many millions.

FULTON MOTOR TRUCKS
FARMINGDALE, LONG ISLAND

"Triple-Heated" Gas the Secret of FULTON Mileage!

As a result FULTON one and a half ton trucks average 12 to 14 miles to the gallon—far beyond the best performance of other trucks of similar capacity. (Booklet "Triple-Heated Gas" tells how.)

This exclusive feature has caused the FULTON one and a half ton truck to be immediately admitted to the conservative fleets of the Standard Oil Company—John Wanamaker—Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company—Texas Oil Company—and more than three hundred other lines of business. Other FULTON features are no less exceptional.

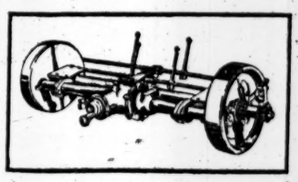

Materials the best obtainable. Five and a quarter inch frame. Internal gear drive rear axle (applying 92% of power direct to the rear wheels), secondary dead axle carries the load and increases tire mileage. An extra cross member is hot riveted to the frame, to support the drive shaft which operates through a ball bearing, reducing friction and eliminating all "whip" with its destructive wear and tear.

A silent, smooth-running motor that more than meets every requirement. 362 cubic inches of radiator cooling surface—sufficient for any climate.

Extra heavy, "Double Wrapped" springs,—the United States Government approved method of dividing the stress through two "main" spring leaves instead of just one.

Present day American efficiency and economy demand a truck with these unusual qualifications for lowest cost per mile. Speed up your hauling and relieve the railroads—at a saving by installing FULTONS. Price $1620 f.o.b. Farmingdale, Long Island. "At the Port of New York."

The internal gear drive axle is admittedly the most efficient final drive for commercial vehicles. The dead weight of the load is carried on a solid axle while the power is applied through an entirely separate member. The push is given to the wheels near the rim—not at the hub. This gives far greater leverage and reduces driving stress to a minimum and increases power.

(PATENTED MARCH 26, 1918)
wins Army Officers' approval

X-Ray of Theroz Mess Kit in Action

The Theroz Mess Kit, which weighs less than two pounds (with fuel supply for ten meals), will heat up one standard can of pork and beans, spaghetti or similar canned food; heat as hot as can be eaten one standard can of any soup or stew; boil one pint of coffee, or boil water for tea, beginning with cold water at 52 deg. F. All this service is given at once, with two cubes of Theroz, in seven minutes, indoors or out, regardless of wind or weather.

Is Your Boy a Soldier?

Over there in the damp and chill of the trenches, when cut off from the camp kitchen, the boys are forced to depend upon cold food—perhaps your boy.

Remember how he hated the occasional cold meal at home. Then think what it means to have three cold meals a day. Give that boy of yours and his "bunkie" the cheer of hot food and steaming coffee, a bit of home in the trenches. Send him a Theroz Mess Kit.

Army Men say

Lieut. Col. Holcomb, Q. M. C., who made the tests for the U. S. Army, writes: "It would be invaluable not only to soldiers but to civilians as well. The device should by all means become part of the equipment of every soldier."

George W. Pratt, Capt. Ord. R. C., writes: "Has been shown to

Col. E. D. Anderson of the General Staff and Gen. Babbitt of Ordnance Dept., Equipment Div., and Maj. Murlin of the Surgeon General's office, all of whom have examined the utensil in actual operation and have commended it."

If Army Officers take the time and trouble to recommend the Theroz Mess Kit, every mother, wife, sweetheart or friend will want to know all about it for the sake of the boy over there, or in camp over here. Succeeding advertisements will show that a thorough test of the Theroz Mess Kit has been made by the commanding officers in every branch of the service, and they all recommend it for field, trench and hospital use.

Theroz on Life-Boats

And now, Uncle Sam has ordered the Theroz Mess Kit for life-boats on United States transports. He knows that hot food in time of cold and exposure may save your boy's life.

With Theroz there is no waiting for something to heat or start up. At the scratch of a match you have the full intense heat of the fuel.

Before you enjoy another home meal, see that your boy has the means to get the hot food he needs as he never needed it before.

Theroz Mess Kit
Nested (also 6½ x 3½ ins.) Price, $5.00

The Theroz Mess Kit can be set up in a jiffy, into a competent little stove, six and three-quarters inches in diameter by nine inches high. It gives fifty per cent more heat than any alcohol burning device, without waste of fuel. There is no soot or ash, and no refraction of light. The intense concentrated heat is instantly available.

The Theroz Mess Kit will do more to prevent sickness and misery in trench and hospital than any invention since the beginning of the war.

Theroz Fuel Cubes will be for sale at Army Exchanges back of both the United States and Canadian lines.

PRICE PER TIN, 20 ARMY SIZE THEROZ FUEL CUBES 35 CENTS

Theroz Fuel Cubes (Solidified alcohol) are made by a new and patented process, which converts a liquid into a solid cube (not a paste)—it will not go liquid while burning, can't explode, and burns without smoke or odor.

MISS SEARS VICTOR IN STIRRING MATCH

MISS POLLAK ADVANCES

Special to The New York Times

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Seldom has a match more strange been played in the women's national tennis championship than that in which Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston today defeated Miss Marion Zinderstein, also of Boston, in the third round of the singles event on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. The score of the encounter, which was the first clash between the real leaders in women's tennis, was 6—8, 6—2, 6—4, but while this is expressive in a degree, it can never begin to tell the keenness of the struggle that was waged, or the profligate manner in which Miss Zinderstein cast victory to the winds.

This match was started yesterday and halted by rain with Miss Sears leading in the first set at 5—4 and 40—30, and it was from that point that it was continued today. It was a contest that promised much and fulfilled the expectations of the gallery in every particular. It is no contradiction to say that Miss Zinderstein played sparkling tennis against the brilliancy shown by Miss Sears, and it is also true that Miss Zinderstein tossed the laurels away with reckless abandon because she persisted in a weakness that stood out glaringly the first day and was unabated this afternoon.

It was double falting, persisted in again and again, that wrecked Miss Zinderstein's ambitions for a place in the advanced play of the tournament. Nineteen times in the three sets she was guilty of this error, and regardless of the high quality of her play in every other particular, these lapses were enough to turn the tide of the battle against her. Sometimes the faults came singly in a game and sometimes grouped two together, and there were even three interpolated in one game, butt always it seemed that they came at critical moments when points meant games on which to establish victory.

Miss Zinderstein Reckless.

Finding her service going badly, Miss Zinderstein would possibly have fared much better had she been content to merely put the ball in play with a pit-pat stroke, but the element of caution never entered into her play and she struggled hopelessly to perfect a severe service, the cost of which was steadily wearing her down to defeat. Veterans of the courts stood aghast at her recklessness, seeing more clearly than did the player the inevitable result that was in store. But with never swerving determination she played out the contest on the lines that she had planned and fell a victim to Miss Sears, who was as steady as she was brilliant.

However, despite the many errors by Miss Zinderstein, the match held a wealth of interest for the big gallery that gathered to witness the play. The young Boston player's driving, her volleying and her overhead were all strong assets, and they were met in nearly like degree by Miss Sears. The latter, however, was not as aggressive as Miss Zinderstein, her broader tournament experience telling her that Miss Zinderstein was her own greatest foe.

There were many sharp rallies, and Miss Zinderstein's placements were sent flying to the vantage points, and ofttime to the complete confusion of Miss Sears. The latter, however, made some truly remarkable gets on shots that appeared to be clean passes. But on the whole Miss Zinderstein completely outplaced Miss Sears. For the three sets Miss Sears had only eleven placements as against thirty for Miss Zinderstein. The nineteen double faults just offset this advantage to a point, for Miss Sears was not guilty of a service error during the contest.

	FIRST SET.	P.	G.
Miss Sears—	1 4 3 6 2 5 1 4 2 4 5 0 4 7	48	6

Miss Pollak in Semi-Final.

The singles play today advanced three contestants to the semi-final round. One of the fortunate ones is Miss Helene Pollak of New York, who will meet the winner of the fourth round match between Miss Sears and Miss Clare Cassel. The others are Miss Helen Ledoux of Swarthmore and Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, in the lower half of the draw. Miss Pollak, who has fast been establishing herself in the front ranks of women players, swept through an easy match into the semi-finals, defeating Miss Dorothy Walker of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, at 6—1, 6—0. Miss Ledoux had a spirited contest before winning her way past Mrs. Robert Herrold in a third round encounter, but was not forced to extend herself in the fourth round against Miss Barbara Hooker; the score was 6—4, 6—1.

The advance of Miss Goss saw the hopes of Mrs. Spencer Fullerton Weaver blasted. The latter played a good contest against Miss Goss—in fact did possibly as well as her expectations, for the score was 6—2, 6—4, and the last set in particular showed in marked degree the perfection of Mrs. Weaver's vaunted net attack.

Lively matches were played in the continuation of the women's doubles, but the leaders swept through to victory without an upset being recorded. The event is now in the round before the semi-finals, with keen matches promised before the next brackets are attained. A match between two of the foremost teams is on the schedule for tomorrow, one that will possibly provide the best contest of the tournament. The opponents will be Mrs. George Wightman and Miss Eleanora Sears on the one side and Miss Marion Zinderstein and Miss Eleanor Goss on the other.

Brilliant Play in Doubles.

Mrs. Wightman and Miss Sears advanced this afternoon by earning a victory over Mrs. C. R. Wainwright and Miss Margaretta Dixon at 6—1, 6—0, and once more showed the perfect coordination of their work in doubles, as well as the scintillating quality of their strokes. Miss Zinderstein and Miss Goss, on the other hand, did not shine so much in a team as they did as individuals in their match against Miss Deborah Seal and Miss Mildred Willard, which was won at 6—4, 6—0.

Mrs. Rawson L. Wood and Mrs. Spencer Fullerton Weaver continue as the favorites in the upper half of the draw, their most formidable rivals being Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Mrs. Johan Rogge. Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Weaver advanced to the round before the semi-finals by defeating Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Calcott at 6—1, 6—2, and their play showed them once more in top form. Miss Bjurstedt and Mrs. Rogge were opposed by Miss Barbara and Miss Helen Hooker and gained the decision at 6—4, 6—2.

There is high promise for the mixed doubles this year with two strong teams in opposite halves of the draw. In the upper half Mrs. George Wightman and Irving S. Wright came through a first round encounter by defeating Miss Ansie Naylor and H. B. Endicott at 6—0, 6—1, and in the lower half Miss Bjurstedt and Frederick B. Alexander experienced little opposition from Miss Eleanora Sears and Percy Osborne. The score in this match was 6—1, 6—1.

The girls' national championship has narrowed down to two players, both of them in the City of Brotherly Love. In the upper half of the draw today Miss Dorothy Walker played a finely developed game against Miss Mary Heaton of Greenwich and won at 6—3, 6—0. ANDERSON BOYS VICTORS.

Young Scions of Tennis Family Prominent in Long Island Play.

OFFICERS ENTER GYMKHANA

Will Take Part in Novel Events at Phipps Field Saturday.

The Gymkhana to be held next Saturday at Phipps Field, Westbury, L. I., promises to be one of the most successful society and sporting events of the season. Officers are expected here from Canada and enthusiastic horsemen will even come from as far as Chicago to see the first real Gymkhana held in the United States—a Gymkhana which actually has had the advantage of preparation by officers who have spent many years in India.

The Gymkhana Race, which is only for men, will undoubtedly be a feature filled with amusing incidents. Undoubtedly there will be plenty of fun in the pig-sticking event, but one of the numerous features on the program which will appeal strongly to the patriotism of everybody will be the mounted tug-of-war, the riders—teams of four from the allied nations—being on bareback mounts.

To carry a plate of oranges at full tilt around a racetrack is possibly not the easiest thing, but when the plate contains five oranges and it must be held between a mounted man and woman it is perhaps extremely difficult. The Artists' Race, in which a man must not only show ability to ride but a certain facility for speedy drawing, will undoubtedly bring laughs from everybody. The total proceeds of the Gymkhana are to be devoted, without any deductions whatsoever, to the British and Canadian Patriotic Fund, for the dependents of Britishers who have gone to the front from the United States. The Gymkhana will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

BOXERS AT GARDEN TONIGHT

Impressive Array of Pugilists Will Clash for War Charity.

Professional boxers will again "do their bit" this evening at Madison Square Garden, where the War Hospital Entertainment Association will promote its benefit boxing carnival. Twenty of the leading boxers of the country have volunteered for this worthy charity to provide entertainment for the nation's returned wounded soldiers and sailors.

The contest around which the most interest is expected to centre will be between Fred Fulton, the Minnesota contender for Jess Willard's world's heavyweight title, and Charlie Weinert of Newark. This match will give boxing fans a line on the man who is being groomed to wear the heavyweight crown.

In another bout Ted (Kid) Lewis, welterweight champion, and Jack Britton, former holder of that title, will be opponents in a return match. These two boxers thrilled spectators at the recent Red Cross show with their exhibition, and another thriller is predicted for tonight. Johnny Dundee, the aggressive little Italian lightweight, will mingle with Joe Welling of the U. S. S. Granite State in another of the leading contests, while still another will bring together Battling Levinsky and Jim Tully, the latter making his initial appearance as a professional. Tully now is amateur champion.

RIBBONS WON BY THOMPSON HORSES

Nestledown Masterpiece Gets First Place in Saddle Class at White Plains Show.

Horses entered by J. Campbell Thompson brought their owner leading laurels yesterday at the opening of the twenty-fifth annual Westchester County Horse Show at Gedney Farms, White Plains, N. Y. Mr. Thompson was awarded ribbons for first, second and third prizes in classes in which he entered. His blue ribbon came in the local saddle horse class for animals over 15.2 hands, ridden by amateurs. Nestledown Masterpiece was the leader in this class, with George Wallin's Big Tree second and Mrs. Charles D. Folsom's Radium third. Radium had previously gained a third ribbon for Mrs. Folsom in the class for novice saddle horses.

The indisposition of Nestledown Pastime, Mr. Thompson's gray gelding and a crack jumper, probably deprived the owner of a more conspicuous showing in the hunter class. Nestledown Pastime, mild and agreeable up to the time it was summoned into the ring for its effort over the brush and sticks, suddenly took a keen dislike to the task. The animal, handled by Charles M. Greer, Jr., reared and leaped into the air approaching the gate to the ring, trying hard to unseat its rider. Young Greer worked hard to keep the animal in a submissive mood, but Nestledown Pastime dashed off madly through surrounding hedges and a wooden fence bordering the judges' stand.

Charles D. Lanier's chestnut gelding Down East carried off the blue in this class, while Horses Home Farm's Earl G. II. received the red. Miss Ivy Maddison rode Mrs. James P. Kineon's Rock Cress and gained fourth prize. Miss Maddison also rode S. S. Norton's Merry-Go-Round in the novice jumping class, but failed to get a place among the four ribbon winners.

Ideal conditions prevailed for the opening day's judging and it was demonstrated that despite the war the show horse hasn't been forgotten.

The novice classes, for saddle horses and jumpers, attracted big entries and were popular with the spectators. Miss Michelle Newborg was the most successful exhibitor in this branch of the show, gaining a blue ribbon in the saddle class for animals of 15.2 hands or over, and a white ribbon in the class for novice jumpers. Her entry in the latter class was Killarney Jim, a chestnut gelding.

The appearance of cavalrymen of Squadron A and Major J. K. Brown, on mounts in several of the classes, lent a military tone to the show, which is being held this year for the benefit of the Red Cross. Only one prize was awarded to the country's fighters, however, this being a white ribbon to Madame Du Barry in the novice saddle class for horses over 14.2 and not more than 15.2 hands.

The awards:

McTAGGART DAY AT RACES.

Though the Garden City event was the feature of the card, there was more enthusiasm over the handicap, which was a thrilling race in which the speed was so well maintained that Sun Flash II. hung up 1:45 4-5 and came within two-fifths of a second of the track record for a mile and a sixteenth, held jointly by Roamer and George Smith.

McTaggart's perfect handling of the winner pleased the crowd even more than the victory of the favorite. This lad had been subjected to considerable criticism at Belmont Park, and though much of the adverse comment probably was undeserved, it led to his taking a short vacation on the invitation of his employer, R. T. Wilson, Jr. All his shortcomings were forgotten when he showed the rarest judgment in the running of the Montague and brought his mount home after apparently being well beaten at the head of the stretch.

Little Mergler also gave a capable exhibition of riding in the Garden City Selling Stakes. He followed closely the pace set by Wise Man until the stretch and made his run just at the right moment to come away and win by a length from Obolus, which closed fast and beat Wise Man by two lengths for the place.

YANKS CREEP CLOSE TO TOP OF LEAGUE

Defeat Washington, 9 to 0, at Polo Grounds and Threaten Red Sox Lead.

The Yanks came back to their native heath yesterday and spruced up to the point of trimming the Washingtons, 9 to 0, thereby creeping up within a game of the League leadership. The Boston Red Sox were beaten by the Athletics, and Miller Huggins's lads are liable to be out leading the parade any of these fine mornings.

The undeniable batting enthusiasm of the Yanks was too much for Shaw, who pitched the first six innings for the Senators, and Shaw's successor, a huge lad named Garland Buckeye from Peoria, proved to be the wildest individual that has broken into major league circles in many a day. Buckeye is a southpaw and is just out of high school. He looks strong enough to push over a bridge, but as he was a stranger at the Polo Grounds he had no idea where the plate was located.

In the two innings of Buckeye's début he uncorked half a dozen bases on balls, four of them coming in the seventh, when he forced in a run. Buckeye still retains his minor league windup, and goes through all the motions of a windmill at full speed. Baker, Pratt, Pipp, and Bodie all emerged from the bench at the same time to greet Buckeye, and this array of heavy thumpers lined up waiting with their vicious looking bats didn't tend to quiet the green southpaw's nerves very much.

Not many pitching débutants are asked to face such an ordeal as Buckeye encountered, and it is to his credit that he settled down in time to fan Truck Hannah for the third out when the table was all set for a run banquet in the seventh round.

Although Russell was slammed for eight hits, he received fine support, which included three double plays. He was in danger in the second inning, when two hits and a pass crowded the bases, with two out. It was fortunate that a pitcher was the next citizen up to the bat, for Shaw fanned.

The Yanks slammed Shaw hard in the opening inning and made enough runs in that opening flutter to win the game. Gilhooley singled to left and took second on Shotten's fumble. Peck laid a grasser in front of the plate, and although Gilhooley was caught off second base, the Washington infield began to chase both Gilhooley and Peck, and the latter was tagged out, while Gilhooley got safely back to second.

Baker walked and Pratt singled to right, scoring Gilhooley, while Baker went to third, Pratt taking second on the throw-in. Pipp's single to centre scored Baker and Pratt. Pipp went to third on Bodie's single. Marsans hoisted an easy fly to Sam Rice, which Sam muffed, Pipp scoring. Rice recovered the ball in time to force Bodie at second.

Sam Rice, who is a private at Fort Terry, enjoyed a day's vacation, playing right field for Washington. He made a great circus catch of Pratt's long drive in the fifth.

OESCHGER'S GIFT IS FATAL.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Oeschger's base on balls to Wickland, after Boston filled the bases on a single, and two fumbles by McGaffigan, sent over the winning run in the opening game of the series here today. The score was 3 to 2. In seven of the nine innings only three men faced Rudolph, and in six innings only three faced Oeschger. The score:

ONE RUN WINS FOR CUBS.

PITTSBURGH, June 19.—A pitcher's duel between Douglass and Harmon here today resulted in a Chicago victory over the Pirates, 1 to 0. The visitors scored the only run of the game in the opening inning on hits by Flack and Hollocher and Merkle's lift, Harmon's throw to the plate being too late to get Flack.

THIRTEENTH INNING FATAL TO GIANTS

Ross Young Muffs Fly Ball, Letting Cheney Score Tally That Wins for Robins, 2 to 1.

Ross Young dropped a fly ball off the bat of Jake Daubert yesterday in the thirteenth inning of the renewal of the ancient struggle between the Giants and Dodgers at Ebbets Field and gave the Brooklyn ball players a victory by 2 to 1 over the champions.

Young's muff came after a strenuous chase from his position in right field over near centre field, and set about 3,000 inhabitants of the borough across the bridge shouting the joys of victory. That muff sent Larry Cheney across the plate with the run that broke a 1-to-1 tie and gave the unfortunate Robins courage with which to face the New York clan in their second battle this afternoon.

Previous to the nerve-racking experience of Young, Ebbets Field had been the scene of a great ball game in which all the traditional diamond enmity of the two boroughs was manifest. The greatest manifestation came in the Giants' half of the thirteenth inning when Manager McGraw scented victory, only, to his way of thinking, to be robbed of it.

The Giants, battling tooth and nail to the unlucky frame, managed to fill the bases with two down in this inning, and there were rosy hopes of a Giant marker before the third out. Al Demaree, after twirling an effective game to that period, started the ball rolling with a single to centre. Burns made a bold bid for a hit to left field which might have scored Demaree then and there, but Zach Wheat was on the job, and with a great display of sprinting ability managed to spear the ball in his gloved hand.

Young got a life when O'Mara fumbled his grounder, Demaree pulling up at second, and when Cheney threw out Fletcher both runners advanced a peg. Kauff walker, filling the bases, and then the trouble came.

With such an opportunity before him Manager McGraw was alert in every nerve. Heinie Zimmerman was at the plate and was expected to jam a Giant tally across the plate. The Bronx idol grounded to Olson, who threw to Mike Doolan at second, forcing Kauff, according to Umpire Augie Moran, lately inducted into the National League service. McGraw didn't have the same opinion of the play and he didn't hesitate to say so.

The Giant manager whirled out to Umpire Moran in a cloud of dust. He danced in the air, threw his cap on the ground, and followed the headpiece with his glove. But all to no purpose. Umpire Moran said that Kauff was out in the first place, and that settled it—and the Giants.

SOCIALIST MISSION SUPPORTS WILSON

FOUR LEAVE FOR EUROPE

Hillquist Says Delegates Do Not Represent Socialism, and Predicts Failure.

A committee of pro-war Socialists has been sent to Europe under the auspices of the Social Democratic League of America. The committee will attend the Interallied Socialist and Labor Conference in London on June 28, and will then visit France, Italy, Switzerland, and possibly Russia to present America's policy in the war.

The committee consists of seven members. The four who have sailed are headed by A. M. Simons of Wisconsin, formerly a member of the Executive Committee of the Socialist Party. The others are John Spargo, also formerly a member of the Executive Committee of the Socialist Party; Louis Kopelin, editor of The New Appeal, formerly The Appeal to Reason, and Alexander Howat of Kansas, President of District 14 of the United Mine Workers of America. Two of the committee, Charles Edward Russell and Professor George D. Herron, are at present in Europe, and Frank Bohn of New York, the seventh member, will sail soon.

The London conference will take up the question of the holding of an international conference at Berne in July or August, at which labor and Socialist representatives of the Central Powers may be present. The American delegation will oppose the holding of a meeting at Berne or elsewhere with representatives of the Central Powers, unless certain conditions are complied with by the delegates from the Central Powers. One of the conditions is that all delegations from the "autocratic countries must consist exclusively of those who are actively engaged in an effort to bring about an immediate revolutionary overthrow of their governments."

Expect Kerensky to Attend.

Before sailing Mr. Spargo said he thought Alexander Kerensky, who overthrew the Provisional Government of Milliukoff in Russia, would be present at the London conference. He understood that Kerensky was delaying his visit to this country for that purpose.

Mr. Spargo said the object of the committee was not primarily to attend the conference, but to visit the allied countries to interpret the position of American Socialists to their European confreres. The expedition, he said, was financed by the Social Democratic League of America and by a group of "unattached pro-war Socialists."

At the office of the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy, where the news of the departure of the delegates was made public, it was said yesterday that the mission had the support of the Administration, and that the State Department had co-operated in every possible way and enabled the delegates to obtain their passports in twelve hours. It was also said that if the members of the mission disagree on method they will cable to the Administration Committee of the Social Democratic League for instructions. The Chairman of the league is Henry J. Slobodin, and its members include J. G. Phelps Stokes and William English Walling.

Describing the purposes of the mission, Chairman Simons said:

"We are going to London to present to the Socialists of Europe the American interpretation of democratic internationalism. We are still opposed to the whole Stockholm Conference scheme, root and branch. But as Socialists and Internationalists we are not opposed to the right kind of a conference. We do not think anything can be gained even by 'conversations' about peace at the present time, if I may use an expression of Arthur Henderson. But we do not believe any possible harm could result from a meeting of genuine Democrats and Internationalists when the proper time arrives. But the conditions of this meeting would have to be laid down with absolute clearness in advance.

To Insist on Wilson Program.

"These conditions, as already decided upon by the present delegation, are:

"1. The unconditional acceptance by each and every delegate attending the conference of the peace terms of democracy, as formulated by President Wilson on Jan. 8 and the Entente Socialists in London on Feb. 22. These terms are not to be regarded as a basis of negotiation or conversation, but as an absolute minimum to be accepted by every delegate in advance.

"2. No delegates can be admitted who are not lending their whole power to democracy in its present warfare against autocracy.

"3. All delegations from autocratic countries must consist exclusively of those who are actively engaged in an effort to bring about an immediate revolutionary overthrow of their Governments."

John Spargo, who is Chairman of the Social Democratic League, said that the German and Austrian Socialists have forfeited their right to be called Socialists and to be admitted to the Internationale. "They have identified themselves with the crimes of their Governments," he said. "They have not scrupled to use their position in the Internationale to serve military absolutism and to betray their comrades of other lands.

"It is the position of the Social Democratic League that the German and Austrian Socialists are such in name only. They are not our comrades. They are traitors to our cause. There must be a frank judgment of the German and Austrian Socialist movements by the Internationale. Judged by its conduct during the war, and especially by its base betrayal of the Russian revolution, the German Social democracy must be branded as an enemy of the working class of the world, including the working class of Germany."

Morris Hillquit, commenting on the departure of the mission, said last night that the mission would be futile and would not accomplish anything.

"The vague term 'representatives of American socialism' means nothing," he said. "The conference is one of duly accredited members of the Socialist parties in the Entente countries. The men on this mission are not members of the Socialist Party and do not represent the party in any way. They will have no influence on the interallied conference. Their mission is futile."

BARS SOCIALIST CONFEREE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 19.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns from an official British source that Pieter Troelstra, the Dutch Social Democratic leader, will not receive a passport for England.

Troelstra was reported to have received already a passport to attend a conference of the British Labor Party June 26 with Branting. The reason for not granting the privilege to him is that the British National Seamen's and Firemen's Union might object to carrying him, as in the case of Ramsey MacDonald. It would be considered a regrettable incident to leave Troelstra stranded on the beach at the Hook of Holland. As is already known, the League of Neutral Nations sent a telegram to Havelock Wilson warning against Troelstra's visit to England.

There has been considerable flutter at The Hague since the news was first announced that Troelstra had been invited by Henderson. There were doubtless persons here who rubbed their hands in joyful anticipation, but others were much concerned at the supposed permission.

No sooner was it announced that the Dutch Social Democratic leader would attend the meeting than both German and Austrian Social Democratic delegates, among them Scheidemann, were rushed to The Hague at the utmost possible speed to consult him. Scheidemann left yesterday evening for Berlin.

Gen. Crowder's Order for Revision by Local Boards Exceeds Expectations.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secretary Baker's withdrawal of his opposition gave fresh impetus today to the proposal to extend the draft age limit, so that the War Department will have available at no distant date ample man power to carry out President Wilson's program of an army of unlimited size.

Officials in the office of Provost Marshal General Crowder immediately began preparation of statistics showing results which might be expected by extending the draft to various ages between 18 and 45 years, the limits fixed in a bill by Senator France of Maryland. It is expected that this information will be presented soon to the Senate Military Committee, which is considering the France bill.

Early reports on the results of the reclassification of men by local boards indicate that more than 250,000 men will be added to Class 1 by this means, as against the original estimate of 200,000. Operation of General Crowder's "work or fight" regulations, which become effective July 1, also is expected to add to the total in the first class. Each district is expected to have near the national average of 28.7 per cent. of its total registration in Class 1 when the re-classification has been completed.

Announcement of definite rulings on what are to be termed useful employments under the work or fight regulations is expected soon, probably before the end of the week. An opinion on the status of baseball players is awaiting General Crowder's decision. It is understood that the game will be classed as a sport, but that the opinion has provisions to guard against interference with professional league schedules this season.

Much weight is being given to the many and slight variations which exist under the general headings named in the regulations. To cite one of a hundred cases, draft officials found it difficult to decide whether a chauffeur is engaged in a useful occupation. It is realized that in certain circumstances a chauffeur is an essential employe, and the probabilities are that he will come under the same regulations as domestics, with each case determined on its merits.

Results of the Government's ultimatum that loafing would not be tolerated during the war already are being felt in various parts of the country. Unofficial reports from several States show the immediate improvement in the labor market and a decrease in the number of vagrants and other idlers.

Amplifying his statement withdrawing his opposition to extending the draft ages, Mr. Baker said today that the only reason for his having hesitated to submit a recommendation to Congress on the subject was a desire to learn the possible effect upon vital industries of the country.

There are a great many industries almost as vital to the successful prosecution of the war as is the army itself," the Secretary said. "The railroads, for instance, and the steel industry. It is just as necessary to keep these at highest efficiency as it is to mobilize an adequate army."

The Secretary of War indicated that any recommendation he made on the subject would include a reiteration of his original proposal that nineteen years be made the minimum limit. Mr. Baker has never voiced an opinion as to the proper maximum limit since his first suggestion of twenty-six years was rejected by Congress.

President Wilson today set July 31 as the date for the registration under the selective service law of male residents of Hawaii who have reached their majority since July 31, 1917.

27,808 GERMAN WOMEN REGISTERED IN ONE DAY

The number of German women who had filed affidavits in this city yesterday as a step in registration reached a total of 27,808, while 10,190 women completed the process of registration. The figures by boroughs announced at Police Headquarters last night were as follows:

Borough.	Affidavits Filed.	Completed.
Manhattan	12,808	4,418
Bronx	4,424	1,447
Brooklyn	6,766	2,639
Queens	3,317	1,507
Richmond	429	177
Total	27,808	10,190

It was reported at Police Headquarters that between 40,000 and 50,000 German women had obtained blanks at the police stations on which to make their affidavits. It is believed that the original estimate that 50,000 women would register will be exceeded by several thousand when the registration period closes on Saturday night. Rufus W. Sprague, Jr., in charge of the New York Fort Allen Enemy Bureau, said yesterday that the number of women registering was considerably above the expectations of the Government. He added that he wished German women to understand that all information given in the affidavits would be regarded as strictly confidential.

It was reported at Police Headquarters that the registration had proceeded very smoothly and that no disturbance had been reported at any of the stations. The police in various precincts said the proceeding was looked upon strictly as a matter of business by all concerned, and that few women displayed any embarrassment or concern, although most of them did not relish the ordeal of being finger-printed. Furnishing photographs they did not mind.

Some of the women had lived in this country for many years and disliked being classified as enemy aliens. This was especially true in the case of many German women who had sons and daughters born in this country who had grown up full American citizens. A number of those who registered were women whose husbands had died before they had lived long enough in this country to take out naturalization papers, which would have automatically conferred citizenship on their wives. Some of the women in this class had regarded themselves as Americans and had reared their children as Americans, and did not learn that their status was technically that of subjects of the Kaiser until the present law went into effect.

Drive in Theatres for War Savings.

Plans were made yesterday to include the theatres in the drive for 2,000,000 war savings pledges which will be launched tomorrow. A number of theatrical managers, representing about twenty houses, met yesterday with Frederic W. Allen, War Savings Director for New York City, at the headquarters of the National War Savings Committee. Three-minute speeches will be made by the leading performers at all performances.

SHIP BOARD FIGHTS BONE DRY PROPOSAL

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Asserting that wartime prohibition of the use of all alcoholic beverages such as beer and light wines would result in intense dissatisfaction and probably in reduction of the shipyard output to the extent of 25 per cent., Bainbridge Colby, member of the Shipping Board, today urged the Senate Agriculture Committee to eliminate the Jones "bone dry" amendment from the Emergency Food bill.

Mr. Colby voiced, as he stated, the unanimous opinion of the Shipping Board and officials of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and some members of the committee regarded the statement as reflecting the President's view and frankly predicted that the committee would reject the Jones amendment, which would put ironclad prohibition upon the country for the period of the war.

The opposite view of the question was presented by William Jennings Bryan, who disputed Mr. Colby's statements regarding the reduction of output. The committee announced after the conclusion of Mr. Bryan's speech that its hearings are ended. It will meet tomorrow to take final action upon the Jones amendment.

In opposing the amendment Mr. Colby said:

"I come to you from the United States Shipping Board and from its subsidiary company, the Emergency Fleet Corporation, to place at your service an opinion which has been very deliberately and quite unanimously arrived at as to the effect upon the nation's shipbuilding of this proposed legislation. It is the firm belief of the men to whom the nation has intrusted the great task of building our troop ships and our merchant marine that this legislation will produce widespread disaffection among the ranks of the shipworkers, and will result in a very great diminution of our tonnage output. Of course the extent of this diminution must, until ascertained by experience, be a matter of opinion, but the most conservative opinion that has found expression in our councils upon the subject is that it will amount to at least 25 per cent. of the output of our shipyards."

"We have nearly 350,000 men working in the shipyards at the present time. We hope to see the number progressively increase. Many of these men are of foreign birth or extraction; many have been brought up in our large cities where much store is set upon individual liberty. They have had a different bringing up from the nice people in Kansas and Nebraska. They have different notions of what constitute their individual rights. You know that the labor in the shipyards is muscle-racking, arduous, and exhausting. Many of these men are accustomed to light alcoholic stimulant. They regard beer as a food. To rend old habits is to subject them to a physical hardship, and with that there goes a feeling of resentment at what they regard as an infringement of their liberty. This must give rise to disaffection and disaffection is something that we have been striving our utmost to overcome.

"This is not a food conservation measure. The sponsors of this legislation may entitle it a conservation measure, but they are for it because it is a prohibition measure. The food conservation department of the Government has not pronounced this legislation a necessity, and until it does the public will regard this in its true guise, as an effort to advance the prohibition frontier.

"This is no time to inject into the deliberations of Congress a sectarian spirit. The attention of the country should not be deflected from the great work of war by disputes and contentions of this kind. It is not fair to the great silent and loyal masses of the people, who will submit to anything in order to win victory for our arms and for our allies. It smacks of intimidation. It is the legislative strong-arm applied at a time when we should be mutually forbearing and tolerant in the presence of great national dangers.

"Let us fight. Let us not busy ourselves with the attempt, in the very presence of the enemy, to accomplish not only a revolution in the conduct of our good, patriotic people, but to reform their very appetites as well. The cry of the world today is not for teetotalers, but for fighters."

Bryan Offers a Plan.

In opposing Mr. Colby, Mr. Bryan said facts showed that workers deprived of beer did not lose their efficiency. He cited the Mare Island shipyard, in California, where he said that workers, after a dry régime began, put out a ship in record time.

"Could they have done better than that if they had been allowed to drink?" asked Mr. Bryan. "I think not."

He suggested that the committee, if it wished to safeguard the financial interests of those engaged in the beer and wine producing industries, provide a sliding scale arrangement for prohibition, so that the vine growers of California, for instance, should not lose the crop of grapes now maturing.

In connection with Mr. Bryan's testimony concerning conditions in the yards in some Western States it was pointed out today that the labor situation in the different localities could not be made the basis of fair comparison, as the percentage of foreign-born workers in the Western yards was much lower than the percentage in the shipyards in other districts.

LABOR FEDERATION PLEADS FOR MOONEY

St. Paul Convention Asks Wilson and Governor of California to Intercede.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 19.—Resolutions, calling upon President Wilson and the Governor of California to use their powers to obtain a new trial for Thomas J. Mooney, were features of the session today of the American Federation of Labor Convention. Mooney is under sentence of death in California for alleged participation in a Preparedness Day bomb tragedy in San Francisco.

The Mooney resolution, which was passed unanimously, asserted that unless Mooney was to go to the gallows with the belief prevailing that his conviction was obtained through perjured testimony, a new trial must be granted. An appeal to the Governor of California asks that Executive to "dispel the impression that a grave miscarriage of justice is being allowed with the knowledge of the authorities."

Secretary of Labor Wilson, addressing the convention, conveyed President Wilson's high appreciation of the united efforts of organized labor in preparing the country industrially for war.

In an address to the convention today, M. Justin Godart, head of a French war mission to the United States, declared that a union of French and American workers would be one of the results of the conflict in Europe. M. Godart, who, together with other members of his mission, was guest of the convention today, said that the prevailing thought in the minds of the soldiers and workers of France was to win the war. Replying, President Samuel Gompers said:

"We ask you to hold out a little longer. We are coming and America's workers and soldiers are determined to see this war through to the end."

The convention adopted resolutions asking that shipments of newsprint paper to other than countries of the Entente be prohibited for the duration of the war. The resolutions declared the print paper shortage to be due to strikes, lockout, and low wages.

Another resolution adopted protested against any increase in postage rates on second-class mail matter, it being asserted that newspapers are disseminators of war news in which every person in the country is interested. It was asserted that the new postal law, which goes into effect on July 1, would tend to create zones of thought and to promote sectionalism.

SOCIALISTS NAME EASTMAN.

At a meeting held last night at 2,056 Fifth Avenue the New York County Socialists organization nominated Max Eastman, editor of The Liberator, as their candidate for Congress for the Eleventh Congressional District. The nomination of a candidate for the Twelfth Congressional District, now held by Meyer London, was held over.

Julius Gerber, Executive Secretary of the organization, was appointed as the head of a committee of fifteen members to draw up a list of likely candidates for the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Seventeenth Congressional Districts to be presented at a future meeting which will be held in about two weeks. Eastman was the editor of The Masses and is still under a Federal indictment on the charges made against him at the time the paper was suppressed.

Urge Mrs. Samuels as Bronx Leader

The Bronx Women's Federation for Social Service has adopted resolutions urging the election of Mrs. Rose Samuels of 810 Upton Avenue, President of the organization, as leader of the Democratic Party in the Bronx in the coming primaries. The leadership is now in the hands of a man who learned his politics in the old Tammany school. Mrs. Samuels now holds the position of Deputy Sheriff.

SCOFFS AT HEARST ATTACK ON LEWIS

Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson, campaign manager for Attorney General Lewis, yesterday made public a statement occasioned by a letter from William R. Hearst, which was published in The New York American yesterday. The letter contained caustic comment on the candidacy of Mr. Lewis, based on an interview with Mr. Robinson, printed only in the Hearst publications and since repudiated by the Senator. Mr. Hearst assailed Attorney General Lewis as a stalking horse for Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, entered in the Gubernatorial race with a view of preventing Governor Whitman from winning a third term and becoming a bothersome competitor with Colonel Roosevelt for the Presidential nomination in 1920.

In the alleged interview with Senator Robinson, who is a nephew of Colonel Roosevelt, appeared a statement attributed to the Senator, to the effect that Colonel Roosevelt would become a candidate for President, and that in preparation for 1920 he was firmly hitched up with the Lewis Gubernatorial boom. Said Mr. Robinson:

"The signed statement by William Randolph Hearst in today's New York American calls for no reply, because the animus against Attorney General Lewis, which is back of it, is apparent. It will be remembered that at the time of the exposé by Mr. Lewis of the facts in the Bolo Pacha case, which resulted in his conviction of treason at Paris and subsequent confession and execution, Mr. Lewis disclosed the fact that Mr. Hearst was a guest at a dinner at Sherry's given by Bolo Pacha."

President Pro Tem. of the Senate Elon R. Brown, Assemblyman Henry E. Machold of Jefferson, and Simon L. Adler, Majority Leader of the Assembly, were among the callers at the Lewis headquarters yesterday. Mr. Adler, who is a resident of Rochester and a member of the Monroe County Republican organization, which is on record as opposed to Mr. Lewis's candidacy, explained that his was merely a friendly call, with no political significance.

Ex-Congressman William W. Cocks of Nassau, it was announced officially yesterday, had consented to become manager of Governor Whitman's primary campaign. Mr. Cocks was in town yesterday and with Franklin D. Lord, Governor Whitman's legal adviser, and William A. Orr, secretary to the Governor, was busy hunting for campaign headquarters. It was learned last night that they were considering favorably the Hotel Manhattan, where Governor Whitman had his campaign headquarters two years ago.

Friends of the Governor were exultant yesterday over the announcement by State Senator Charles D. Newton of Livingston that he would become a candidate in the primaries for the nomination for Attorney General on the Whitman-Officeholders' Committee ticket. Senator Newton, who is an old line Republican and a cog in the Wadsworth machine in Western New York, the Governor's friends believe, will be in a position to divert a good many votes from Attorney General Lewis, Governor Whitman's opponent, in Wadsworth territory, which should be overwhelmingly for Lewis, since United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., has indorsed the candidacy of the Attorney General.

FOURTH A LOYALTY CLIMAX.

The Fourth of July celebration this year is to be a climax to the present loyalty campaign, and more than 75,000 foreign-born citizens and patriotic Americans are to participate in the exercises to show that the foreign-born of the city are in sympathy with the allied cause. Henry MacDonald, Director General of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, in charge of the parade, announced yesterday that nearly all foreign diplomats in Washington would be the city's guests on July 4 and would form a reviewing body, together with members of the National Administration, the Governor, Mayor, and Army and Navy officers.

The committee has decided to break away from the traditional parade starting time in New York. The groups will assemble in the side streets off Washington Square at 8 A. M. and an hour later the parade will start up Fifth Avenue and disband at Seventy-second Street. At that point the national groups will leave the line and march to different parts of the city. It is the committee's plan literally to cover New York City with loyalty celebrations. Brig. Gen. George F. Dyer, Grand Marshal of the parade, has detailed assistant marshals to supervise the sectional celebrations.

Special Deputy Police Commissioner Rodman Wanamaker, in charge of reserves, announced last night that the 10,000 reserves would give a free patriotic exhibition on July 4 at the Motor Speedway, Sheepshead Bay, beginning at 10 A. M. The men will drill and show fancy and rough riding. The Government will send several airplanes and dirigibles.

NATIVES' DUTY ON JULY 4.

Whitman Urges Them to Assist Foreign-Born to Celebrate the Day.

ALBANY, June 19.—Governor Whitman, in a formal statement issued tonight, urged native Americans living in New York to assist "our citizens of foreign extraction to manifest by special celebrations on July 4 their loyalty to the United States and the great cause for which we are fighting."

The statement concludes:

"It is my earnest wish that those of us who have our citizenship by birthright join on July 4 with those who have come to the land of freedom from foreign shores in linking the celebration of national and universal freedom."

WANTS WOMAN ON CICKET.

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Kings County, declared himself yesterday as in favor of the nomination of a woman for one of the State offices on the Democratic ticket this Fall and of the election of women delegates to an unofficial State convention of the party, if one is called during the Summer.

"I make no suggestion as to the place on the State ticket the women should have," said Mr. McCooey, "nor have I any choice as to the woman to be named. It is obvious that a woman should receive a nomination. The women have been granted full partnership in politics with us, and they should not be shut out from participation to the full in governmental matters. I am thoroughly in favor of the nomination of women for public office, and I shall urge upon the party that at least one be given a place on the State ticket. Moreover, if there is to be an unofficial Democratic State conference, as planned now, I shall urge the organization in Brooklyn to send the delegates equal in number to the men."

DOWNING TO ACT AGAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 19.—The Rev. Robert Downing, pastor of the Christian Church of Portsmouth, formerly one of America's leading tragedians, and who retired from the stage ten years ago to enter the ministry of the Episcopal Church, is now in New York arranging to return to the stage, temporarily at least, to present as a vaudeville act, "Over in France," in which he is to play the rôle of a French priest.

It is his intention to produce the playlet, written by Miss Boynton of Newport, this Fall and Winter, and to have his pulpit temporarily filled during his absence. Mr. Downing offered his services some time ago to the Government as an Episcopal Chaplain, but his age was over the limit.

New Move In Senate on Child Labor.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Employers of child labor would be debarred from use of the mails under a bill introduced today by Senator Kenyon of Iowa, designed to meet the recent decision of the Supreme Court holding the child labor law unconstitutional.

THE KAISER ON PRINCIPLES.

So this is a war between light and darkness, Ahriman and Ormuzd. So it is, though in quite another way than the Kaiser means. When he was talking he had only the "Anglo-Saxons" in his mind as the enemy. The illustrations of German principles of right, freedom, honor, and morality given by the war make his reference to them a piece of monumental involuntary irony. The Anglo-Saxon worship of mammon has frequently been dwelt on by the inspired German press. Since everybody in Germany and out of it knows that the swift expansion of German prosperity after the Franco-Prussian war has made it a country of the new rich, since grossly material aims have supplanted the derided German idealism of the Germany of philosophers and poets, since Berlin itself has become the capital of the most vulgar luxury and coarse Epicureanism, even the Germans must feel that the Kaiser was standing on ticklish ground when he indicted Anglo-Saxonism for mammonism. No wonder the Frankfurter Zeitung cannot swallow the Kaiser's theory. "There has been no lack of service to mammon," it says, "in Germany even in time of war."

The war itself is caused by the German thirst for the economic and military domination of the world. German imperialism has had two related purposes, the overthrow of British seapower and the erection of German naval and commercial sway in substitution, and the making of a mighty land dominion from the Baltic and the North Sea to the Persian Gulf. The fortunes of war, the treachery and fanaticism of the Bolsheviki, have added to the plan European Russia, Asiatic Russia, in hope, and greatly enlarged the Central Asian ambitions. Even in 1881 PAUL DE LAGARDE wrote that:

> It is necessary to create a Central European Power which will guarantee the peace of all the Continent from the time when the Russians and Southern Slavs are cleared from the Black Sea, and when we shall have conquered for German colonization large territories to the east of our present frontiers.

"The East," wrote the famous Orientalist Dr. ALOIS SPRENGER, in 1886, "is the only territory in the world "which has not yet been swallowed "up by a great Power. If Germany "does not miss the opportunity, but "seizes it before the Cossacks advance "from their side, she will have ac"quired the best portion in the par"tition of the world." The Bagdad Railway was to be not only a means of developing a Turco-German Anatolia, Mesopotamia, Palestine, and Syria, but a mortal blow, by land, at Egypt. "The loss of Egypt," says world-politician PAUL ROHRBACH, "would mean for England not only the "end of her dominion over the Suez "Canal, and of her connections with "India and the Far East, but would "probably entail also the loss of her "possessions in Central and Eastern "Africa."

Deliberately and scientifically, Germany has planned for years to add to her riches and to her military power by grabbing or exploiting other nations, from Holland and Scandinavia to India and the South Seas. The sword for the purse has been German policy since the time of the Teutonic Knights. In Russia, especially since the Empress CATHERINE'S time, the agriculturist, the trader, the traveling man of science, were but pioneers of German political and military influence. Everywhere in the world, the German settler, the German missionary even, was expected to be an agent of German trade, influence, political and commercial plans. The Kaiser himself in his visits to Turkey and the East was but a bagman with the sabre, that sabre which rattled so at Agadir. "The continued existence of Turkey," says Prince VON BUELOW, "serves our "interest from the industrial, military "and political points of view." From those three points of view, the German oligarchy contemplates foreign countries.

It has been fatal to the German sense of international morality, fatal to peace, that hitherto Prussian wars have paid. The war with Denmark, the war with Austria, the war with France enlarged German power, and the last created the German Empire. The gigantic leaps and bounds of German industry, finance and commerce since the Franco-Prussian war have stimulated German hopes of similar and more grandiose results. A look at the map, with its present show of German conquests, with its unlimited potentialities of wealth, must be the principal consolation of the German middle classes at present.

The German god is Mammon-Mars. From an exponent of that religion, remarks about "Anglo-Saxon mammonism" are amusing. Even more delightful is the Kaiser's saying that "all the races of the earth work as "slaves for the Anglo-Saxon ruling "race which oppresses them." This to a world that sees the Germans revive slavery, enslaving men and women of civilized races.

A GREAT DEFEAT FOR THE NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE.

In 1916 the Farmers' Non-Partisan League jumped suddenly to greatness in North Dakota. It elected the Governor and all other State officers, except the Treasurer, 81 of 113 members of the House of Representatives, 18 of 25 State Senators chosen that year, 3 Judges of the Supreme Court. Its creator or ruling spirit was Mr. A. C. TOWNLEY, not a farmer, naturally. The league cried for State elevators, flour mills, packing plants, and so on, a rural credit bank run at cost, exemption of farm improvements from taxation. The league members of the Legislature tried to change the Constitution by a statute and were not too conservative about the State's credit, the limit to which one of their philosophers would draw at "the sky-line."

Last January the league removed its headquarters to St. Paul, and President TOWNLEY declared that "the movement has become national." In Minnesota, South Dakota, Montana, Iowa, Nebraska, Michigan, Wisconsin, and we know not in how many other States, the work of adding members to the league has been busily pursued. It invaded Kansas, where its welcome seems not to have been altogether of the warmest, and New York, where the political result of its activities remains to be seen.

Mr. TOWNLEY was originally a Socialist, many Socialists and extreme radicals have had a hand in the organization of the league. For some reason or other its organizers and its orators have a singular gift for being indicted for disloyal and seditious utterances. Mr. TOWNLEY, who is under indictment, selected as the league's candidate for Governor in the Republican primaries at Minnesota Mr. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH, who has, we believe, the misfortune of, being under indictment himself. Mr. LINDBERGH is the author of the little book "Why Is Your Country at War?" Our country is at war, according to him, because the speculators have forced us into war. It was the speculators that were behind preparedness. Congress did not dare to submit conscription to the people. "We should repeal the conscription "law as soon as it can be done with "protection to those who have been "conscripted and sent abroad. Peace "with universal victory and no "defeat is what we must get out of "this war; not as a logical result of "war, but as a sequence to the ab"surdity of war." He wants "an "economic victory for the masses of "the world."

It is impossible to read Mr. LINDBERGH'S book without believing that he is a pacifist, a non-violent Bolshevist. In Minnesota, which has suffered a good deal from the I. W. W., with which the Non-Partisan League seems to have had some dealings, Mr. LINDBERGH'S sentiments have aroused a good deal of irritation. Governor BURNQUIST is known for his refusal to permit the People's Council to meet in Minnesota. It was at a Non-Partisan League conference that Senator LA FOLLETTE, whom Mr. LINDBERGH specially approves, made that celebrated speech which a committee of the Senate is, or was, investigating. There has been a strong feeling against pro-Germanism, some of the affiliations and connections with the league are unfortunate, there has been some violence, an injury to the cause of loyalty. It is our impression that Mr. TOWNLEY was not allowed to speak in the State. A certain public excitement was, perhaps, natural when an organizer of the league is reported in an Associated Press dispatch from Duluth as saying that

> Every time a league member is tarred and feathered, or otherwise abused, or a league meeting is forbidden, an American soldier held as a prisoner in the hands of Germany is forced to suffer bodily punishment.

Both the Democratic candidates for Governor in the primaries were loyal men. It is a satisfaction to loyal men everywhere to hear that Governor BURNQUIST has beaten Mr. LINDBERGH by more than 75,000 votes. For an association of "national scope," which was about to take possession of Minnesota, as it took possession of North Dakota, this disastrous defeat must be a bitter disillusion. But it takes $16 to become a member of the league. There are said to be some 200,000 members. Even without "special privilege," Mr. LINDBERGH'S favorite bogey, substantial financial results may be achieved.

The loyalty of most of the league members is not to be doubted. Will they not insist that their leaders shall be loyal?

ITALY AND RHEIMS.

This year, according to the German plan, is to be the Terrible Year. It is necessary to beat the Allies before the full American strength can be employed, because the full American strength is enough of itself to keep the war going for years, and Germany is in no condition to take on a task like that after the exhausting labor of the last four years. Hence the German strategy of 1918 is punch, smash, pulverize; don't give the enemy a moment's rest; keep hammering till he is groggy. However much it may cost Germany, the loss will be worth while if it achieves its object of getting the Allies up against the ropes. Germany, therefore, nerved herself to make 1918 a year of ceaseless battering.

She began in March and we have got as far as June. So far all Germany has to show for it is a good deal of useless territory and a good many casualties on both sides. The allied armies have not been broken at any point, and in three months Germany has not achieved a single objective. The year, for extensive fighting purposes, is three-sevenths gone.

What is more significant, the power and effectiveness of the Teuton blow are diminishing. The check on the Aisne was the most disastrous Germany has received, and that campaign was the shortest of the lot. Now she hurls her Austrian ally against the Roman line, and fails to register even the successes regarded as inevitable at the beginning of a drive. The Austrian bulletins, despite their desperate bluster, fail to conceal the fact that the assailants are already on the defensive along a great part of the line—are "repulsing attacks" that are growing in intensity. On the other part of the line, the Piave, they are still on the offensive, but unable to make any significant progress.

At this moment Germany attempts to surprise and capture Rheims. She fails disastrously; so, as is the custom of that nation of phrases, she seeks to minimize her defeat by inventing a combination of words. She calls the assault a "surprise fire attack," thereby meaning that it was only a raid and of no consequence anyway. But she threw 40,000 men into this "surprise fire attack," and it was no raid. Germany's faith in the bamboozling power of word combinations was never better illustrated, not even in the memorable case in which General VON EICHHORN established martial law in the Ukraine and called it by the delicious title of "a state of enhanced protection." "Surprise fire attack" has the advantage over the Eichhorn classic that on examination it is seen to mean just nothing at all.

So much for the third month of the Terrible Year. If Germany's purpose is to be achieved, it must be achieved by force that increases terribly, not lessens and weakens as the months go on. We have still four full fighting months to go through, but the record of the first three bids us be of good heart.

RADOSLAVOFF RESIGNS.

Because he has failed to satisfy the popular demand for unlimited annexations in all directions, VASSILI RADOSLAVOFF has resigned as Prime Minister of Bulgaria. It can hardly be said that RADOSLAVOFF was remiss; he demanded the Morava Valley in Northeastern Serbia, all of Serbian Macedonia, the Greek territories along the Aegean which CONSTANTINE permitted the Bulgarian armies to occupy, and the Dobrudja. But he was sitting in too big a game; Germany and Austria had plans of their own in which Bulgaria played a secondary part.

The particular failures which seem to have caused his resignation were concessions to Bulgaria's amiable ally, the Turk. As part of the price of her entry into the war, Bulgaria received from Turkey in 1915 a strip of land in Thrace, which she has lately had to cede back after prolonged negotiations. Bulgaria played the principal part in the conquest of the Dobrudja and wanted it all; but Turkey put in a claim, based on the large Turkish population in this district which Rumania had been forced to give up. Here again there was long negotiation, which finally brought a complicated settlement. The southern part of the Dobrudja was ceded to Bulgaria; but the northern part, and this included the highly valuable railway line from Cernavoda to Constantsa, was intrusted to a condominium of the four Central Powers, each controlling territory in proportion to the number of troops engaged in the Rumanian war. Germany received 40 per cent., Bulgaria 35, Austria-Hungary 18, and Turkey 7.

Obviously, this was a temporary arrangement; there was talk of the cession of the whole district to Bulgaria eventually in return for certain considerations—economic so far as Germany and Austria-Hungary were concerned, involving control of the Bulgarian railroads; territorial with regard to Turkey, presumably another cession in Thrace. KUEHLMANN himself took occasion, on his recent visit to Sofia, to assure an interviewer that there was no doubt that all of the Dobrudja would become Bulgarian as soon as certain preliminary conditions had been fulfilled.

But this was not enough to quiet the Bulgarians. They had been furious at the cession in Thrace, still more furious at the negotiations over the Dobrudja. The newspaper organ of ALEXANDER MALINOFF, who apparently is to be recalled to the head of the Government, has lately been conducting a vigorous campaign against the Thracian and Rumanian policy of RADOSLAVOFF.

What MALINOFF'S policy will be in detail remains to be seen, but if he wants to retain his office long it seems to be certain that he will have to try to get the rest of the Dobrudja somehow as soon as possible. This is hardly likely to improve Bulgaria's standing with her more powerful allies, who have their own reasons for the condominium arrangement; and it will certainly spoil whatever chance there might have been of bringing about a rapprochement between Bulgaria and Rumania.

RADOSLAVOFF has served his country well. He is a graduate of Robert College and of Heidelberg; certain persons in this country feel confident that American ideals have had a great effect on him, which is no great compliment to American ideals; it would be more comforting to blame it on Heidelberg. He and his monarch kept Sir EDWARD GREY hoodwinked almost till the beginning of Bulgarian mobilization against Serbia. His Ministry had come into office in the dark days of 1913, and by angling cautiously for the highest bid he succeeded in brilliantly retrieving the misfortunes of that year. But this was of no avail when he failed to carry away all the plunder; they are realists in Bulgaria, and they know what they want.

WESTERN UNION'S CASE.

The President of the Western Union pleads that he has not refused to accept the award of the War Labor Board, for the reason that there has been no award, nor even any dispute between the company and its employés. There is no threat of a strike by the company's employés, all reports of that sort arising from the propaganda of a union seeking to use the processes of the War Labor Board for the purpose of unionizing the company against the wishes of the company's employés and the public interests. There is no similar formal statement upon the part of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, but the Federation of Labor has telegraphed to the President its protest against the policy of the Western Union in refusing to allow its workers to join the union of their preference.

It is necessary to say that the company's statement puts a new face on the matter. It confines itself to the specific conditions arising under a protocol outside of which neither side to the controversy should wander. The merits of the closed or union shop ought not now to be raised. Capital and labor have agreed that the status before the war shall continue until peace returns. But the War Labor Board and the Federation alike raise a question difficult of decision in normal times, and improperly raised now. The adjustment of the relations between labor and capital is of such importance that it should be made by a direct decision, and not incidentally to questions of another sort.

It is singular that Mr. TAFT should stray so far outside the pleadings and decide a question not up for decision. It is more singular still to find it stated that the Western Union had rejected an award when there had not been even an appointment of an umpire, as the protocol requires when the decision is not unanimous. That is so far from being the case that there were two votes taken upon a mere report to the board. The votes were contradictory, the two joint Chairmen casting the decisive votes alternately in favor of the employers and the employés. The deadlock, therefore, is emphasized rather than decided in favor of either side.

There is further recourse under the protocol before it can be said to be exhausted. Both sides now are appealing to the President. It would seem that he might be left undisturbed until there has been an appeal to an umpire, the very case having arisen which contemplated his appointment. Also it would seem that the talk of Government seizure and operation of the telegraph companies is too heroic a remedy for a trouble as yet of minor importance. The best use to which the incident can be turned is to form opinion respecting other similar cases, one good settlement including others on like principles.

Collective bargaining is a fetich, a delusion, and a snare, unless it is given teeth which shall hold whatever they close upon. Experience has shown that a bargain depends upon the character of the promisors. Capital sometimes breaks bargains skillfully and intelligently, so that it baffles labor. Labor breaks bargains ruthlessly sometimes. There is not much choice between the methods of a Potsdam or Bolshevist autocracy regarding such scraps of paper as protocols, and there is not much hope from them unless they are given a legal sanction, binding both sides. Employers would make them more readily if they had hopes of receiving the promised benefits. Labor might make them less readily if it thought that they would be enforced strictly. That would be small loss, for a protocol is worse than useless if signed merely to be broken when the occasion arises.

It is timely to revive this suggestion now, when the public mind is alive to the sacredness of treaties, and needs only to be reminded how often such labor treaties have failed when tried for lack of law behind them. Mr. STRAUS devised such a plan during the street car strike of 1916. Mr. JULIUS H. COHEN devised another during the garment strike. The history of several industries shows that the value of collective bargains depends upon good faith on both sides, and enforceability upon either if recalcitrant. The Federation would take on new dignity if it were a party to such collective bargaining, instead of being a partisan and condemning capital before cause shown, as in the present case. Capital's protection from a protocol with a legal sanction would be obvious to Mr. CARLTON if he would consider the chance of his own union falling under bad influences and being turned against him. Even if the Western Union's union is a good union, it always would be liable to counterattack, as in the present case. It would be a pity that the present flurry should not be utilized in so good a cause.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Imaginings Become Realities.

In one sense, there is nothing new in the story, presented in one of THE TIMES special dispatches yesterday, of a battle off the Dutch coast that was waged recently between two squadrons of aerial men-of-war. Not a few stories like that in all essential details have been told before more than once, but they were all works avowedly of fiction—the products of vivid imaginations to which free rein had been given by men who supposed that they were presenting at best only the possibilities of some remote future. Those narratives were merely waking dreams, too fantastic to be dignified as the expression of beliefs or hopes.

But already what a few years ago was phantasy has become reality. Lieutenant KEYES described a real "battle in the air," between winged ships that carried officers and crews and ordnance like war craft sailing on instead of over the sea. It had the complicated evolutions of terrestrial battles, though far swifter than land or water has known through all the ages, and the end was the victory for one side, the defeat for the other, in which well-fought battles always have been wont to result. Also, there were the familiar "casualties"—men dead and wounded—and the still more familiar giving out of the news by a chronicler who could rejoice over the outcome.

He told well his triumphant tale—told it modestly and yet vividly—but, as usually happens when it is a participant in battle who talks, he knew so thoroughly just what happened, and how, that he forgot to be explicit as to some details of the fight. He did not make quite clear, for instance, just how many men there were in the airplane on which he flew; nor did he enable us groundlings to understand precisely how it is that the aerial sailors of this day can do at once two things demanding so much attention as do the navigating of the most unstable of all the means of locomotion employed by human beings and the conduct of offense and defense in the presence of an equally active and skillful enemy.

There may have been other such fights as this, but if so they have not come to public knowledge. All air combats were supposed to be over in a few minutes after close engagement, but this one lasted over seven hours, with never an instant of rest!

England's Neglected Opportunity.

At one of the New York theatres, this week, a popular comedian offers for the consideration of his auditors a jest seemingly not to be made without danger of giving offense to some of his hearers. The histrion knows his business, however, and he does not provoke even a trace of the resentment that a closet psychologist would prophesy as sure to follow what he would consider a dangerous rasping of racial sensibilities. The suppositious risk is taken when the man on the stage solemnly expresses the opinion that England should grant home rule to Ireland, and then adds, after the usual preparatory pause, "She could well afford to do it if she reserved the movie rights!"

Everybody in front apparently sees the point instantly and there comes what for once it is not exaggeration to call "a roar of laughter." Yet in every New York audience there are many Irishmen. All of them take seriously Ireland's aspiration for independence, and not a few of them might be expected to see in the obvious implication of this joke a denial of all their claims as to Ireland's need for self-government and as to the blessings she would get from it. But no Irishmen thus minded seem to go to this particular place of amusement, so the probability—perhaps the certainty—is that those obvious implications are not found objectionable by any sons of the Emerald Isle.

If not, why not? The explanation may be that the hint as to what would follow home rule is accepted and applauded by Irishmen as merely amusing, and amusing because it is so fantastically far from being true. Another theory that deserves some consideration is that for a pugnacious race—one supposed to view rows with approval and to enjoy them—the suggestion that those movie rights would be enormously valuable to the owner is not a joke at all, but a neat and original formulation of commendable fact. So the closet psychologist would run on, to get nowhere in the end, presumably because of arguing from the fallacy that Irishmen are all of one sort, instead of differing among themselves exactly as other peoples do.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A trusted correspondent in the Far East writes me from Vladivostok, under date of May 6, that there are five war vessels in port: One Chinese, two Japanese, one British, and one American; but that while the British and Japanese accept the burden of protecting the Consulates and patrolling the town, our bluejackets look on and do nothing—presumably for fear of offending the Bolsheviki friends of the Kaiser, who have upset the Government in that port and are aiding our enemies under the cloak of licentious democracy. Is it fair to assume that our gallant warship is acting under orders from Washington? If so, it will cause pain and surprise to more Americans than faithfully yours,

DODECANESIAN ISLANDS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of June 15 the National Union of Dodecanesians takes issue with Italy re the Italian occupation of the Dodecanese. Perhaps the impartial and objective statement of a few facts may tend to dispel doubts and anxieties.

Without entering here upon discussion of the historical or geographical terms of the question, we may, however, remark that the Aegean Islands, including the Dodecanese, have for the last thousand years at least been alternately swayed by various occupants, including Genoese, Venetians, the House of Savoy, and the international order of the Knights of Rhodes, this item being merely recorded for the sake of exactitude, without any bearing whatsoever upon later events. The Turks owned the islands next, and it is from the Turks, not from the Greeks, that Italy took them in fair fight with not inconsiderable human and financial sacrifice during the Lybian war.

By the terms of the treaty of Lausanne, September, 1912, the islands remained to Italy as a pawn and guarantee that Turkish officers in Lybia would cease harassing the Italian troops, (as they were doing under German leadership and inspiration, it has been proved since;) the islands to be evacuated and eventually returned to the statu quo ante as soon as the Turks should have fulfilled their end of the pact and removed all their officers from the Lybian borders and the haunts of the Senoussis. Now Italy and the Allies, having positive proof that such conditions have not been fulfilled, the islands of the Dodecanese must consequently remain under Italian occupation and tutelage while this situation endures, lest the treaty of Lausanne be degraded to the "scrap-of-paper" level, which Italy manifestly cannot allow.

The discussion of the future attribution of the Turkish possession, which the Greeks had not previously reclaimed, which has been legitimately occupied and is being decently treated (with advantages of liberal civilization incomparably superior to those of the Turkish régime) by Italy, and which, had the Italian catspaw not intervened, Greece would evidently have had to claim and fight for, against the Turk, is premature to say the least. Also because the Dodecanese out of strong hands would make a most valuable base for enemy activities, and the Allies cannot run the risk of seeing those islands seized by the Hun coalition or even used by it under neutral cover.

As for Asia Minor, which still is in Turkish hands, and for that part of "Epirus" which the Albanians themselves, long before the Italians, called Southern Albania, that is another story, which may be worth taking up another time. But one thing may safely be stated at all times, namely, that the dread of the so-called Italian imperialism is the more striking than truthful bugaboo of the misinformed; also, that it has been for some time a favorite theme both with native pro-Germans and enemy aliens, whereupon bona fide Greeks may be honestly warned against it, lest the retaliation in terms of their own "megàle idea" be made too easy.

As regards the cause of small nationalities, one of the great issues of the present war, Italy has fought too long and too hard for her own unity and independence against overwhelming odds to grudge others the same chances of evolution and the same right to the pursuit of life, liberty, and happiness. Incidentally, she has given a series of martyrs, from Santorre di Santarosa to Antonio Fratti, to the Hellenic cause.

Last, but not least, Italy, the ally, feels justified in resenting aspersions as to the legitimacy and fairness of her international behavior as well as of her war aims; and the suggestion of her being "allowed" or "tolerated" to do or not do, retain or not retain, this or that, is offensive both to her situation among her allies and to the identity of ideals which characterizes her relations with them.

The ancestors of all the Greeks said that the future rests on the knees of the gods. We know that the clear duty of men, at this time, is to fight the German coalition, and nothing else matters just now, on the Aegean Sea or elsewhere. We must look forward to winning the war before indulging in platonic forecasts of peace. It may, however, be expedient to remember that St. Paul, in an epistle to the Greeks of his time, wrote: "Non coronabitur nisi qui legitime certaverit" (None shall be crowned who did not fight for right.) The roads to the trenches are not congested, and there is room for the liberty-loving children of Hellas in the line that is consecrating with the blood of free men the advent of international justice in a liberated world.

Mail Still Delayed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Much has been written about the late delivery of mail to the American soldiers, but the service seems not to have been improved much. My son, who arrived in France at the beginning of April, had not received a single letter from his family up to May 25, although about a dozen letters mailed since April 9 should have been in his hands by that date. A cable which was sent to him for his birthday reached him five weeks later.

A SPLENDID THING!

It is a splendid thing to be a man, just now—
A man with brawn and courage, who can fight,
Or one with brains to make the proper plans
And chart the courses that will lead to victory.
Again it is a wondrous thing to be
A man of means—with money to push on
And aid and speed the work in every way
Where funds are needed. I am not a man,
And yet it is a splendid thing today
To be a woman—one with brawn to go
Right in the face of our inhuman foe
And nurse the soldiers, feed the fighting host,
Drive ambulances, and do everything
One sees needs doing! It is also fine
To be a woman with sufficient brain
To help the men in all they undertake
And then suggest another thing or two
Worth undertaking! And again, the last,
A woman's money is a needed thing,
And it is something well worth living for,
That in the future years it may be free
From every menace that would dare repeat
This war's grim horrors! It is wonderful
To be alive and part of this great work
Of helping on a true Democracy—
One that shall be a pure, unquestioned State
Wherein no trace of past injustices
To man or woman, humankind or beast,
Shall ever more defile the Stars and Stripes,
The chosen emblem of our liberty.
And, whether we be born a man
Or born a woman, we have chance to die
True patriots, all—and this, perchance, may be
More precious even than our splendid lives!

RAILWAY COMPENSATION.

By VICTOR MORAWETZ.

Congress appears to have intended in the act establishing Federal control of the railways to provide:

(1) That the Government shall pay to the railway companies as "just compensation" sums equal to their average operating income for the three test years from July 1, 1914, to June 30, 1917, this average operating income being computed in accordance with the rules prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, except as otherwise provided in the act of Congress, and on the basis of normal charges for maintenance and depreciation; and

(2) That the Government shall receive and retain the operating income of the companies during Federal control, this operating income being computed in the same manner as the average operating income for the test years to be received by the railway companies as their just compensation.

In carrying out this purpose of Congress it is necessary to take into consideration the fact that in many cases the charges made by the railway companies for maintenance, renewals, and depreciation during the test years were not normal. During the test years some of the companies unduly increased their apparent operating income by failing to expend or charge for maintenance and depreciation the full amount required to keep up their property. To fix the compensation of such companies on the basis of their operating income during the test years as shown by their books would be unjust to the Government.

On the other hand, some companies diminished their apparent operating income during the test years by making extraordinary expenditures for maintenance and renewals either to build up their properties or to compensate for a failure to make adequate maintenance and renewal expenditures in prior years. In such cases it would obviously be unjust to the companies to fix their compensation on the basis of the operating income shown by the accounts.

Theoretically, the just compensation payable to the companies in such cases should be based upon estimates of what their operating income during the test years would have been if their maintenance and renewals during these years had been normal, and the operating income to be retained by the Government during Federal control should be based upon charges for estimated normal maintenance and renewals during that period. However, to restate the maintenance and renewal accounts of each of the railway companies on the basis of such estimates probably would be impracticable, and certainly would be unsatisfactory. The only practicable course appears to be to fix the just compensation of each company on the basis of its actual operations during the test years, and then to make the necessary adjustments through charges and credits during the period of Federal control, as hereafter suggested.

The act of Congress provides that the agreement to be made by each company with the Government shall contain adequate and appropriate provisions for such accounting and adjustments as may be requisite in order that the property of each carrier may be returned to it in substantially as good repair and in substantially as complete equipment as it was at the beginning of Federal control, and also that the United States may be reimbursed for the cost of any additions, repairs, renewals, and betterments not justly chargeable to the United States. It provides also that in making such accounting and adjustments due consideration shall be given to the expenditures and reserves made by each carrier for maintenance and depreciation during the test years and to any other pertinent facts and circumstances.

If the physical condition of a company's property, taken as an entirety, should be improved during Federal control owing to maintenance work and renewals charged to operating expenses of the property, the Government should be reimbursed for the consequent loss of operating income.

If the physical condition of a company's property should deteriorate during Federal control owing to a failure to charge to operating expenses a sum sufficient to keep up the condition of the property, the company should be reimbursed by the Government for such depreciation, as the Government would have received an undue increase of operating income by reason thereof.

To determine accurately the depreciation or improvement of the banks, ditches, rails, ties, bridges, buildings, equipment, and each other separate piece of property embraced in a railway system taken over by the Government it would be necessary to prove by inspection and appraisal the exact physical condition of each piece of property at the commencement and again at the termination of Federal control. This would be a practical impossibility. It is, however, practicable through a system of accounting to determine with substantial accuracy whether a railway taken in its entirety and kept as a going concern has been allowed to deteriorate or has been improved during a given period. It is practicable, also, through a system of accounting to adjust with substantial accuracy the amount of the just compensation to be credited to a company, and the amount of the net operating income to be credited to the Government.

For this purpose a record should be kept of the quantities as well as of the cost of the materials used and of labor employed for maintenance and renewals. Prices of materials and wages of labor vary from time to time, and the amount of money spent for maintenance and renewals furnishes no just basis for determining the amount of maintenance and renewals needed to keep up a property or the amount actually supplied. The quantities of rails, ties, ballast, and other materials used and of the labor employed for maintenance and renewals furnish the only sound basis.

During Federal control operating expenses should be charged on account of maintenance and renewals with the cost of the same average quantities of materials and labor as during the test years. In case the whole amount thus charged should not actually be expended, the difference should be credited to a reserve. If more than the amount thus charged should be expended, the excess should be credited to the Government and be paid by the company either out of its just compensation or upon final settlement of accounts with the Government.

If maintenance and renewals during the test years were normal, the average quantities of materials and labor used for maintenance and renewals during these three years presumably would be necessary to keep up the condition of the property during Federal control. An increase of these average quantities presumably would improve the condition of the property at the expense of the operating income received by the Government and should be paid for by the company. A reduction of the average quantities presumably would result in inadequate maintenance, in deterioration of the company's property and in an undue increase of the net operating income credited to the Government.

If the operating income of the test years and the "just compensation" to be credited to the company were unduly increased through inadequate or abnormally small maintenance and renewal charges during these years, this would in great measure be corrected by charging into operating expenses during Federal control on account of maintenance and renewals the cost of only the same average quantities of materials and labor as during the test years and by charging to the company and crediting to the Government the cost of any excess, the amount thus charged to the company to be paid either out of its just compensation or upon final settlement with the Government.

On the other hand, if operating income for the test years was unduly reduced through abnormally large maintenance and renewals during these years, this would be corrected by charging into operating expenses during Federal control the cost of the same average quantities of material and labor and by crediting to a reserve any unexpended balance of the sum thus charged. The undue reduction of the just compensation credited to the company would thus be made up through an equivalent reduction of the operating income received by the Government out of the property during Federal control and an equivalent addition to the property ultimately returned to the company.

Charges for depreciation and obsolescence of equipment and other property should be made on the same basis as the average of similar charges and credits during the standard three years.

The foregoing, however, would apply only to equipment and other property on hand at the commencement of Federal control. Charges for maintenance, renewals, and depreciation of equipment and other property acquired during Federal control should be sufficient (but not more than sufficient) to compensate fully for the loss or depreciation of such property during Federal control, irrespective of the rates of the charges made on account of maintenance, renewals, and depreciation of similar property taken over by the Government.

Any other expenses that were deducted from operating revenues in determining the average operating income of the test years should likewise be paid out of the operating revenue during Federal control in determining the operating income to be retained by the Government. Thus, if the expense of keeping up the corporate organization of a company and of attending to corporate and financial matters as distinguished from the operation of its railway properties are to be deducted from gross revenues in determining the average operating income of the test years, any necessary expense incurred for similar purposes during the period of Federal control should be paid out of the revenues received by the Government during Federal control.

The expense of keeping up the corporate organization of a company and the machinery necessary for the payment of interest and dividends and attending to financial matters is as necessary as the expense of maintaining a proper operating organization, and unless the company should be reimbursed for this it would not receive just compensation from the Government.

No doubt the Government may require a company to cut off any office expenses, salaries, &c., unnecessary or excessive during the period of Federal control, but whatever expenses are necessary to keep up the company's corporate organization, to pay interest and dividends, and to attend to necessary corporate or financial matters should be paid out of the operating revenues received by the Government, unless the Government is willing to throw out all such expenses in fixing the operating income of the test years.

"Why Not Japan?"

From the Des Moines Register.

Why does not everybody see that Japan and what Japan will do is far more important to America than Russia and what Russia will do? For Russia at the best is now a dismembered empire not likely in our time to be again a world power under any Government, while Japan more than ever is in a position of pivotal influence.

Moreover, Russia is easily within German reach, is very susceptible to German seductions, has historic friendly relations with Germany, is in part of German blood, and has been largely governed by men of German training, while Japan and the other Oriental peoples were given a taste of German autocracy at the time of the Boxer uprising and the seizure of Kiao-Chau, and both by inclination and interest lean to the allied democracies.

Does anybody doubt the moment the German advance is checked in the west and the lines of war begin to draw tighter that every resource of diplomacy will be used to secure a favorable German peace? Does anybody doubt that offers will be made to Japan of the most seductive sort long before Germany arrives at the point of surrender? Does anybody question that Germany would give half of Russia to Japan in order to force a satisfactory settlement with England, France, and America?

Why is there so much suspicion of Japan? It is not so much because of anything Japan has done as because we all know that Japan will be approached, and Japan is maintaining a position of reserve, waiting to be taken into full fellowship by the peoples to whom Japan's friendship has been tendered. Everybody knows that Japan will be in position to choose which way to go, for everybody knows that Germany, as a last resort, will meet any demand Japan may make.

Why, then, when we come to consider this Eastern situation, does the Administration and nearly everybody else talk as though all we have to consider are the Bolsheviki, as though nothing must be done to offend the leaders of the revolution in Russia, as though we can continue to hold Japan at arm's length throughout the war and reach some final settlement without taking our Oriental ally into full confidence?

Behind the immediate consideration of wartime there is the much larger consideration of the world future. How is the world to be made safe for democracy if we are not ready now to take every people on equal terms and invite them to sit at the council table of the nations? The Oriental cannot be ignored, the Oriental cannot in this crisis be mistreated. Why, then, does not everybody see that the one course for America is to take the Oriental at his word and make him part of the guaranty of the future?

The Russian Church and Free Russia

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It occurs to me to suggest that, as the great majority of the European Russians are devout members of the Greek Church, which, from a religious point of view, splits them absolutely from the Germans, that might be made a basis for cementing the various factions in Russia to get them away from the domination of Germany.

DEMOCRATS ARE FOR WOMEN DELEGATES

But State Committee Will Determine Whether Unofficial Convention Shall Be Held.

MAY BE CALLED FOR JULY 17

Leaders Tell Chairman Harris They Will Urge Selection of Women by District Committees.

Edwin S. Harris, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, yesterday sent out a call for a meeting of that body at the Hotel Knickerbocker at noon on Thursday, June 27, to determine whether an unofficial Democratic State Convention is to be held this year and, in that event, to have the State Committee issue the call and determine the basis of representation.

It was said yesterday that the sentiment among Democrats, both in this city and up-State, was decidedly in favor of such a gathering, and that if called it probably would be held in Saratoga on July 17. At the Democratic State Convention, which was held in Saratoga last year, there were three delegates and three alternates from each of the 150 Assembly districts in the State. It is probable that the representation will be fixed on the same basis this year. Two years ago the State Committeeman from each Assembly district sat as a delegate, the other two delegates and three alternates being selected through the members of the County Committee in each district. This year it is likely that the selection will be left entirely to the County Committees and that no mandate will go out from the State Committee to make its members delegates.

Provision will also be made at the meeting of the State Committee for representation for the newly enfranchised women who have enrolled with the Democratic Party in the unofficial convention. Many of the leaders in this city have indicated to Chairman Harris their intention of urging on the district committees the selection of women as delegates and alternates.

State Chairman Harris yesterday declined to comment on the failure of the Committee of Seven to make definite choice of a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination to submit to the Committee of Forty-two of the Syracuse Conference, when that body meets in Syracuse on July 9. He said that in his opinion three or possibly four names would be submitted to the Committee of Forty-two by the steering committee for its consideration. The Committee of Forty-two, in turn, will report any decision it may reach or any recommendations it may have to make to the unofficial State Convention when that assembles a week later. It was intimated that these recommendations may include a platform draft with the municipal ownership plank, that was suggested when the candidacy of William R. Hearst was regarded a possibility, left out.

LANSING NOT A CANDIDATE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Discussion of Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, as the Democratic candidate for Governor of New York, brought no encouragement from Mr. Lansing or any Administration source today. But it was indicated very clearly in a quarter close to the Secretary that he had not given any thought to the matter and had no intention of doing so. In this same quarter the impression was gathered that the statement made at a conference of up-State Democrats at Utica yesterday that Mr. Lansing had been sounded as to becoming a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination was erroneous.

The feeling in New York Democratic circles here is said to be that if Mr. Lansing should be brought forward as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor the outcome of the movement would depend largely on the position of President Wilson. It is believed that if the President should assent to the proposal Mr. Lansing's chances of obtaining the nomination would be greatly improved. It is also believed that Mr. Lansing would not consider a suggestion that he become a candidate without the President's assent.

FORD GAINS STRENGTH.

Special to The New York Times.

LANSING, Mich., June 19.—Many Republicans called on Attorney General Groesbeck today to explain interviews in Detroit papers favoring the candidacy of Henry Ford for Senator on the Republican ticket.

"My stand is simply this," said Mr. Groesbeck: "We need a few men like Mr. Ford at Washington to push this war work to a finish. When we realize what he has already done in the preparations for the manufacture of his Eagles, when we stop to think that if Mr. Ford had been in the United States Senate several months ago and on a committee which had something to do with airpalne production, this country would have lots of planes overseas, I think it is a patriotic thing to do to put Mr. Ford in the Senate."

Ex-Governor Warner, who withdrew from the Senatorial race in the face of the Ford announcement, came to the capital and talked with some of his closest friends today.

"Henry Ford is in a class by himself. He is today the greatest constructive force in America," said Mr. Warner, "and there would be no limit to his usefulness in the Senate. At a time when the world's safety and security so largely depend on the manufacturing and producing resources of this country, with such a citizen we should use him to the utmost."

W. Cameron Forbes Has Pneumonia.

WESTWOOD, Mass., June 19.—W. Cameron Forbes, formerly Governor General of the Philippines, is ill with pneumonia at his home here. His physician said tonight that he did not consider Mr. Forbes's condition critical.

Mr. Forbes returned in May from California, where he has been some months for his health. Later he made a business trip to Wyoming and soon after his return a few days ago contracted a severe cold that developed seriously last Sunday.

MUST PUT GERMANY IN WORLD LEAGUE

Viscount Grey Says She Must Be Taught Completely That Militarism Does Not Pay.

CIVILIZATION IS AT STAKE

One Nation Must Dominate All of Them, or All Must Unite in a Peace League.

LONDON, June 19.—Viscount Grey has published through the Oxford University Press a pamphlet on the "League of Nations," in which he expresses his strong conviction of the necessity of such a league. He remarks that the war has developed into a ruthless and unlimited application of the resources and discoveries of science to the destruction of human life, noncombatant as well as combatant, and that if future wars remain possible after this one is ended another generation of scientific workers whose discoveries cannot be confined to any one nation will bring within sight the destruction of the human race.

There are, in his opinion, only two alternatives: to stop war by establishing the permanent domination of one nation over the others, or to stop it by uniting all nations, or at any rate all the leading nations, in a peace-preserving league.

Viscount Grey insists that it is not the fate of a nation or of an empire, or even of a whole continent, that is at stake in this war, but of civilization.

As Germany believes in force because it has been profitable to her so far, she must be convinced by force that force does not pay.

"Until Germany feels this to be true," he says, "there can be no league of nations in the sense intended by President Wilson. A league such as he desires must include Germany and should include no nation that is not thoroughly convinced of the advantage and necessity of such a league and is therefore not prepared to make the efforts and, if need be, the sacrifices, necessary to maintain it."

But other nations as well as Germany must realize before the league of nations can have any prospect of success that the project will entail sacrifices upon each and all of them.

As regards the question whether nations are ready to use their combined force against any one nation which persists, to the abridgment of the general comfort, in doing what it chooses to do, Viscount Grey writes:

"Those States that have power must be ready to use all the force, economic, military, or naval, that they possess. It must be clearly understood and accepted that defection from or violation of the agreement by one or more States does not absolve all or any of the others from obligation to enforce the agreement."

There can be no peace by domination of one country over others; there can be peace by domination of all countries over each—"a peace," says Viscount Grey, "secured by mutual regard between States for the rights of each and determination to stamp out any attempt at war as they would a plague that threatened the destruction of all."

"When," he adds, "those who accept this idea and this sort of peace can in word and deed speak for Germany, we shall be within sight of a good peace."

"If the war does not teach mankind new lessons that will so dominate the thought and feeling of those who survive it and those who succeed the survivors as to make new things possible, then the war will be the greatest catastrophe, as well as the most grievous trial and suffering, of which mankind has any record. Therefore it does not follow that a League of Nations to secure the peace of the world will remain impossible because it has not been possible hitherto.

"The idea must be adopted with earnestness and conviction by the executive heads of States. It must become an essential part of their practical policy, one of their chief reasons for being or continuing to be responsible for the policy of their States. They must not adopt it only to render lip service to other persons whom it is inconvenient or ungracious to displease. They must lead and not follow. They must compel, if necessary, and not be compelled.

"This condition was not present before the war. To what extent is it present now? It is not possible to answer this question fully, but it can be answered certainly and affirmatively as regards President Wilson, the executive head of the United States, and this alone is sufficient to give new life and purpose to the idea of a League of Nations. President Wilson and his country have had in this matter the great advantage of having been for more than two years and a half before April, 1917, able to observe the war as neutrals, free from the intense anxiety and effort that absorb all the thought and energy of belligerents. They were able not only to observe, but to reflect and to draw conclusions.

"One of the conclusions has been that if the world of which they form an important part is to be saved from what they consider disaster, they must enter the war against Germany. Another has been that if national liberty and peace are to be secure in the future there must be a League of Nations to secure them."

Bassett-Schulte.

The marriage of John Humphrey Phillips Bassett of the U. S. N. Reserve Force, and a son of Mrs. William Douglas Fitch of New Haven, Conn., and Miss Lucille R. Schulte, a daughter of Mrs. Anthony Schulte of this city, was celebrated last evening at the home of the bride's mother, 495 West End Avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frank Oliver Hall of the Universalist Church of the Divine Paternity, before a temporary altar decorated with pink and white peonies, in the presence of the families only. The bride, whose uncle, David A. Schulte, gave her in marriage, wore a white satin gown trimmed with Carrickmacross lace and her tulle veil was held with orange blossoms. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Antoinette Schulte. Mr. Bassett's best man was John Sutphen, Jr.

THIRD-TERM BOOM FOR WILSON STARTS

Appeal for Patriotism.

"Yes, we are to have politics this year in Indiana, but politics this year must be patriotic as well as partisan in character. It must be the kind of politics which whole heartedly gets behind that colossal figure of the stormy hours, the man whom Providence has set upon the mountain peak of duty, desire and endeavor, with whom we can win, without whom the world's hope must perish—Woodrow Wilson, Captain General of the armies of freedom, Admiral of the seven seas. It will not do to keep our promise to his ear and break it to his hope.

"Just what the Republican Party means by saying that its purpose is to win the war now, most of us do not understand. What the Democratic Party stands for is to win the war as soon as it can be won, and it holds that to the speedily winning of it are these essentials: Conviction of the justice of the cause in which we are engaged; a fixed and definite end to be attained; the whole hearted, disinterested, political and patriotic sacrifice of personal ambition, party preferment and individual success to the object attained, and confidence, absolute confidence, in the Commander in Chief."

"Lady Theodora, being left at home, concluded to take a hand in the war by writing letters in derogation and criticism of its management to a newspaper, which newspaper had as its general manager a man who was, at the declaration of hostilities against the Imperial German Government, an alien enemy of the United States, and which newspaper had published the Rose Pastor Stokes letter and other seditious documents.

Opposition to Roosevelt.

"Some men at least are going to object if she is the Republican Party and if she is going to fight the war in this way—through the columns of The Kansas City Star—and notwithstanding her great desire to take charge of everything, they are going to insist that she shall not be permitted to do so earlier than March 4, 1921, and not then, if God and the right prevail."

The contests for places on the ticket were enlivened by squabbles within the delegation from this (Marion) county, the most heated coming shortly before adjournment over the nomination of Judges for the Appellate Court for the First Division.

For Treasurer of State—J. B. McCARTHY of Kempton.
For Attorney General—EVAN B. STOTSENBURG of New Albany.
For State Geologist—EDWARD BARRETT of Plainfield, (renominated.)
For Judge of the Supreme Court, Fourth District—J. J. MORAN of Portland.
For Judges of the Appellate Court, First Division—M. B. HOTTEL of Salem and HUGH WICKENS of Greensburg.

Marshall Assails Seested.

Vice President Marshall said this afternoon that the explanation of the birth and citizenship of A. F. Seested, the general manager of The Kansas City Star, to which he referred in his address before the convention, verified his statements in his speech.

News from Kansas City explained that Seested was born in Denmark, but that his parents became German subjects when the part of Denmark in which they lived became German territory. Mr. Seested had for many years considered himself a citizen of this country, the explanation said, but learned in 1916 that he was not because of a technicality, after which he went through the naturalization proceedings.

"What I said about Mr. Seested is true and I have nothing further to say."

CAPITAL APPROVED PLATFORM.

Principles Stated Embody Those of the Administration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The platform adopted by the Indiana State Convention today embodies the principles upon which the Wilson Administration will go before the country this year in an appeal for the return of the Democratic Senate and House. It is known that the national planks in the Indiana Democratic declaration have the approval of the President's closest political supporters. While there is no disclosure as to what part, if any, the President or his representatives had in the preparation of the Indiana platform, it is accepted that the national planks were written or revised in Washington.

"There must be a single test and standard for every public policy. Every measure must be put to this test: Is it just? Is it for the benefit of the average man without influence or privilege? Does it in real fact embody the highest conception of social justice and of right dealing without regard to person or class or special interest?"

It was said today by a friend of the President in a position to speak with some knowledge that the mention of the President's name as a candidate to succeed himself by one of the officials of the Indiana convention would be deprecated by Mr. Wilson. This friend said that he was sure the President thought that this was no time, when young men of the nation were risking their lives on the field of battle, to discuss the matter of Presidential succession.

The frist plank of the Indiana Democratic platform stresses that "the immediate purpose of the Democratic Party, the purpose which takes precedence of every other, is to win the war." The second plank emphasizes that, to win the war, it is necessary to support President Wilson.

Several of the Indiana planks, understood to have the approval of Administration adherents here, have to do with conditions after the war. That which relates to the railroads reads as follows:

"Railway transportation must be controlled in such a way as to assure complete co-ordination, adequate development, and the equal service of the railways in every field of economic activity. The water transportation of the country must be developed in such a way as adequately to supplement, and, wherever advantageous, parallel the transportation system of the railways."

"Because we mean to win the war, it is our purpose to support and sustain to the utmost the administration of Woodrow Wilson. His administration can better be supported by those who believe in it and trust it than by those who are constantly eager to make a selfish use of what they conceive to be its mistakes. It is, therefore, our purpose to supply the Administration in our nominees with men who are its real and unquestionable friends.

"We are confirmed and strengthened in our support of the Administration, and are in full harmony with it, not merely because we are at war and must stand behind the only common instrumentality through which we can win it, but also because the Administration has deserved our confidence by its record.

"The whole industry of the country must be dealt with in the most liberal and enlightened manner. Raw materials and all universal essentials, like coal and electric power, must be made accessible to all upon equal and equitable terms. New industries must be fostered and the barriers removed which have stood in the way of old ones, and the thought of the nation devoted to every impartial process by which the industrial prosperity of the country may be secured by methods which will absolutely exclude monopoly."

DR. VALENTINE MOTT DIES SUDDENLY AT 65

STUDIED UNDER SCIENTIST

Dr. Valentine Mott, a noted surgeon and the man who first introduced the Pasteur treatment of rabies into this country, died yesterday from angina pectoris at his home, 5 East Eighty-fourth Street. Dr. Mott, who was in his sixty-sixth year, suffered a violent attack shortly before midnight Tuesday and was attended by Dr. Walter Anderton of 31 East Seventy-second Street, from midnight until 6 o'clock yesterday morning, when Dr. Anderton left, as his patient seemed to be resting easier. Three hours later Dr. Mott relapsed.

Dr. Mott was born in New York City on Nov. 17, 1852, his parents being Alexander B. and Arabella Mott. He was graduated from Columbia University twenty years later, and immediately went to England, where he studied at Cambridge University until 1876. He was graduated from the Bellevue Medical College with the class of 1878, and shortly afterward married Miss Emily Langdon Erving.

Dr. Mott took up the practice of medicine in this city early in 1879, and in the same year he was appointed attending surgeon to the Outdoor Department of Bellevue. In 1887 he went to Paris as the representative of the American Pasteur Institute, and while there he undertook, under the special instruction of Louis Pasteur, a study of the prophylactic treatment for hydrophobia.

The close association of the American surgeon and Pasteur resulted in a warm friendship, and when Dr. Mott returned to America, Pasteur permitted him to bring back the first inoculated rabbit which the French scientist allowed to be taken out of his laboratory. When Dr. Mott reached this country the public had heard very little of the working of the Pasteur treatment, and the idea of an inoculated rabbit preventing the dreaded lockjaw from resulting fatally found few believers. Dr. Mott, however, by the force of his convictions and writings did much to establish belief in the efficacy of the treatment.

Dr. Mott was a member of the Military Order, Loyal Legion, the St. Anthony Society, and the Turf and Field Club. Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Miss Sophie L. Mott.

Howard L. Coburn, widely known as a civil engineer who had built more than 100 of the big dams in this and other countries, died yesterday in the Stern Sanitarium from pneumonia. Mr. Coburn was 52 years old and was born in Patten, Me. He was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1887, and up to his death had been associated in its development.

Immediately after his graduation Mr. Coburn designed some of the largest cotton mills and power plants in New England, and until 1904 he devoted himself to that phase of his profession. Coming to this city, he became chief engineer and director of the Ambursen Construction Company, 61 Broadway, and in that capacity began the building of dams. One of his most important works was the construction of the Guayabal Dam for the United States Irrigation Service in Porto Rico. Body Clothing or Underwear —Which?

If it doesn't matter what it is so long as it is cheap and because it is out of sight, why any underwear will do.

But if it is something for men to wear over and next to the skin for the sake of better feeling, better health, better work, it is Body Clothing—AMHO Body Clothing—there is no other.

And in summer it is AMHO White Lisle Body Clothing for men.

The very words "White Lisle" suggest clean, cool skin comfort and at $5 or $6 the two-piece suit it is more economical than underwear at half the price.

Union Suits also.

Finland Under German Control

THE bloody internal struggles of the new republic and Germany's invasion of it are described in the June issue of Current History Magazine. The text of the peace treaty between Germany and Finland is also given.

Current History is devoted to presenting monthly an accurate, connected record of the war's progress, here and abroad. It contains much official data found in no other American periodical.

Conservatism in Men's Clothes.

"Whatever the basic style idea may be in a man's suit this Spring," said a prominent clothing manufacturer of this city yesterday, "conservatism is almost invariably demanded. This makes the present season unique among Spring seasons, for it is usually at this time of the year that novel style features are developed which later on in one form or another become the proper thing for the following Fall. This year, however, men who cannot wear a uniform apparently do not care to emphasize the fact by putting on "loud" or "sporty" garments. The result is a moderation in men's dress which helps considerably in the designers' efforts to save wool."

Wall Paper Exhibition Aug. 5.

From present indications, the annual showing of new lines of wall paper to the jobbers and large retailers will take place in the week beginning Aug. 5. While this date has not yet definitely been decided on, and there is some talk of starting the exhibition on the last Monday in July, it is said by men who know that precedent will rule and the show will be held during the first week in August. While most of the local manufacturers will again show their offerings in their own showrooms, the out-of-town ones will make use of hotels. From room reservations made to date, the biggest displays this year apparently will be at the Park Avenue Hotel and the Hotel Imperial, though some lines will be shown at the Hotel Breslin. It is understood that a number of new patterns and effects will be introduced this year in spite of the war.

New Models in Organdie Hats.

Organdie hats are now being shown here with cordings of velvet, and they are said by buyers to be very attractive. These hats are made entirely of organdie, with the addition of three to six rows of narrow velvet cording on the upper brim or side crown. In some cases the velvet matches in color the body of the hat, though many attractive combinations of light-colored organdie with black velvet cordings are seen. The shapes include large effects with drooping brims, mushrooms, and models with wide sides and short backs and fronts. Two or three rows of velvet ribbon, about an eighth of an inch wide, are used to form a band around the crown, and the effect is finished with a soft rosette of velvet ribbon. White, pink, lavender, orchid, and various shades of light blue are the favored organdie colors.

Trying to Get Lower Fares.

At a meeting Tuesday night in the Hotel Breslin of the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations, which was attended by representatives of fourteen traveling men's associations, Samuel Blumberg, attorney for the council, read a letter from Assistant Director G. Fort of Mr. McAdoo's office, acknowledging receipt of the council's petition for lower mileage rates. The petition has been referred, the letter said, to Commissioner Prouty for consideration. A conference between the National Council and Commissioner Prouty will be arranged at an early date.

Fall Dress Season Opens Strong.

The Fall buying season in dresses for women has opened with pronounced activity and with prices considerably advanced over those which ruled a year ago. Those houses, whose roadmen have been out long enough to send in preliminary reports, say that prospects for a heavy Fall season are very good, and that practically all merchants seen so far are quite reconciled to the necessity for early buying. Where orders were placed they were frequently much larger than initial orders usually are, which is taken to indicate that merchants do not expect manufacturers to come around a little later and say that they have just gotten out a "second line" that far surpasses the first.

Licenses for Egyptian Cotton.

All outstanding licenses for the importation of Egyptian cotton not already shipped will be canceled on June 20, according to information reaching the Textile Alliance from the War Trade Board. Thereafter, no licenses will be issued for the importation into this country of brown and other low grade Egyptian cotton such as Mit-Affi, upper Egypt, and grades having a staple of 1⅜ inches in length or less. Import licenses will be granted only on high grade Egyptian cottons such as Sakellarides and those having a staple length of 1½ inches or more. Such licenses as may be issued will contain the provision that the cotton is to be allocated so as to meet the needs of the United States Government and to carry out its purposes.

Aim to Abolish Silk Returns.

In an endeavor to aid the Government in the general elimination of waste during the war, the Board of Managers of the Silk Association of America has directed Secretary Ramsey Peugnet to call the attention of the trade to Rule 6 of the rules and regulations to govern transactions between buyers and sellers. This rule provides that "goods shall not be returned, or allowance made, after ten days from date of receipt by customer, nor after having been cut or otherwise changed from the original condition, except for failure to meet accepted requirements of the trade as to wearing properties not ascertainable at the time of purchase or delivery." In a letter to association members, asking them to do their part in stopping infringements of the rule, Secretary Peugnet points out the particular need of its complete observance at the present time.

Small Supplies Limit Drug Sales.

The inquiry for drugs and fine chemicals here in the last week has been active, but the market is depleted of most varieties and business is restricted. Government rulings, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today, also create uncertainties relative to shipments. The price of formaldehyde has been fixed by the Government at 16½ cents a pound. The announcement has unsettled trading, owing to the fact that manufacturers have been quoting 21 cents a pound and second hands 18 cents. Advances have occurred during the week in monobromated camphor, mercury in flasks, &c. Among others, declines took place in belladonna root and opium.

Gray Goods Sales Lag.

Trading in the local gray goods market tapered off somewhat yesterday with the approach of the price-fixing meeting that will be held in Washington tomorrow. Some second-hand sales of 38½-inch 60-48s, Southern make, were reported at 15¼ cents for nearby delivery, but Southern first hands want at least 16 cents for their goods. In the East the same cloths are held at 16¼ cents for the nearby positions. With the present uncertainty, it is said that second hands are quite willing to shade the general market figure if it means a good sale. In the sheetings, additional sales of nearby 36-inch 5-yard goods were reported at 17¾ cents, with 15¾ cents bid for similar deliveries of 5.50s. Holders are asking 15¾ cents for the latter, but it is said to be probable that a good buyer could induce them to pare off the extra eighth of a cent. Mill printcloth prices were more or less nominally firm on these bases:

FIXES NEWS PRINT PRICE.

Trade Board Places Maximum on Roll Paper in Car Lots at $3.10.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Maximum news print paper prices were fixed today by the Federal Trade Commission, in accordance with an agreement between the Attorney General and manufacturers of the United States and Canada, as follows:

Sheet news, in car lots, $3.50.
Sheet news, in less than car lots, $3.62½.

Under the agreement the prices, free on board, mill, are retroactive, taking effect April 1, 1918, and stand until three months after the war ends. Ten companies participating in the agreement, three American and seven Canadian, produced 950,000 tons of news print paper, or nearly 50 per cent. of the output, on the continent in 1917. One of the factors considered in fixing the price was an increase in wages for the pulp wood and paper workers, given in averting a threatened strike on May 1.

American manufacturers, parties to the agreement, are the International Paper Company, Minnesota and Ontario Power Company, and Gould Paper Company, and the Canadian corporations are the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Mills, Abitibi Power and Paper Company, Laurentine Company, Belgo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Company, Price Brothers & Co., Donnacona Paper Company, and the Brompton Pulp and Paper Company.

The agreement also fixed the maximum commissions for jobbers and other middlemen at 15 cents per 100 pounds for carload lots; 40 cents on less than car lots, and 60 cents on less than ton lots.

Imports of Rubber Goods Barred.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—After June 25 no licenses for the importation of manufactured rubber goods will be issued by the War Trade Board, it was announced today, and all outstanding licenses have been revoked. Articles containing not more than 5 per cent. rubber may be exempted. The action was taken to protect American manufacturers of rubber goods.

Restricts Private Crop Reports.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade today adopted a resolution prohibiting the circulation by members of any but official crop reports. Crop experts who desire to have their reports publicly circulated will be required to register in the office of the Secretary of the board.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Dealings on the Stock Exchange yesterday were controlled by much the same factors which have prevailed in recent sessions, and price changes were for the most part significant of no change in underlying conditions. Transactions were on a moderate scale, and fluctuations in most issues confined to narrow limits. Traders are at a loss in attempting to interpret the meaning of the changes which affect the steel industry, but the disposition is to look for earnings reduced from those of last year, though sufficient to justify the continuance of current dividends. The outcome of the meeting to be held tomorrow in Washington between producers and the War Industries Board is awaited with interest, but the expectation of the trade seems to be that no general rise in prices is to be looked for, but rather a readjustment of schedules which have been thrown out of line by developments subsequent to the original arrangement. In this class the most important item is pig iron, which may be advanced to take into account the material increases in cost forced upon producers by the 25 per cent. advance in freight rates.

The Iron Age calls attention to the fact that the Fuel Administrator's decision to allow manufacturers of pleasure cars but 25 per cent. of the fuel they obtained last year is in conflict with the stand of the Director of Fuel Supply against limiting a non-war industry through the allowance of steel it may have. Orders from army headquarters abroad call for a tremendous amount of steel, including hundreds of locomotives and many thousands of cars, in addition to which the Railroad Administrator wants 400 more locomotives of special design and 40,000 freight cars, besides 100,000 already ordered.

Announcement of the War Finance Corporation of its willingness to advance 30 per cent. of the sum needed to enable the Brooklyn Rapid Transit to meet its $58,000,000 of notes seems to have cleared the way for obtaining an extension of a large part of the issue with an increase in the interest rate. There is little disposition in the Street to expect much from the formation of a committee of bankers to pass on public utility needs, or from the suggestion that a pool be formed to supply the indorsements desired by the corporation. The crux of the public utility financing situation is the question of higher fares, and in localities where increases cannot be obtained fresh problems may be expected to arise with each maturity or need for additional funds.

The stock market is very wisely marking time while Congress is discussing the new tax legislation, and while the critical situation continues on both the western and Italian battlefronts. Brokers are advising customers to buy stocks only on dips until the situation clears up.

GOOD TONE IN LONDON.

LONDON June 19.—Home funds had a good tone on the Stock Exchange today. Russian issues were better on Foreign Minister Balfour's remarks in the House of Commons.

Spanish and Italian bonds responded to the movements of exchange, and Grand Trunks were buoyant features. Oil and industrial shares were well supported.

Money and discount rates were quiet.

Trading Inactive on Bourse.

PARIS, June 19.—Trading was inactive on the Bourse today. Three per cent rentes 59 francs 45 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 16 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 15 centimes.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Call Loan Rate Down to 4 1-2 Per Cent.—Increased Supply of Money.

Rates for call money moved down to 4½ per cent. yesterday, compared with 6 per cent. on Tuesday. The 4½ per cent. quotation was the low and last figure for the day and most renewals were made at 6 per cent. Time money was more plentiful than for some days past. One large institution put out $2,000,000 for a short term and another bank placed $1,000,000 for four months.

MORE DIVIDENDS DECLARED.

Procter & Gamble to Pay 4 Per Cent. on Stock—Other Disbursements.

The Procter & Gamble Company declared yesterday its annual stock dividend of 4 per cent. on the junior stock issue, the sixth of this amount to be ordered since 1912. The usual quarterly distribution of 5 per cent. in cash on the common stock was also voted, and the 2 per cent. quarterly disbursement on the preferred. The common stock dividends will be paid Aug. 15 and the preferred July 15.

The Sullivan Machinery Company of Chicago declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent. and the usual payment of 1½ per cent., due July 15. The Ohio Fuel Supply Company has declared an extra dividend of 2 per cent. in Liberty bonds, and the regular quarterly disbursement of 2½ per cent., payable July 15. Holders of less than 100 shares will receive the extra in cash with the recommendation that it be invested in War Savings stamps.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Steel Makers in Accord.

The steel trade appears to be well organized to handle the problems which have arisen under war conditions. The Committee on Steel and Steel Products of the American Iron and Steel Institute was formed to handle the serious questions of the war period, and the rank and file of producers have complete faith in it. Yesterday the leaders of the industry met with the committee, submitted opinions of means to be employed for increasing production and obtaining adequate compensation for it and then separated without quibbling over points or pressing particular arguments. The details of these matters were left to the committee, which is headed by E. H. Gary.

Pittsburgh & West Virginia Stock.

Stocks of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Company have been bid up persistently for some days to the accompaniment of rumors that a segregation plan for the coal properties was being worked out. At 79 yesterday the preferred established a new high record. Directors state that the possibility of the separation of the railway and the coal interests is being considered as a development of the new railroad régime, although it was asserted yesterday that the matter has not advanced beyond this stage. Through its stock ownership of the Pittsburgh Terminal Railroad and Coal Company, the Pittsburgh & West Virginia has a vast coal land acreage, estimated to contain fully 90,000,000 tons of bituminous coal. The preferred stock has practically first call upon all the assets and is retirable at 105, which are facts that have been conducive to speculation since coal land segregation was first discussed.

More Car Orders Coming.

Railroad car builders are looking for additional Government orders, covering as many as 50,000 cars. The first distribution of contracts more than a month ago entailed 100,000 cars of the box and gondola type. The forthcoming orders are expected to comprise refrigerator and flat cars. The steel needs of the car makers for the original order are being met, and deliveries of the first cars are looked for early next month.

War News and the Market.

Although the war news was as favorable yesterday as any received in many weeks, the course of the security markets failed to reflect it to any material degree. Prices displayed strength at times, but the ease with which they were moved down and up during the afternoon indicated that business was mostly professional. As far as the more prominent issues are concerned, including the steel stocks and equipment issues, the market for some days has been a "scalper's" market, where nimble traders have sought to make a half-point or a whole point a day, and hoped for nothing more.

Another Gold Shipment.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York received yesterday from Ottawa another $5,000,000 in gold bars, making $10,000,000 thus far this week, and a total of $25,000,000 on the present movement. United States gold coin to the amount of $100,000 was withdrawn yesterday from the Sub-Treasury for shipment to Mexico.

Dollars Per Ton in Shipping.

The attempt has been made to show, by calculating the average capitalization of leading British shipping companies, that if, as reported, the International Mercantile Marine will receive $125,000,000, or about $128 a ton, for its British fleet, it will get a wonderful bargain, because these companies are capitalized at only about $98 a ton. This calculation, however, was based on the market value of the companies' common stock. But in a war market, with investment capital absorbed by Government loans and taxes and other handicaps, it is easy to demonstrate that the market value of any stock may, and often does, fall far below the book value; and in the case of shipping companies particularly the book value of their stock nowadays is invariably, to put it mildly, very conservatively stated. Under the threat of excess profits laws shipping companies on both sides of the Atlantic have written off immense sums for depreciation at the very time when their ships, on earning power, were really appreciating in value. There is not a shipping company in the world today that carries its fleet on the books at anything like what the ships would bring on the market. The simplest answer to these calculations is to ask where in the world today, by purchase or construction, you could duplicate the I. M. M. fleet for a much greater sum than $125,000,000.

National Bank Circulation.

Controller of the Currency Williams reports that during the first five months of the current year, United States bonds held on deposit to secure circulating notes of national banks increased $7,997,900. The amount of bonds deposited during this period aggregated $26,702,950, and the withdrawals totaled $18,705,050.

Offering of $10,500,000 of Notes.

Harris, Forbes & Co., the Guaranty Trust Company, and E. H. Rollins & Sons are offering at 98 and interest, to yield 7¼ per cent., an issue of $10,500,000 of Louisville Gas and Electric Company's first and refunding mortgage five-year 7 per cent. bonds, due June 1, 1923. The bonds are a first lien on more than 75 per cent. of the property of the company, being subject only to $3,119,000 Louisville Lighting Company's first 5 per cent. bonds, which are a first mortgage on the property owned by that company. The Louisville Gas and Electric Company is managed by H. H. Byllesby & Co. The company's net earnings are more than one and three-quarter times the annual interest charges on the mortgage bonds.

The Express Merger.

Reports from Washington of objections filed by the Attorney General to the express merger appeared to have been straightened out yesterday by the incorporation into the agreement of a paragraph definitely limiting to the duration of the war, and presumably for a reasonable readjustment interval thereafter. Apparently Mr. Gregory feared the prompt application of the Anti-Trust law if the merger had been permitted to stand, which would have placed the present Administration in an embarrassing position.

Keeping Men on the Job.

President Loomis of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company announces a new method of keeping workmen in line by forming "slacker committees" among the men themselves to keep tab on the men who take days off without legitimate excuse. In addition to this, gigantic thermometers are being erected alongside each colliery showing the tonnage produced each day, compared with its best record, and alongside are posted the names of absentees with an estimate of what the tonnage would have been if they had all put in a full day's work.

Tendencies in the Cotton Market.

A local cotton man, who admits he is temperamentally bullish, pointed yesterday to a feature of the last few days in the cotton market which may or may not be significant. Monday was a fairly busy day for Monday, and the price advanced; Tuesday was a hopelessly dull one, and the price declined; yesterday was again fairly busy, and prices were up. Assuming that, on the whole, it has recently been true that there has been more business on a rising market than on a declining one, even though prices, on the whole, have not yet shown any pronounced trend upward, it only remains to draw the parallel between the present market and that which last Fall preceded the big bull movement. Moreover, the question arises, does the accumulation on the long side which such a course indicates, represent trade buying, which takes contracts out of the market permanently, and means one thing, or mere speculative accumulation, which means quite another.

HOLDERS MUST HELP, TOO

Not Less Than 70 Per Cent. of Face Amount to be Exchanged for 7 Per Cent. Gold Notes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The War Finance Corporation has decided to make a direct loan of $17,320,000 to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. This advance is based on a plan requiring holders of the company's notes to consent to exchange not less than 70 per cent. of the face amount of notes for new three-year 7 per cent. gold secured notes of the company.

The loan by the War Finance Corporation is for the purpose of enabling the company to meet maturing 6 per cent. notes to the amount of $57,735,000 coming due July 1 this year. The War Finance Corporation will take the three-year 7 per cent. gold notes of the company at par as security.

The War Finance Corporation has expressed its readiness, in case of the consummation of the proposed plan for the extension of the maturing notes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, to make advances in proper cases to banks, bankers, and trust companies, as provided in Section 7 of the War Finance Corporation act, upon the new three-year 7 per cent. secured gold notes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

The new notes will be secured by the collateral now deposited as security for the present notes and by $39,000,000 additional bonds of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to be issued under a consolidated and refunding mortgage recently approved by the stockholders of the company. The proposed advance will therefore only be made in case the holders of the maturing obligations lend their co-operation by extending at least 70 per cent. of their holdings. The Board of Directors of the War Finance Corporation has determined that this application presents an exceptional case for a direct advance which comes within the meaning of the "exceptional cases clause" contained in Section 9 of the War Finance Corporation act.

The War Finance Corporation has received letters from the Controller of the City of New York and from the Public Service Commission of the First District of New York expressing a desire that the application of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company be granted in the interest of the city.

Directors of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company announced yesterday that a circular is being prepared, to be sent to holders of its maturing 6 per cent. notes within a few days, advising them of the decision of the War Finance Corporation and inviting them to deposit their notes with the Central Union Trust Company under the extension plan. Noteholders will have the option of accepting $300 in cash and $700 face value of the new three-year 7 per cent. gold notes for each $1,000 of the old notes, or of exchanging the entire value of their maturing notes, par for par, for the new 7 per cents. In case any considerable proportion of the noteholders waive the offer of 30 per cent. in cash the sum advanced by the War Finance Corporation will be reduced by that amount.

Whereas the maturing notes were secured only by the same amount in par value of New York Municipal Railway Corporation first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, the new notes have not only this collateral back of them, but also $35,000,000 of Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company consolidated and refunding mortgage ten-year 6 per cent. gold bonds. The indenture will also provide that the company shall pledge additional bonds of this second series to an amount equal to face value of any expenditure which shall hereafter be made out of the current surplus earnings of the company for capital purposes, and for which the company may be or become entitled to draw bonds from the Trustee, as well as any New York Municipal Railway Corporation first mortgage 5 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds acquired by the company with such surplus earnings.

In order to conserve the company's cash assets and obviate the sale of additional securities during the life of the new notes, the indenture will further provide that while they are outstanding the company will pay no dividends upon its capital stock in cash or in securities or scrip, unless such security or scrip shall by its terms rank subsequent to the rights of the noteholders against any of the assets of the company.

Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of a committee of bankers who are to co-operate with the War Finance Corporation in the consideration of the financial requirements of public utility companies. This committee is composed of James N. Wallace, President of the Central Union Trust Company; Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Frederick Strauss of J. & W. Seligman & Co.

Publicity given to the appointment of the committee stimulated a resumption of reports regarding a proposal for the organization of a corporation with large capital which would undertake to finance the public utility companies with the understanding that it would in turn obtain support from the War Finance Corporation. THE TIMES reported a week ago last Friday that such a plan had been suggested to bankers, and that they were talking about it. Although it appeared yesterday that more consideration was being given to the proposal than heretofore, inquiries among leading bankers elicited the information that they were not favorably disposed toward the scheme.

STEEL MEN CONFER HERE ON NEW PRICES

Vote Unanimously to Place Subject in Hands of General Committee, with Power.

Following a meeting of seventy-eight representative iron and steel manufacturers held yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria with the General Committee on Steel and Steel Products of the American Iron and Steel Institute, Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the committee, gave out the following statement:

"As the War Industries Board has asked the General Committee of the American Iron and Steel Institute to appear in Washington on Friday of this week to consider prices of iron and steel products, commencing July 1, representatives of the different lines of industry met today to discuss the situation.

"After the views of a number of gentlemen were expressed, it was unanimously voted to place the whole subject in the hands of the General Committee, with power."

The period of present fixed steel prices expires June 30, and yesterday's discussions were to bring out sentiment regarding the prices that should prevail in the period following July 1. While none of those attending the meeting would add anything to the brief statement made by Judge Gary, it was understood that the General Committee was instructed to press before the War Industries Board the need for an advance in quotations for certain products and raw materials.

Another subject which came up yesterday for consideration related to the new freight tariffs effective June 25. It was made plain that the new tariffs, calling for an advance of 25 per cent. for transportation, would increase the cost of production considerably in certain iron and steel lines.

Other matters taken up related to data on output, costs, and the labor situation. The General Committee in its conference tomorrow with the War Industries Board in Washington would, it was said, take cognizance of the consensus of opinion prevailing in the steel trade, and endeavor to have many of the items in the new schedule of fixed prices placed on a higher basis.

Among the manufacturers said to have consulted recently with the General Committee of the Iron and Steel Institute were makers of horseshoes. It was reported that the committee had allowed an advance of 8 per cent., or $10 a ton, subject to the approval of the War Industries Board. The horseshoe manufacturers have declared that an advance of $15 a ton was necessary to give them a fair profit.

The General Committee, which will go to Washington tonight to meet the War Industries Board tomorrow, is as follows:

Elbert H. Gary, Chairman; James A. Farrell, President, United States Steel Corporation; E. A. S. Clarke, Lackawanna Steel Company; John A. Topping, Chairman, Republic Iron and Steel Company; James A. Campbell, President of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company; A. C. Dinkey, Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company; W. L. King, Vice President, Jones & Laughlin Company; L. E. Block, President, Inland Steel Company; A. F. Huston, President, Luken's Iron Company; James A. Burden, President, Burden Iron Company, and E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

The meeting was followed by a luncheon at which no speeches were made. In the afternoon the steel men attended the launching of the 9,500-ton freighter Liberty, the first vessel to be built at the Federal Shipbuilding Company's new yard on the Hackensack River.

EXPECT RADICAL SHIFT IN STEEL DISTRIBUTION

The freight rate advance which goes into effect next week will add from $1 to $1.50 a ton to the cost of pig iron, according to estimates made in the trade, and for this reason applications for some price advances are looked for when the Steel Committee appears before the War Industries Board on Friday. Iron ore producers and blast furnace companies are expected to present a case for higher prices, and possibly other interests.

"No sign is given as to the Government's position in Friday's meeting," The Iron Age says, "except the dubious intimation that the War Industries Board has no suggestions in advance of hearing from the steel trade.

"The price conference is plainly dwarfed by the changes involved in the new Government control of iron and steel distribution. A week's reflection has brought the conclusion that these will be more radical than the trade has been willing to believe. The future of the army of employes in sales organizations, not only of iron and steel manufacturers but of 400 or more jobbing houses, is no small factor, but it is only one. The feeling grows that six months will see great changes in the character of employment in various departments of the industry.

"The Fuel Administrator's decision that pleasure car manufacturers shall receive 25 per cent. of the fuel supply devoted to that purpose last year is in conflict with the position of the Director of Steel Supply that no non-war industry can now be told how much steel it will be allowed to have. However, the policy will be to give manufacturers such lots of steel as will supplement stocks on hand and convert these into cash as rapidly as possible.

"Cabled orders from American headquarters in France in the last week call for a staggering amount of steel, including hundreds of locomotives and many thousands of cars. Besides, the Railroad Administration is planning to buy 400 locomotives of special design and to increase the order for 100,000 freight cars already placed by at least 40 per cent."

EXCESS PROFITS TAX BURDEN ON FARMERS

EARN INCOME LONG BEFORE

Case Cited of Writer of Scenarios Who Failed to Realize Enough to Pay Debts Contracted.

Several interesting cases were cited yesterday to show the injustice of the existing Excess Profits Tax law under the terms of which all income received during the tax year, irrespective of the time when the money was earned, is subject to the war taxes. Although the theory of the act was to impose unusually high taxes on extra large profits derived as a result of the war, the provisions of the law are such that it hits professional men, men engaged in business and farmers, whose activities have no relation to the war and who had a large income last year by reason of the fact that they realized upon something that they had paid out in years previous to the war and made a cash realization during the tax year.

The unfairness of the assessment of income derived from the sale of property is emphasized by the fact that in cases where a man derived an income from dividends on stock such income is subject to the Federal tax which was in effect at the time when the corporation earned the money which it distributed to its stockholders in the form of dividends. In many instances these taxes were relatively small, for prior to the passage of the Excess Profits Tax law the rates of assessment under the old income and emergency revenue laws were very light.

There was instanced yesterday the case of a farmer who in 1913 bought a farm for $20,000. The property advanced in value when oil was discovered, and last year the farm and the oil earned for the farmer $25,000. In 1916 $60,000 was offered for the farm, but he refused to sell. At the close of last year he was forced to sell it for $58,000. He had to pay the Government an excess profits tax of approximately 60 per cent. on $19,000 of the $25,000 received for the products of the farm, which is $11,400; and he had to pay an additional tax of 60 per cent. on $38,000, which is the difference between the purchase and sale price of the farm. This amounted to $22,800. He was also obliged to pay approximately $1,800 as an income tax. The farmer's tax bill amounted to $36,000, which is $9,000 more than he earned from the farm, and when he got through he had only $47,000 of the $83,000 income of the year, which is $13,000 less than he would have received for the property had he sold it in 1916.

The farmer who bought the farm will not have to pay an equally high tax on his earnings from the farm should the rates remain the same. The second farmer's excess profits tax will be figured on an invested capital of $58,000, and should his earnings be the same, namely, $25,000, his bill for excess profits taxes will amount to about $7,000, compared with the first farmer's assessment of $11,000 made on the basis of $25,000 of earnings on an invested capital of $20,000, the price he originally paid for the farm in 1913.

In the case of the farmer, as in other cases, it is argued that it is unfair to make no distinction between ordinary income and income which is the accrual of increased values during a period of years and which is a "capital asset."

A lawyer told yesterday of the experience of a fellow-attorney who had spent several years in an important litigation which he handled on a contingent fee basis. Five or more years were spent in trials and appeals from one court to another, all of which consumed a great deal of the attorney's time and money. The lawyer did not finally win the case until the early part of last year, and the fee he received was an unusually large one. He was obliged to pay a heavy excess profits tax on it, despite the fact that the services for which he received the fee were not rendered in 1917, but in previous years.

A similar case was told of a writer of scenarios, who spent several years in writing moving picture plays which failed to find a market. In the hope that he would some day be fortunate enough to sell the plays he borrowed money from his friends. He finally succeeded in selling the scenarios, only to find that the excess profits taxes he had to pay were so large that he could not pay the debts he had contracted. it is argued by tax experts that, if the labor which produced the income was expended in years previous to 1917, it was unfair to impose the tax at the 1917 rate, especially in view of the fact that the taxation of dividends received from corporations is subject to the rate of taxes in effect during the year the money was earned.

Representative of trust companies and banks who have been specializing in the Federal income and excess profits tax laws held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the offices of the Guaranty Trust Company, which was presided over by R. G. Page, Assistant Secretary of the Bankers Trust Company. These men have formed what is called the Trust Companies' Council, and they are working for a simplification of the tax laws.

It is understood that the council has drawn up a petition which will be submitted to the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, no reconsiding revenue legislation. The committee appointed to go down to Washington consists of W. S. Orr of the First National Bank, Morris F. Fry of the Guaranty Trust Company, and Thomas Garrett, Jr., of the law firm of Stetson, Jennings & Russell. The council will make no suggestions regarding rates of taxation, but will urge that the language of the act be clarified and that certain complexities, which have operated an injustice, be eliminated.

Mr. Page declined to say anything about the meeting on the ground that the Treasury Department, with which the council is co-operating, might be annoyed if any publicity were given to the work of the council in advance of the filing of the papers in Washington.

DELAYED TAX PAYMENTS NOW COMING IN FAST

Prospect Is Good That Few Delinquencies Will Be Subject to Fine on June 25.

Approximately $13,000,000 was received in taxes yesterday by William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second District of New York. At this rate, Collector Edwards stated, it was certain that most of the delinquencies will have been received by the date when the 5 per cent. penalty automatically accrues, June 25.

In the Third, or Upper Manhattan District, with headquarters at 1,150 Broadway, it was reported that Collector Mark Eisner had to date taken in income and excess profits taxes to the approximate amount of $118,000,000, with indications that further payments between now and June 25 would amount to $12,000,000. Taxes from so-called "ordinary" sources for the fiscal year ending June 30 are expected to aggregate $50,000,000, thus making total collections in all classes of taxes in the Third District in the region of $180,000,000.

In the Second District in the Custom House there was a big disparity in two payments which were made yesterday. One payment for $2,087,187.49 came by mail in two checks, one for $1,000,000 and the other for $1,087,187.49. This payment represented the corporation and excess profits tax of one of the firms in the financial district, the other payment was for 4 cents. It was not in cash, but in postage stamps. Another large sum received in the Second District was a personal tax of $1,700,000. There was another payment of $900,000 by a corporation. Other payments included one for $400,000, and several for amounts ranging from $50,000 to $100,000.

Several taxpayers have been making their payments through the big trust companies. These payments have been bunched by the trust companies and a check sent for the total. One of these payments running into six figures had to be returned because of a shortage of 00 cents.

Coupon bonds of $1,000, $500 and $100 denominations, with privilege of registration as to principal. Harris Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, Trustee.

The Company will agree to pay interest without deduction for any normal Federal Income Tax up to 2 per cent

For complete information regarding these Bonds we refer to letter from the managers of the Company, copies of which may be had on request and from which we summarize as follows:

Louisville Gas and Electric Company and its affiliated companies, operating without competition, directly serve with electric light and power and natural gas the City of Louisville, Kentucky, and several adjacent communities, having a total population estimated in excess of 268,000.

The above Bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first lien on the entire property of the Company, subject only to $3,119,000 Louisville Lighting Company First 5's, which are a first mortgage on the property formerly owned by that company. The First and Refunding Mortgage 7's will therefore be secured by a first lien on more than 75% of the entire property of the Louisville Gas and Electric Company.

Earnings and Expenses

Consolidated Statement of the Earnings from the Properties Subject to the Lien of the Mortgage for Year ended April 30, 1918.

Gross Earnings	$2,958,135
Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes (excluding Depreciation)	1,367,400
Net Earnings	$1,590,735
Annual Interest Charge on $13,619,000 bonds	890,950
Balance	$699,785

Net Earnings over one and three-quarters times annual interest on Mortgage Bonds

Over 62% of the Company's gross earnings and over 70% of its net earnings are derived from the electric light and power service.

The franchise situation is satisfactory. In the opinion of counsel, the duration of the Company's rights under its electric franchise in the city of Louisville is perpetual and the gas franchise expires in 1933.

Bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued. It is expected that temporary bonds will be received by us on or about June 26.

We recommend these bonds for investment

Price 98 and interest; yielding about 7½ per cent

COTTON MARKET SHOWS GAIN OF 26-44 POINTS

The Crop News in the Main Continues Up to the High Standard of Recent Weeks.

The cotton market looked both active and strong during most of the session yesterday. There was some talk of boll weevil in reports from various sections east of the Mississippi, as well as in the weekly weather report, and complaints of heat and dry weather in parts of Texas, but in the main crop news continued up to the high standard of recent weeks, and the advance seemed to result from the failure of a long succession of bearish reports to produce any more marked effect than the temporary reaction on Tuesday. When the market once started upward it uncovered some stop orders on the short side, resulting in a still more rapid rise followed by slight reactions at the close, which found the market steady at net gains of from 26 to 44 points.

There were a few overnight leftovers from Tuesday's selling offers around the ring at the first call, and first prices were considerably off, the overnight drop varying from 18 to 40 points in the active months. There was some more selling attributed generally to liquidation of long contracts rather than new short offerings, but everything was taken at very little, if any, below the opening prices. Early in the morning the shorts evidently began to grow uneasy at the way the market was standing up under pressure, which seemed to several observers to indicate that the trade was in the market actively at the level then prevailing.

When prices once began to move upward, they appeared to accumulate strength with each jump in quotations, and it was late in the afternoon before the edge seemed taken off the demand, simultaneously with realizing by morning buyers, which closed out the session not far below the top. Exports yesterday were 18,186 bales, or 3,669,914 for the season. Southern spot markets were unchanged to 50 points higher.

WHEAT.

The weekly Government crop and Weather Bureau report intimated a little premature ripening of wheat in some sections of the belt where high temperatures have prevailed recently, but on the whole crop advices continued very favorable. Harvesting operations are working steadily northward and weather was favorable for this work. Threshing is now in progress in the southern part of the belt, and New Orleans reported the receipt of a car of new wheat there which graded No. 1 and weighed 61½ pounds per bushel.

RYE.

CORN.

Prices in the corn market rallied sharply from the decline of Tuesday and at the close were 1⅝c to 2¼c net higher. The local cash market was strong and higher, with kiln dried No. 3 yellow quoted at $1.76¾; No. 4 yellow, $1.68, ten days' shipment, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

Reports of premature ripening as a result of hot weather and of the crop heading short owing to lack of moisture in portions of the Western belt caused heavy buying in the oats market, and prices advanced sharply, closing at the top with net gains of 1⅝c to 3c. In the local cash market standard was quoted at 88@88½c; No. 2 white, 89c; No. 3 white, 87½@88c; No. 4 white, 87@87½c; fancy clipped, white, 88@91c; ordinary clipped, white, 87@88c, all elevator.

August	69½	66⅜	69½	66½	..

PROVISIONS.

A firmer tone prevailed in the market for hog products, with offers small and a somewhat improved demand, based largely on the strength in corn, although the trade seemed to be inclined to take a more favorable view of the situation at large. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 18,000, Kansas City received 15,000, and Omaha, 18,000.

COFFEE.

Yesterday's market for coffee contracts opened easier with a 1 to 2 points decline, with moderate liquidation in July contracts, and throughout the morning the volume of business was small. In the early afternoon there were some large amounts switched, July to December at 32 points and September to March at 40 points. Later local trade interests came into the market for the near months, their buying believed to be against sales of the actual coffee, and in the absence of further offers prices advanced, the close showing net gains of 2 to 4 points. SUGAR.

In refined sugar brokers had more orders than refiners could fill, but it is believed that within a day or two ample supplies will be available to take care of all orders. Government contracts have kept local interests busy and some refiners are behind on orders. The International Sugar Committee reported small purchases for June shipment, including 21,800 bags Cubas at 4.985c, cost and freight, and also reported 400 tons Venezuela Panela in port at 4.855c., basis 89 degrees, duty paid, delivered. The Cuban weekly statistics showed a considerable falling off in receipts and exports were also less than a week ago. Mills grinding 53, against 70 a week ago.

Company Issues Statement Telling of Coming Issue.

"The American Telephone and Telegraph Company last night mailed to the stockholders a letter signed by President Vail, calling a special meeting for July 3, to authorize the issuance of not more than $50,000,000 of 6 per cent. seven-year convertible bonds. The Directors, at a meeting held June 18, voted to recommend the issue to the stockholders.

"As soon as the issue has been authorized the company will forward to the stockholders warrants, evidencing the right to subscribe for the bonds at 94 and accrued interest. The bonds thus yield slightly over 7.1 per cent. The stockholders will have the right to subscribe in the proportion of $100 in bonds for each ten shares of stock or any fraction of ten shares. The new bonds are convertible into stock at 106, at any time after two years, until maturity. A syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. and associates have arranged to underwrite the issue."

At the Harlem office of The New York Times, 2,109 Seventh Avenue, just north of 125th Street, advertisements and subscriptions are received for The Times and all other publications of The New York Times Co.

STOCK EXCHANGE FEE FOR BRANCH OFFICES

Charge of $100 Each Expected to Increase Revenue Approximately $56,000 a Year.

For the purpose of increasing its income, the New York Stock Exchange put into effect yesterday a rule which entails a cost of $100 a year for each branch office maintained by a Stock Exchange firm. As there are approximately 560 branch offices involved, the Exchange's revenue will be increased approximately $56,000 a year, which the Governors maintain is needed to offset the decrease in income caused by the remission of dues to members in the national service and from the sharp decline this year in the amount of new securities listed on the board. From the listings a fee of $50 for each $1,000,000 par value of securities is collected.

No Stock Exchange member or firm shall maintain a branch office unless the manager of such branch office is registered as manger thereof, as herein provided, and the registration fee herein prescribed is paid. Every branch office manager, when employed, shall be registered for the period up to Sept. 1 next ensuing, and thereafter, on or prior to Sept. 1 in each year, shall be registered for the year commencing Sept. 1. A fee of $100 shall be paid to the Exchange upon each registration.

Several of the large "wire" houses have from thirty to forty-five branch offices each, so that the increased cost of doing business will be considerable for them. The matter of registering branch office managers had been under discussion by the Governors for some time, and no important opposition to the step developed among the brokers. In addition to suffering a decline in ordinary income, the Exchange has for more than a year been laying out more funds than ever before through advances in employes' wages and higher expense in running the building.

Increases Copper Output Eightfold.

The Consolidated Copper Mines Company reports the production of 9,806,898 pounds of copper in 1917, a total more than eight times larger than the output in the preceding year. The annual statement yesterday said that the value of all metals sold was $2,473,438, including the proceeds of 11,979 ounces of silver, and 2,557 ounces of gold. The balance sheet showed a profit and loss surplus amounting to $772,271 on Dec. 31 last, which had increased to $821,108 on April 30, 1918.

Sinking Fund—Beginning January 1, 1919, 20% of the net earnings of each year to be used in retiring stock of this issue.

No bonds are outstanding, and it is agreed that while these shares are outstanding no bonds or prior obligations will be issued without the consent of two-thirds of these Preferred shares.

This stock is issued with the approval of the Capital Issues Committee, as stated below, for the purpose, among others, of greatly increasing manufacturing facilities, and providing additional working capital, in order to execute very extensive orders for the United States Government.

The Company has on order for immediate shipment razors alone aggregating in value more than one million and a half dollars, and notwithstanding the large increase in manufacturing facilities which has been made each year for several years past it has not been able to accept more than 50% of the profitable business offered heretofore.

The Geneva Cutlery Company has shown a consistent and substantial growth for the past fifteen years. Net earnings of 1917, as reported to us, exceed three times the dividend charges on this issue. For the year ended June 1, 1918, they are nearly five times the requirement.

We recommend these shares as a most desirable purchase

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

After an early period of strength, the market on the Consolidated Exchange developed a reactionary tendency, and the forenoon advances were in most cases wiped out at the close. The dealings, except in a few of the specialties, were on a rather narrow scale and largely of a professional nature. The International Mercantile Marine shares moved up sharply for a time, but were among the leaders in the subsequent reaction.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Fifth Av. Residence Assessed at $290,000 Sold to Mrs. C. J. Cornell—Bronx Lots for $80.

Both business and residential property figured prominently in yesterday's realty market, the feature of the day's transactions being the sale of 973 Fifth Avenue, a six-story American basement dwelling, assessed for $290,000.

Mrs. C. J. Cornell, who now resides at 927 Fifth Avenue, purchased the residence from Mrs. Carlos M. de Heredia, who built it from plans by the late Stanford White at the same time the Payne Whitney house adjoining was erected. It occupies a lot 25 by 100 and has a right of way for tradesmen and servants' entrance over the fifteen-foot strip adjoining on the east to Seventy-ninth Street.

Last week the house on the adjoining corner of Seventy-ninth Street, occupying a plot 32 by 100, was sold by the Metropolitan Museum of Art to Henry F. Sinclair, President of the Sinclair Oil and Refining Company. Pease & Elliman negotiated both sales. The two houses represented a value of over $1,000,000, but the sales prices aggregated quite a little less than this sum.

The late H. H. Cook, Mrs. de Heredia's father, built the large house at the north corner of Seventy-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue, which was sold by the heirs in 1909 to James B. Duke for $1,000,000. Mr. Cook at one time held title to the entire block bounded by Seventy-eighth and Seventy-ninth Streets, Fifth and Madison Avenues, which was sold off at various times to prominent New Yorkers for residential sites.

OFFICE POSITIONS GUARANTEED.
BECAUSE
It pays more; beginners have received as high as $15 per week.
It costs less and takes less time to learn it.

DROP TWO TEACHERS FOR VIEWS ON WAR

SUSPEND DISLOYAL MAN

Blumenthal Has Been Sentenced to Fifteen Years in Prison by Court Martial.

The Board of Education yesterday dismissed from the service Miss Mary S. McDowell on the charge of conduct unbecoming a teacher. She is a Quaker and is opposed to the war on religious grounds. All the members of the board were present except Mr. Prawll, and the vote was 4 to 0. The members voting for dismissal were Frank D. Wilsey, George J. Ryan, Joseph Yeska, and Mrs. Annie L. Murray, the committee which tried the case. President Somers and Mrs. Isaac Franklin Russell did not vote, not having heard the testimony. The case will be carried by Miss McDowell's counsel to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The board confirmed the suspension by District Superintendent Benjamin Veit of Louis H. Blumenthal, teacher of history and civics in Public School 148, Ellery and Hopkins Streets, Brooklyn. Blumenthal, while a member of Company I, 305th Infantry, at Camp Upton, said he would not fight for his country because of conscientious objections. Secretary Baker recently confirmed his sentence of fifteen years in the Federal prison at Fort Jay. His suspension will continue until charges against him are tried by the Board of Education.

At a secret session of the board held after the meeting the case of Miss Gertrude A. M. Pignol, teacher of German in the Brooklyn Manual Training High School, the same school in which Miss McDowell taught Latin, was taken up, and she was dismissed from the service by the vote of the four members comprising the committee which tried her, and which is a majority of the board. These members were Mr. Wilsey, President Somers, Mrs. Russell, and Mrs. Murray. Miss Pignol on the witness stand said that she was opposed to Germany in this war, and that she wanted to see the United States win it. The only thing brought against her was her admission on cross-examination that she did not want to see Germany, of which she is a native, "crushed."

A site for the Julia Richmond High School was favored by Joseph Yeska and associate Superintendents Tildsley and Shallow. It is on the east side of Second Avenue, between Sixty-seventh and Sixty-eighth Streets. The attendance in the six buildings now used by the school is 3,282. Of these 1,600 come from the east side of the town and 1,400 from the west side. The site is centrally located and easy of access from Manhattan, the Bronx, Queens, and Brooklyn. It is near elevated stations and various trolley lines. The Board of Education, by a unanimous vote, decided to acquire this site. This settles the long fight made by the Principal and the pupils of this school for a new building.

A committee of residents from Brownsville, Brooklyn, appeared before the board in support of a high school for that district. Alderman B. Wolf of Brownsville spoke in behalf of the new school. He said that he had been before Mayor Hylan to urge upon him the necessity for such a thing, and the Mayor had advised him to present the case to the Board of Education. There were, he said, 6,000 children in that section of the city who attended different high schools, being compelled each day to pay carfare and money for their lunches. There were many other children who did not attend high school, because their parents were unable to pay carfare and for lunches. He said that the district was a rapidly-growing one, and that soon the number of children going to high school would amount to 7,000. A high school, he added, would probably accommodate from 3,500 to 4,000 children, and the need of it was very great.

The board decided to lease the new Manhattan Trade School for Girls to the Federal Government for use as a hospital for wounded soldiers. This was done in spite of the opposition of Principal Marshall and women interested in the trade education of girls. The children now attending the school will be obliged to go somewhere else. It was suggested that they renew the lease of the old building that had been used as a school by the girls, but Mr. Wilsey said that this could not now be done, so some place will have to be found to accommodate them.

The matter of increasing teachers' salaries was deferred until the meeting on next Wednesday, and the election of a new Principal for the Morris High School was also postponed. Joseph K. Van Denburg has been nominated as Principal by the Board of Superintendents.

Messrs. Ryan and Yeska reported on the question of pensions for the employes of the board who are not on the supervisory or teaching staff. They favored a board composed of three members of the Board of Education and delegates elected by themselves to conduct a pension board on the plan of the Teachers' Retirement Board. The matter was referred for action to the committee of the whole on next Monday.

PLAN TO RESTRICT LIGHTING IN HOMES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Plans for an intensive campaign to bring about, by voluntary action of the people if possible, and by compulsory measures if necessary, conservation of commodities other than food are being considered by the Administration. President Wilson has given close attention to the steps proposed and the subject has been discussed at length, not only at meetings of Government boards, but also at the War Cabinet conferences at the White House on Wednesday afternoons.

Some of the officials, it is said, have come to the conclusion that a large majority of the people, either because of carelessness or the fact that they have not realized the necessity for rigid economy of all materials, are letting slip the opportunity to accomplish much in aiding to carry out the war program.

It is said that the subject was discussed seriously at the War Cabinet meeting today in connection with the formulation of general conservation plans which would save commodities necessary to the war. The large shipments of foodstuffs, such as wheat and meats, to the Allies, which have been made possible by the co-operation of the people, was cited as an example of what could be accomplished, once the nation was thoroughly aroused to the necessity of economizing in other directions.

WASHINGTON, June 19, (Associated Press.)—Instead of shutting down all nonwar industries to save fuel, thereby throwing many persons out of employment and reducing the economic resources, an effort will be made to effect such a reduction in the private consumption of coal that many factories will be enabled to operate part time at least.

One suggestion being studied is to notify all households that they may consume hereafter only half of the average amount of electricity and gas burned each month during the past year. If that amount should be reached before the end of the month, the supply would be cut off for the remaining days of that month. Industries in each town would have available for necessary work the amount of current or gas saved, and where there was not sufficient essential work to utilize so much there would result a saving in fuel.

Compensation to the public utilities companies for their loss in business has been taken up only tentatively as yet.

DEMANDS SURRENDER OF ENEMY SHIPPING

British Trade Committee Declares for Drastic Measures in Peace Treaty.

LONDON, June 19.—The Board of Trade Committee, in its report on the position of shipping and shipbuilding in the reconstruction period, unanimously recommends the early removal of Government control. The peace treaty, it declares, should enforce the surrender of enemy shipping, heavily punish the enemy's crimes at sea, and provide for the auctioning of surrendered vessels, the proceeds to be treated as part of the common war indemnity.

The committee considers post-war restrictions on building for Germans useless unless all the Allies, including the United States, are prepared to coerce neutrals to that end.

LAUNCH THE LIBERTY, BIG CARGO CARRIER

Mrs. Gary Names the First Vessel of a Fleet Building at Kearny.

15,000 SPECTATORS CHEER

Din of 6,000 Riveters on Sister Ships Mingles with Acclaims for New Freighter.

While the din of the riveting hammers of 6,000 workers in the hulls of nine sister ships almost drowned out the cheers of about 15,000 spectators, Mrs. Elbert H. Gary, the wife of the Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, yesterday named the Liberty, the first of a fleet of ten cargo ships of 9,600 tons being built for the Emergency Fleet Corporation in the Federal shipbuilding yards at Kearny, N. J. The Liberty slid down the ways into the Hackensack River at 5:38 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and her sister ships will follow her at intervals within a few months.

The name of the ship was suggested by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson in conformance with the custom to ask the wife of the President to name the first ship launched in the shipyards filling contracts for the Emergency Fleet Corporation. The President and Mrs. Wilson sent their regrets that they would be unable to be present at the launching.

Crews of riveters who fastened together the stanch steel sides of the freighter to carry supplies for the American armies in France became impatient yesterday when there was a delay of about an hour and a half in the exercises because a platform had to be built near the bow of the ship. After the last rivet was pounded in early in the day the hundreds of workers climbed to the deck of the new ship to await the launching. They intended to go down the ways with their first ship and take with her the first voyage of a few hundred feet in the Hackensack River. When the bottle of champagne was lowered from the bow to the special platform where Judge and Mrs. Gary stood to await the ceremony, Mrs. Gary became nervous and failed to catch the bottle as it swung to and fro on its red, white, and blue ribbons. She thought the cause of this error was her gloves, and, while she was taking them off to throw them to Judge Gary, a riveter leaned over the bow and shouted:

"Hey, there, Mrs. Gary, hurry up and name this ship so that we can start to work on another for you to name."

The din of the racing hammers in the hulls of the other ships on the ways and the creaking of the cranes as they hurried in their work was not enough to prevent that challenge from reaching the ears of the 10,000 persons who stood in the yards and the 5,000 who stood on the Hackensack River Bridge near the yards. Robert McGregor, the Superintendent of the yards, said he thought the spectators on the Jersey City side of the river heard those words, too.

Mrs. Gary, encouraged by the plea, seized the bottle and smashed it against the prow of the Liberty with such violence that the liquid splashed over the gowns of Mrs. Charles S. Whitman and other spectators who stood on the platform. One riveter shouted:

"Wowie! That was a blow hard enough to hit a German!"

As the ship quivered and started down the ways the same riveter shouted again:

Every whistle in the yard and the voice of every person who saw the ship start took up the cry, and for ten minutes the din of the hammers in the other ships was stilled by the louder volume of cheers and whistles. Supt. McGregor remarked to Judge Gary: "I guess they heard that in Germany," and Judge Gary replied that he "guessed if they didn't it wouldn't be long before they would."

The ship floated about a hundred feet into the river, and then the tides caught her and turned her around. Meanwhile riveters and workers scampered along her 410 feet of steel length and across the 55 feet of her broad deck. Two tugs fastened on and pulled the huge weight to another part of the yard, where her turbines will be installed within a few days; in another few days a crew will drop in; in another few days a cargo of food and clothing for the soldiers in France will be taken on and the Liberty will become part of the American bridge to France.

The initial contract awarded to the Federal Shipbuilding Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, was for the construction of ten steel ships of the size of the Liberty. After the keel of the ship had been forged in the foundries at Homestead, Penn., it was laid on Nov. 15 last. As the ways were completed two other keels were laid in December and five in March. Those ships will follow the Liberty soon. Meanwhile, five additional ways are planned, and two are being constructed. On adjoining ground it is planned to build an immense ship repair plant with a drydock large enough to repair the largest vessel in the American transport service. About $11,000,000 has been spent already in the yards, and the total outlay will be about $30,000,000 for ships to beat Germany.

MADMAN KILLS CLERK AND SHOOTS PURSUER

One man was killed and another was seriously wounded yesterday in Brooklyn by William Orenbach of 276 Christopher Avenue, who had been a student of radical social and political doctrines for several months. Orenbach was captured after fleeing for several blocks from a crowd and shooting at policemen and detectives. In his flight he shot John Schrenick, a clerk, who attempted to seize him. Schrenick was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a serious condition.

Orenbach went into the grocery store on the street floor of the apartment house where he lived and told Benjamin Kustacher, the clerk, that he was going to shoot him. Kustacher laughed because he thought Orenbach was joking, but when the boy began to shoot Kustacher tried to hide. Two bullets struck him, and he died later in the Kings County Hospital without regaining consciousness. Other persons in the store tried to disarm Orenbach but he ran into the street and began to shoot at men who took up the chase.

The fugitive ran along Pitkin Avenue pursued by policemen in an automobile. He shot at street car conductors and other men who tried to stop him and had reloaded his pistol in his flight when Schrenick, a clerk in a hardware store at 1,772 Pitkin Avenue, tried to seize him. Orenbach aimed deliberately and shot Schrenick. Fire apparatus delayed his pursuers at Thatford Avenue, but Detective William Cohen of the Seventh Branch Bureau overtook him. Orenbach almost made his escape again when policemen mistook the detective for the assailant and tried to arrest him.

Orenbach told the police that he had shot Kustacher because he had insulted Orenbach's mother, but Mrs. Orenbach and her son, Dr. David S. Orenbach, a dentist, said that they did not remember any insult. They said that the boy had been away from home for several days, and that for several months he had been reading radical books, as well as preparing for college entrance examinations. Physicians from the psychopathic ward of Kings County Hospital were called to the Brownsville Station last night to examine the prisoner. He is 20 years old.

MUST CUT BEQUESTS OF G. W. VANDERBILT

NO RESIDUE FOR CHILD

Cash Legacy of $250,000 to His Wife Is Reduced to $178,412.

An appraisal filed yesterday of the estate of George W. Vanderbilt of New York and Biltmore, N. C., who died on March 25, 1914, shows that his property taxable here, which does not include his North Carolina real estate and personal effects and his residences at Washington, D. C., and Bar Harbor, Me., is valued at only $1,314,852. The net estate here is only $929,740, being reduced by debts of $312,047 and other deductions.

Mr. Vanderbilt in his will gave away about $1,300,000 in bequests, and as a result of the deficiency the legacies are all reduced, and nothing remains for his daughter and only child, Cornelia Stuyvesant Vanderbilt, named as the residuary legatee. Miss Vanderbilt, however, receives the $5,000,000 share of her father in the trust fund of $40,000,000 set aside by his father, William H. Vanderbilt, for the latter's eight children, the principal of each fund to go to the children of the legatee upon the death of the child. As the only child, Miss Vanderbilt receives all her father's share.

Mr. Vanderbilt left to his wife, Edith S. Vanderbilt, $250,000 in cash, which is reduced to $178,412, and a life interest in $1,000,000. She also received all the Bar Harbor, Washington, and Biltmore properties, estimated at more than $1,500,000, and not taxable in New York. The other legacies, reduced by about one-third, are life incomes of $2,000 each to Charles and Julia L. McNamee, $1,000 each to Talbot Root and George V. Caesar, and $1,500 to Bernard V. Eckhout.

Mr. Vanderbilt owned real estate in New York worth $501,773, including a third interest in the property at 647 Fifth Avenue, worth $50,918, and the full title to holdings on Staten Island worth $447,904 after the deduction of $124,118 unpaid on a mortgage. He had $15,934 in cash, a painting, "Rosito," by Zuloaga, worth $10,000; eight bronze busts by Meunier, valued at $3,850, and two Chinese kakemonos, worth $2,250 The bulk of the art objects are in the Washington residence and at Biltmore.

Mr. Vanderbilt had an insurance policy for $1,000,000 in the Mutual Life, but he had borrowed on it and only $640,822 was due at the time of his death. He had a claim for $19,000 against Jacob H. Vanderbilt of Steilacoom, Wash., for advances, which was secured by an insurance policy, but the appraiser found the claim of no value because the premiums payable will amount to the face of the policy.

The stocks and bonds were valued at only $11,125, of which $11,000 is the value of 220 shares of the Bar Harbor Water Company. Bonds of the Bar Harbor Association of Art, having a face value of $3,000, are declared to be of no value.

The bulk of Mr. Vanderbilt's debts of $312,047 consisted of promissory notes made since 1910. The largest series of notes is for $65,000 made in 1912 to the American Security and Trust Company of Washington, D. C., and secured by a mortgage on the Washington property.

William Harkness's Will Probated.

The will of William Harkness, banker and ex-member of the Board of Education, who died at his home, 293 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, on June 8, was filed yesterday in the Surrogate's office in Brooklyn. No estimate of the size of the estate is made in the will, except the statement that "it exceeds $20,000 in realty and personalty." The will was executed July 21, 1910, and leaves the entire estate in trust to his widow and five children.

HARBOR WAGES TO GO UP.

Agreement Made by Board Approved by Railroad Administration.

The Railroad Administration has approved of the agreement made by the New York Harbor Wage Board last November with the workers on tugboats, ferries, lighters, and other craft in New York waters concerning wages and hours of labor. The men had threatened to quit if the changes were not put into effect on July 1, and this will now be done, according to T. V. O'Connor, President of the International Longshoremen's Association, speaking as a member of the Harbor Wage Board.

Barge hands will receive from $3.50 to $5 a day with time and a half for overtime, six days' work to constitute one week, and a week's vacation on full pay for every man who has served a year or more. On the ferryboats the wheelmen receive $95, deckhands $85, oilers $95 to $100, and firemen $95 per month, with the same conditions regarding time and vacation. On towing vessels where the crew receive their board the wages are a little lower in proportion, oilers $80 and firemen and deckhands $75 a month.

Pennsylvania Subsidiary Reports.

The first annual report of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania, organized in 1916 to take over the properties of several of the Western properties of the Pennsylvania system, was published yesterday. The report shows gross operating revenues of $73,507,627, an increase of $9,471,130 over the revenues of the constituent companies before consolidation, but the operating income, owing to increases in expenses and taxes, shows a decrease of $1,091,921 to a total of $13,946,947. The net income was $5,740,158, a decrease of $2,260,946.

There's No Desk Room for Waste in Business Today

WE ARE CONVINCED that when we eliminate waste in our business, whether it be in time or labor or both, there is a reciprocal adjustment of the scales in favor of telephone service, the product which you buy and we sell.

IN OTHER WORDS, if we can do away with any waste time or labor that may be involved in furnishing telephone service, we can put an equal amount of time and labor into the service itself and to some extent add to the comfort, convenience, and efficiency that you derive from its use.

"SLOW" TELEPHONE ACCOUNTS, the accounts on which repeated efforts to collect must be made, result in a duplication of effort. Duplication means waste and in any war-time business organization that is keeping its eye on the military and commercial needs of the country, there is no room for waste.

TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBERS CAN ASSIST in the elimination of this waste by paying their bills within the reasonable specified time.

© Underwood & Underwood

The feet of the National Army

What U. S. Army inspection showed about civilian feet

"Flat-foot," says a recent article in Physical Culture, "has deprived thousands of our patriotic young men of the opportunity to serve their country. In the majority of these cases their feet are unfit only through misuse."

The records of the Hospital for Crippled in New York, show that in the year 1890, before hard stone pavements were introduced, Arch Trouble claimed 2.6 percent of the new patients treated. In 1906, the percentage had risen to 18.3, and in the last report to over 30 percent.

The continual pounding with the whole weight of the body on hard, unyielding pavements, weakens these natural springs of the foot—elasticity of step is lost, and the foot is gradually flattened out.

This constant strain on the arches, and stretching of the ligaments, results in extreme tenderness and marked pains throughout the foot, and muscles of the leg as well.

Heels best suited for City wear

Hard nail-studded leather heels do not help to make walking easier. Hard leather heels tend to aggravate foot troubles. The leather heel is no more suited to modern stone pavements than the sandals of ancient days.

The heels best suited to hard modern pavements are O'Sullivan's Heels. Because of our special process, O'Sullivan's Heels combine the greatest durability with the greatest resiliency. They are made of perfect heel material.

Buy your new shoes with O'Sullivan's Heels already attached. Good dealers sell the latest style shoes with these heels already attached. Have O'Sullivan's put on all your shoes at once. Every day you delay putting them on you are imposing a serious strain on the structure of your feet, and a needless tax on energy.
